INTRODUCTION TO THE FROGS.

The Frogs was exhibited at the Lenaea in the archonship of Callias, that is to say in January B.C. 405. Thus it was separated from The Birds by an interval of eight years. It was brought out under the name of Philonides, as had been also The Wasps. Aristophanes gained the first prize with this play, Phrynichus being second with The Muses, Plato third with The Cleophon. And so greatly was it admired, especially for the Parabasis, that it was, as Dicaearchus tells us, exhibited a second time in the same year.

Thus much we gather from the Greek arguments.

Probably no play of Aristophanes has been more often edited, translated, and read: for in its political, religious, and literary bearing it is of exceptional interest.

Some knowledge of the course of events in Greece for the few years preceding the exhibition of The Frogs is necessary in order to understand the state of Athens at the time. A careful and able review of the history of these years, and of the political situation, is given by Kock in the first section of his introduction. No doubt the more fully we know the history of the states of Greece from the Sicilian expedition to the downfall of Athens, the more fully we understand the mining and countermining of oligarchs and democrats, the better we shall appreciate all the political and personal allusions in a play written at such a critical time. But the general student will not need more than a clear view of the main facts, and of Aristophanes' political opinions, which are tolerably consistent throughout all his comedies. For the full details of history he may consult Thirlwall or Grote. And the literary aspect of the play, the comparison and criticism of the two great tragic masters Aeschylus and Euripides, will be for modern scholars the most interesting. Perhaps the clearest arrangement will be to give :

I. A brief historical sketch to the year when The Frogs was brought out.

II. The argument and substance of the play itself.

III. A view of its political, religious, and literary drift.

I.

In the year B.C. 405 the Peloponnesian war was approaching its end. From the failure in Sicily B.C. 413 Athens never recovered. New fleets indeed were manned, and successful battles fought: but internal dissension prevented unity of purpose and paralyzed all effort. Alcibiades, the one man whose genius might possibly have saved his country, was for a time active against it, then was restored to it for a brief space, but soon again distrusted and disgraced. While Attica was hard pressed by the occupation of Decelea, the operations of war were chiefly in Asia Minor. And here was more negotiation than fighting. To detach the Persian king from the Lacedaemonians, and thus win by Persian gold, was the aim of the oligarchical party at Athens; who were working themselves into power, and purposed at the same time to substitute aristocratic for democratic government at home. Alcibiades gave them some help in these negotiations, though he does not seem ever to have gone with them heartily. This change of government they effected: the Four Hundred were established: communications with Sparta were opened. But it was a short triumph. The army and fleet in Asia stood firm for democracy. Even at Athens there was a split in the oligarchical camp. Theramenes held back from the extreme measures of his party. Phrynichus, the most decided oligarch, who was prepared to betray all to Sparta and establish oligarchy at the expense of liberty, was slain in the market-place. The Four Hundred were put down: the assembly of Five Thousand established. Of this limited democracy Thucydides (viii. 97) says that it was the best polity which Athens had seen in his lifetime, being a reasonable compromise between oligarchs and democrats. Indeed brighter days seemed to be dawning. The successes of Thrasybulus Thrasyllus and Alcibiades about the Hellespont (B.C. 410—408) led to Alcibiades' return amid general rejoicing. But this was not to last. Overtures of peace made by Sparta were disdainfully rejected; full democracy was reestablished; and, as a consequence, the oligarchs were roused to new efforts. Both these and the extreme democrats strove to ruin Alcibiades. He was sent to Asia Minor with a fleet, which during his temporary absence sustained a defeat through the folly of his subordinate. For this mishap Alcibiades being held answerable was deprived of his command: thus he was lost to his country, never again to reappear. Whatever may have been his faults of ambition and selfishness (and doubtless they were great), he appears on his return from exile to have been honestly bent on doing good service to his country: nor can it be doubted that his final retirement hastened the downfall of Athens.

One more brilliant success preceded the disastrous end. Conon, Erasinides and eight other generals succeeded to the command of the fleet (B.C. 406). Conon being defeated and shut up in the harbour of Mytilene, the Athenians, roused to a desperate effort, manned another large fleet, embarking citizens, resident aliens, and even slaves with promise of freedom. The Spartan admiral Callicratidas, leaving some ships to confine Conon, met the enemy with the remainder, and sustained a signal defeat. To follow up the victory and release Conon by surprising and overwhelming the squadron that imprisoned him, was one plain duty before the generals: they also had to rescue the crews of their broken vessels from a now rough and stormy sea. Theramenes with a small part of the fleet was to do the latter: the main part was to sail for Mytilene. But a more furious storm made both tasks impossible; and when this had abated, it was too late, the shipwrecked sailors were lost: Conon however had escaped and joined the Athenian fleet, but his blockaders had escaped also. This victory (so often alluded to in The Frogs), though its completeness was somewhat marred by the storm, was decisive. And had it been used with moderation, Athens might yet have retrieved much. But offers of peace (which seem to have been renewed by Sparta at this crisis) were again rejected at the instance of Cleophon: and the very generals who had won the victory were cruelly condemned by an ungrateful country for not performing the impossibility of rescuing the crews. Their trial, condemnation, and the execution of those who ventured to stand the trial, appears to have been utterly against law, fairness, and prudent policy. Grote regards the whole business as an outburst of popular indignation, a kind of lynch-law. But from the fact that the generals were democrats, and from the part that Theramenes plays in the matter, it is probable that this popular indignation was fomented by the oligarchs for party purposes; that they, in fact, cunningly hounded on the demos to put out of the way its best defenders. Kock says of the trial and condemnation of the generals that "it was the first link in a chain of measures which were to bring about the subversion of the democracy, the betrayal of the State to Sparta, and the supremacy of the oligarchs or of Theramenes." How this programme was carried out—the defeat or betrayal at Aegospotami, the siege and final submission of Athens—need not here be detailed: our play comes just between Athens' last success and her fall.

II.

The argument and substance of the play are as follows.

The god Dionysus, being utterly disgusted with the degeneracy of the drama now that the three great masters are dead, resolves to descend to the nether world and bring back thence Euripides his favourite tragic poet. Attired as Hercules, and attended by a slave Xanthias, he goes first to his brother Hercules for instructions. Duly instructed, the pair make their way to the infernal lake: Dionysus is ferried across it, Xanthias goes round it, and after several amusing adventures they come to the bright fields where the Mystae, the initiated of the Eleusinian mysteries, are enjoying their happiness. Here they pause awhile and listen to the hymns of these blessed spirits (who are the true Chorus of the play), with which are interspersed passages of political meaning and personal satire. These form the first part of the Parabasis. After this the Chorus direct the travellers to Pluto's house, at whose door they knock. Aeacus, who acts as porter, receives the supposed Hercules with abuse and threats of punishment for the theft of Cerberus. While he is gone for assistance, Xanthias changes dress with Dionysus, but being invited to a feast is forced by Dionysus to resign his borrowed character, which however he is again persuaded to take when two hostesses alarm the cowardly god with threats of retaliation. At this point Aeacus returns with assistants and prepares to arrest Xanthias: who denies his crime, and ingeniously offers his slave Dionysus for examination by torture. Dionysus alarmed pleads his divinity: and, when the proposed ordeal by scourging fails to shew which is the true god, they are taken indoors to Pluto.

This ends the first half of the play.

The Chorus in the Parabasis counsel the state to use leniency towards bygone errors of citizens; and to employ the honest and noble in place of the rascal demagogues.

The second half of the play consists of the contest between Aeschylus and Euripides, which ends in Aeschylus being chosen.

Aeacus and Xanthias return. The true Dionysus has been discovered by Pluto and Proserpine. And his arrival proves most timely; for Euripides is on the point of contesting the tragic throne of the nether world with Aeschylus, and Dionysus is just what they wanted—a judge.

The competitors enter, and after mutual recriminations inaugurate the contest by prayer and sacrifice. Euripides pleads first, pointing out Aeschylus' faults of bombast, obscurity, mysterious marvels; and his own reforms in tragic art by introducing clearness, common sense, smart dialogue. Dionysus frequently interrupts, favouring Euripides, the speaker, on the whole, but with some covert satire: while the Chorus plainly show a preference for Aeschylus. Then Aeschylus replies, stating that the mission of a poet is to ennoble his audience : this he claims to have done by high heroic themes treated grandly : whereas Euripides has chosen meaner subjects, spoken of crimes which should be left untold, and encouraged quibbling argument rather than noble action. Dionysus is somewhat won over to Aeschylus by this reply ; the Chorus encourage the combatants to do their best.

The prologues of the two poets are compared. Euripides criticizes in detail one of his adversary's prologues, which he blames as obscure and tautological. Aeschylus retorts on those of Euripides, first finding fault with their sense, then charging them all with a monotony in form and rhythm. In this part of the contest Aeschylus is left with the last word and the approval of Dionysus.

Next they take each other's choruses. Exaggerated patchwork and parody are given by each from the other's lyrics, till Dionysus cries Hold, enough ! to the sham Euripidean chorus. Then Aeschylus proposes the test of weight. This is so arranged that Aeschylus comes out superior in every case. Yet Dionysus is so pleased with both that he is loth to offend either. As however he must take one, or he will have had his journey for nothing, and as he wants a poet for the public good, he determines to make political wisdom the crucial test. Both poets give their advice, on politics generally, and about Alcibiades and some other citizens. The result is that Dionysus chooses Aeschylus, to Euripides' surprise and indignation.

They retire to a farewell banquet with Pluto, after which Aeschylus is to be taken back to upper earth, Sophocles being left to keep the tragic throne. The Chorus light them in, offering their congratulations, and auguring peace and prosperity for Athens.

III.

The purpose and drift of this play may be considered as threefold : political, religious, literary.

The attitude of Aristophanes in the politics of this time is easily seen. He is, in The Frogs, still true to his old political convictions. As in the Acharnians, Knights, Peace, Lysistrata, so now he is an advocate for peace (1530—1533), and is bitter against demagogues, such as Cleophon and others, who opposed it. He shows a decided preference for the well-born, the noble, the Athenians of the old school (whom alone he thinks likely to save Athens), a contempt for the base rabble and spurious upstarts (727—737). Yet he would not have called himself exactly an aristocrat, or at least not an oligarch : and he certainly had no sympathy with the party who were traitorously preparing to make over everything to Sparta. The government of the Four Hundred he alludes to as a mistake not to be too severely visited on the offenders, misled as they were by Phrynichus : he advises reconciliation and amnesty (687—692). And it would have been well for Athens had she followed this advice.

Aristophanes' sentiments with regard to some of the chief events and leading men of his time should be noticed. On the condemnation of the generals at Arginusæ, which was fresh in every one's recollection, he is guarded in his expressions. Yet plainly l. 1196 implies pity for the victims : and l. 191 probably is a sneer at the judgment of the Athenians, for making so much of the loss of a few of the men, so little of the gain of the brilliant victory.

Of Cleophon, the demagogue who more than once prevented peace, he speaks most bitterly. Theramenes, the turncoat, he plainly detests : he is a clever knave who extricates himself by sacrificing his friends (541) ; a worthy pupil of Euripides (967), but Euripides' school is our poet's aversion.

Of Alcibiades he speaks in ambiguous terms : indeed it was hard to do otherwise. Euripides is made to condemn him, though not by name, as the citizen slow to help, swift to harm his country, whose resources are used only for his own selfish advancement (1426—1429). But Aeschylus—who is ultimately preferred—counsels that the lion's whelp, now that they have bred him up, must perforce be humoured (1431—1432). And indeed Alcibiades' second disgrace and removal from command proved ruinous to Athens : as Kock well says, 'the hasty Athenian people trusted the young lion too much at first, too little at last.'

Such appears to be the political bearing of the play. That it won approval at the time is shown by the fact that the play gained the first prize and was re-acted mainly because of the reasonable views expressed in the Parabasis. It is worth noting that of the other two competing plays, The Muses of Phrynichus was on the degeneracy of the drama, The Cleophon of Plato was against the demagogue of that name; one literary, the other political. Aristophanes with a purpose and plot in appearance mainly literary combined much that was political. Indeed, as we shall see presently, his severe handling of Euripides was prompted by his political feeling.

Let us now look briefly at the religious drift of the play. Upon this Mitchell in his Introduction has written fully, holding that at least one chief object of this play was to uphold the declining influence of the Eleusinian mysteries, to enforce the distinction between the old mystic Iacchus and the reveller Dionysus, and to ridicule this new god. To the neglect of the Eleusinia Aristophanes and his party would, he thinks, attribute much of the disaster of the war. And as Aeschylus in the Eumenides upheld the court of Areopagus, so Aristophanes here upholds the sanctity of the Eleusinia, the blessings of initiation in this world and the next.

No doubt Aristophanes held in great honour the ancient rites of worship: the renewal of the Eleusinian procession on Alcibiades' return after enforced disuse, was greatly to his mind; and therefore the Mystae are prominent as the Chorus, with their hymns and processions (l. 340—459). But into the details and mysteries of this old worship few will now care to enter: the results of Mitchell's learning and research will find few readers: and, after all, the religious object of the play seems unimportant as compared with the literary and political. One point indeed, on which Mitchell insists, should be clearly recognized: that Dionysus and Iacchus in the play are quite distinct. When the Chorus are invoking Iacchus, Dionysus does not take their hymns to concern himself. The Iacchus of the mysteries (as Paley says) probably represents the Sun-god: whereas Dionysus is simply the god of feasting and jollity, and the patron of dramatic art, at whose Dionysia plays were brought out. It is true he proves but a sorry critic, and is constantly making himself ridiculous. Hence Mitchell supposes that there is a deliberate intent in this play to discredit Dionysus as a new-comer, in comparison with the older Iacchus. But this will not explain the levity with which so many deities are treated in Aristophanes' comedies. This is indeed a curious feature in our poet, this presentation of deities in a ridiculous light. Averse though he is to atheism and rationalism, he yet makes fun of the gods whom he puts on the stage. They act with no dignity, have exaggerated human faults: as may be seen in several plays in the case of Hermes, Prometheus, Hercules, Poseidon. It is hardly possible to set up any thoroughly consistent defence of this: for religious men to ridicule the deities recognized by their own religion is an anomaly and irreverence. But no doubt, when in much of their own mythology even devout Greeks saw extravagance and absurdity, a comic poet felt that he might without offence use the ridiculous traits of the deities in order to raise a laugh. Indeed the gods, when dressed as men on the stage, were hardly gods, but rather representatives of certain human types of character. An audience could laugh at Hercules the glutton who yet would reverence Hercules the champion and pioneer of civilization. And in The Frogs under the name of Dionysus we have a fat pursy little man, boastful but cowardly, and of a judgment and taste ridiculously misbecoming the divine patron of dramatic art. He is (as we have said) not Iacchus, nor the Dionysus of Herodotus. But neither is he the Theban Dionysus, the Dionysus of the Bacchae. Rather (as Kock has well shown) in the person of Dionysus the Athenian public, the audience at the Dionysia, seems typified. With all his failings he has some good qualities: though boastful, he is yet really venturesome and determined to carry through his undertaking: while deficient in education and taste, easily led by and dependent on others, he has yet a ground-work of common sense and feeling and makes the right choice at last. He started to fetch back Euripides, but is converted to better views and takes Aeschylus. Aristophanes is bold to rebuke the Athenian public to any extent, as in the presentation of Demos in The Knights: yet in this play while he says that the Athenians did not appreciate Aeschylus, he adds that none in the world but the Athenians could pretend to be critics of poetry (l. 807—810). In the mythological Dionysus there were contradictions: a womanish softness, yet at times an avenging strength (as seen in Euripides' Bacchae). Such a contrast we have in the Aristophanic parody of the deity: his woman's dress with lion's skin and club, his double nature, now human, now divine, as the requirements of the comedy suggest.

But enough of the religious aspect of the play. Aristophanes doubtless welcomed the renewal of the Eleusinian worship, and gave it a prominent place in order to impress on his audience the importance and holiness of the celebration. That he meant (as some suppose) to reprove his countrymen for the unavoidable intermission of the procession in time of war seems doubtful: that, as a lover of peace, he rejoiced at the possibility of the renewal, seems certain: and by reminding his audience of the joys of these rites and the blessings they entailed hereafter, he was arguing the cause of peace.

For us, however, the literary aspect of the play is of chief interest. To recover one of the great tragic masters was Dionysus' aim, announced at the very outset of the play: the contest between the two determines that Aeschylus shall be approved and taken, Euripides rejected and left.

Shortly before the exhibition of The Frogs, Euripides and Sophocles had died, leaving no worthy successors. Aristophanes takes occasion of this to make a final grand attempt 'to wcan the people from their great partiality for Euripides' (Cokesley). That Euripides was popular, increasingly popular, more so than Sophocles, is beyond a doubt. We have it on Plutarch's evidence that Athenian captives after the Sicilian failure obtained freedom or an alleviation of their lot by reciting Euripides to their captors. Aristophanes himself, in the expressions of love which he puts into the mouth of Dionysus, is a witness to the fact. Nor was this popularity transient : it continued through later centuries in Greece, and many modern scholars have ratified their verdict of approval. Yet Aristophanes pursued Euripides with invective and ridicule, not merely once or twice, but persistently in both his early and late plays, and notably in the Acharnians, Thesmophoriazusae, and Frogs. Cleon he spares after death (Pac. 648), Lamachus, so ridiculed in the Acharnians, he honours as a hero after his fall : but Euripides he will not allow to rest even in the grave.

We naturally enquire, What were the grounds for this hatred? Was it honest? Was it fair?

As criticism of poetical merit we may at once pronounce it unfair. Indeed we cannot suppose Aristophanes himself was blind to Euripides' genius or to the beauties of his poetry. The explanation of his enmity is to be sought in his views on politics and religion, and in his deep-set conviction that the effect of Euripides' writings was bad. And the more attractive his dramas were, the more dangerous were they; and as this danger did not cease with Euripides' life, so neither did Aristophanes' enmity. We must not forget the close connexion existing in Greece between art and public life. This was universally recognized. The poet was bound to educate, teach, improve, ennoble his audience (cf. l. 1009, 1015, 1055). And we find, as a matter of fact, art and the state mutually influencing each other, and a sort of correspondence of the great artists to the times in which they lived. In an age of heroic effort against a mighty foe there is an Aeschylus to inspire his countrymen. The more peaceful age of Pericles, with greater leisure for refinement and cultivation, produces the calmer and more perfect creations of Sophocles. Then, as party spirit increases, and sophistical argument comes in fashion, with doubts of the old faith and religion, Euripides comes forward with rhetorical style, quibbling, and scepticism (combined of course with real merit), just suited to charm his audience.

Now Aristophanes was one of the old school : he was from honest conviction what we should call now a Tory: he saw in many of the innovations of his time the seeds of corruption: he looked on the bitter animosities of party as sure to ruin his country, to destroy its liberty. He believed this disunion and dissension to be fostered by the spirit of doubt, sophistical disputation, and rationalism fast gaining ground. He therefore combated these with all his power. In The Clouds the Sophists (of whom Socrates is for him the representative) are assailed. But more dangerous even than these—for philosophy is never likely to attract the multitude—were the plays of Euripides, the friend of Socrates, where doubt and scepticism were commended by poetic beauty, the poisoned draught as it were sweetened and presented in a golden chalice. Hence while one grand attack on Socrates contented him, Aristophanes has in three several plays made Euripides a conspicuous victim. Of course the inconsistencies of the Greek mythology were too glaring to escape notice; and Aristophanes himself does not scruple (as we have seen) to treat them with ridicule. But he yet held that the new philosophy, if it had nothing to put in the place of the old religion, would lead to evil by pulling down without building up; Cronos, Zeus and the rest were better than mere abstractions, such as Aether, or the personal powers of the worshipper (cf. l. 892). In the old faith, with all its contradictions, confusion, and anthropomorphism, there were yet underlying ideas of reverence for a higher power, a God that ruled the earth—a trust in whom was a motive for moral action: whereas the Euripidean scepticism, as Aristophanes conceived it, could lead to nothing but selfishness, disunion, and subversion of morality.

And, besides the religious objection, Euripides' writings seemed to our poet likely to corrupt in other ways. On family duties and ties, especially the relations of marriage, they appeared to be of a very questionable tendency. This might not, it is true, be intentional: Euripides and his defenders might urge that crimes were a fact, and that the criminal in his dramas does not go unpunished. Yet the whole impression left on the vulgar mind, when right and wrong are minutely argued about, is not sure to be for the right: and some things it is better not to mention at all than to mention even in order to reprove (l. 1053). Cleverness, cunning, and glibness of speech, do appear to be encouraged at the expense of simple straightforward honesty.

Then again, to Aristophanes, Euripides appeared to degrade tragedy merely as an art, to diminish its elevating effect on the audience, by reducing it to the level of everyday life, putting his kings and heroes into undignified positions, and vulgarizing their talk. Here of course there was, and is, room for wide difference of opinion. Euripides does not deny the charge: but he boldly says that it is better to teach men by talking down to them than to risk being unintelligible from a desire to be grand. Aristophanes holds to the idea that the hearer will be raised rather by what is above him even though it be mysterious. Probably the truth lies between the two: and in this part of Aristophanes' criticism and its exaggerations (l. 980—991) we must remember that Euripides is a representative character, and that his tendencies in this direction may have been carried further by other poets. For as in The Clouds Socrates is an exaggerated representative sophist, so in The Frogs Euripides (though the portrait or caricature is closer to the original) may be regarded partly as the representative of the degenerating tragic art of the day.

Thus Aristophanes pursued Euripides relentlessly (1) because he thought his influence bad, subversive of religion and of morality public and private, and likely to encourage a spirit of dissension which would ruin Athens: (2) because he thought that Euripides was debasing poetic art.

But was he justified in this persecution?

With regard to (1), it would be a bold assertion that Aristophanes was altogether wrong; though he may have over-estimated Euripides' share in the evil. Euripides was the effect, as much as the cause, of a change which was inevitable: and in advocating recurrence to the manners of a previous generation,—the reversal of the stream—Aristophanes was simply striving for an impossibility. And we can never judge Euripides from the same point of view. Though at that crisis he may have had a share in corrupting the Athenians, we cannot feel that he will corrupt us.

With regard to (2), Euripides' merit as an artist, tastes will always differ. As Paley says "it is the duty of the intelligent student to estimate Euripides by his own knowledge of him, and not by the gibes of Aristophanes." He has found enthusiastic admirers in every age: among the moderns are the great names of Milton and Porson.

But into the general question of Euripides' rightful position as a dramatist we need not enter: reason has been shown why Aristophanes disliked him and endeavoured in this play to lower him in the estimation of the Athenians.

Further he felt that it was not enough to do this; that he must set before them some other poet in his place. Who was this to be? It might perhaps have been expected that he would take Sophocles, whom plainly he held in high honour. But certainly as a contrast to Euripides he would not have suited: he has little or no political element, and a strong antidote to Euripides' views was wanted. If it be true (as has been supposed) that Phrynichus in his play of The Muses set up Sophocles as an adversary to Euripides, we can at once see that Aristophanes judged better as an artist in this play, where Sophocles is entirely at one with Aeschylus, but contentedly sits in the background, to combat Euripides only in the event of Aeschylus' failure. For Aeschylus is just the contrast required. First there is the contrast of the two pleadings with which the competitors begin: then that of the prologues, lyrics, and weight of the lines, all admirably managed, though of course with exaggeration. Dionysus is thus made gradually to incline more and more to Aeschylus, until at last the crucial test of political wisdom decides him to give up Euripides entirely. Political wisdom, be it remarked, is the last test; which shows (as has been argued) that Aristophanes' bitterness against Euripides rested on public grounds and not from incapacity to appreciate him as a poet.

In fact, upon the whole, Aristophanes' view of Socrates, the Sophists, Euripides, the main questions religious and political of his own day, is fairly consistent throughout: and, though we may not agree with him, we need not doubt his sincerity and honesty. In this play, as in others, he is the enemy of extreme democrats, the advocate of reconciliation and union between citizens; the advocate of peace if honourably possible, of respect for the main truths of religion and the ancient rites of worship. And as a representative of this new school, and a most attractive and dangerous teacher, he attacks Euripides.

IV.

A word or two on the title, The Frogs. Aristophanes' plays are often named from the Chorus: and Wasps, Birds, Clouds are names of the same quaint character. But as the true Chorus of this drama are the Mystae, we might have expected that to be the name. It seems however that these quaint names were preferred: for we have (in Eg. 522—3) a list of Magnes' plays given, πάσας δ' ὑμῖν φωνὰς ἰεῖς καὶ ψάλλων καὶ περὺ γίζων καὶ λυδίζων καὶ ψηνίζων καὶ βαπτόμενος βατραχείοις: where the last words probably imply a title The Frogs. Nor indeed are quaint and striking titles, easily remembered but of little apparent connexion with the main subject of book or play, at all uncommon in modern literature.

The Greek argument pronounces the play to be τῶν ἐδ' πάνυ καὶ φιλολόγως πεποιημένων. To this verdict a general assent has been given, as the multitude of translators and editors shows. I must acknowledge obligations to all preceding commentators; among whom I should name especially Fritzsche's most complete commentary, Mitchell, Cookesley, Kock (especially in the Introduction), and Paley.

ΥΠΟΘΕΣΙΣ.

Μαθὼν παρ' Ἡρακλέους Διόνυσος τὴν ὁδὸν πρὸς τοὺς κατciχομένους πορεύεται, λαβὼν
τὸ δέρμα καὶ τὸ σκύταλον, ἀνάγειν θέλων Εὐριπίδην· λίμνην τε διέβαινεν κάτω.
καὶ τῶν βατράχων ἀνέκραγεν εὖφημος χορός.
ἔπειτα μυστῶν ἐκδοχή. Πλούτων δ' ἰδὼν
ὥς Ἡρακλεῖ προσέκρουσε διὰ τὸν Κέρβερον.
ὥς δ' ἀνεφάνη, τίθεται τραγωδίας ἀγὼν
καὶ δὴ στεφανοῦταί γ' Αἰσχύλος. τοῦτον δ' ἄγει
Διόνυσος εἰς φῶς, οὐχὶ μὰ Δι' Εὐριπίδην.

ΑΛΛΩΣ.

Διόνυσός ἐστι μετὰ θεράποντος Ξαιθίου κατὰ Εὐριπίδου πόθον εἰς Ἄιδου κατιών· ἔχει δὲ λεοντὴν καὶ ρόπαλον πρὸς τὸ
τοῖς ἐντυγχάνουσιν ἐκπληξιν παρέχειν. ἐλθὼν δὲ ὡς τὸν Ἡρακλέα πρότερον, ἵνα ἐξετάσῃ τὰ κατὰ τὰς ὁδοὺς, ἧ καὶ αὐτὸς ἐπὶ τὸν Κέρβερον ὥχετο, καὶ ὀλίγα ἄλλα περὶ τῶν τραγικῶν
τούτῳ διαλεχθεὶς ὀρμᾶται πρὸς τὸ προκείμενον. ἐπεὶ δὲ πρὸς τῇ Ἀχερουσίᾳ λίμνῃ γίνεται, ὃ μὲν Ξανθίας, διὰ τὸ μὴ συννευμαχηκένοι τὴν περὶ Ἀργινούσας ναυμαχίαν, ὑπὸ τοῦ Χάρωνος οὐκ ἀναληφθεὶς περὶ τὴν λίμνην κύκλῳ πορεύεται. ὃ δὲ Διόνυσος δύο ὀβολῶν περαιοῦται, προσπαίζων ἅμα τοῖς κατὰ τὸν πόρον ᾄδουσι βατράχοις καὶ γελωτοποιῶν. μετὰ ταῦτα ἐν Ἄιδου τῶν πραγμάτων ἤδη χειριζομένων οἷ τε μύσται χορεύοντες ἐν τῷ προφανεί καὶ τὸν Ἰακχὸν ἄδοντες ἐν χοροῦ σχήματι καθορῶνται, ὃ τε Διόνυσος μετὰ τοῦ θεράποντος εἰς ταυτὸν ἔρχεται τούτοις. τῶν δὲ προηδικημένων ὑπὸ Ἡρακλέους προσπλεκομένων τῷ Διονύσῳ διὰ τὴν ἐκ τῆς σκευῆς ἄγνοιαν, μέχρι μὲν τινος οὐκ ἀγελοῖως χειμάζονται, εἶτα μέντοι γε ὡς τὸν Πλούτωνα καὶ τὴν Περσέφατταν παραχθέντες ἀλεωρῆς τυγχάνουσιν. ἐν δὲ τούτῳ ὁ μὲν τῶν μυστῶν χορὸς περὶ τοῦ τὴν πολιτείαν ἐξιῶσαι καὶ τοὺς ἀτίμους ἐντίμους ποιῆσαι χιτέρων τινῶν πρὸς τὴν Ἀθηναίων πόλιν διαλέγεται. τὰ δὲ λοιπὰ τοῦ δράματος μονόκωλα, ἄλλως δὲ τερπνὴν καὶ φιλόλογον λαμβάνει σύστασιν. παρεισάγεται γὰρ Εὐριπίδης Αἰσχύλῳ περὶ τῆς τραγικῆς διαφερόμενος, τὸ μὲν ἔμπροσθεν Αἰσχύλου παρὰ τῷ Αἰδῷ βραβεῖον ἔχοντος, τότε δὲ Εὐριπίδου τῆς τιμῆς καὶ τοῦ τραγωδικοῦ θρόνου ἀντιποιησαμένου. συστήσαντος δὲ τοῦ Πλούτωνος αὐτοῖς τὸν Διόνυσον διακούειν ἑκάτερος αὐτοῖν λόγους πολλοὺς καὶ ποικίλους ποιεῖται, καὶ τέλος πάντα ἔλεγχον καὶ πᾶσαν βάσανον οὐκ ἀπιθάνως ἑκατέρου κατὰ τῆς θατέρου ποιήσεως προσαγαγόντος, κρίνας παρὰ προσδοκίαν ὁ Διόνυσος Αἰσχύλον νικᾶν, ἔχων αὐτὸν ὡς τοὺς ζῶντας ἀνέρχεται.

Τὸ δὲ δράμα τῶν εὖ πάνυ καὶ φιλοπόνως πεποιημένων. ἐδιδάχθη ἐπὶ Καλλίου τοῦ μετὰ Ἀντιγένῃ διὰ Φιλωνίδου εἰς Ἀθήναια. πρῶτος ἦν Φρύνιχος δεύτερος Μούσαις Πλάτων τρίτος Κλεοφῶντι. οὕτω δὲ ἐθανυμάσθη τὸ δράμα διὰ τὴν ἐν αὐτῷ παράβασιν ὥστε καὶ ἀνεδιδάχθη, ὡς φησι Δικαίαιρχος· οὐ δεδήλωται μὲν ὅπου ἐστὶν ἡ σκηνή, εὐλογώτατον δ' ἐν Θήβαις· καὶ γὰρ ὁ Διόνυσος ἐκεῖθεν καὶ πρὸς τὸν Ἡρακλέα ἀφικνεῖται Θηβαῖον ὄντα.

NOTES.

1—37. Dionysus and Xanthias his slave are on their way to Hades. Dionysus, clad half like Hercules, half in woman's dress, is walking: Xanthias is riding an ass and carrying Dionysus' luggage. Xanthias, proposing to beguile the way with jokes, is forbidden to use any of the stale and degenerate wit of the stage. While arguing about Xanthias' hard case they reach the gate of Hercules' dwelling and knock.

1. εἴπω] The deliberative or interrogative subjunctive: 'am I to say?'

εἰωθότων] Aristophanes (Nub. 538, Pac. 739) takes credit to himself for avoiding the common-place jests to which Dionysus here so strongly objects. Instances where he himself uses the same are easily found (Eg. 998, Lys. 314). But they form a very small portion of the Aristophanic wit and humour, and one that could be spared: with the comedians whom he blames it may not have been so.

3. πιέξομαι] Say anything you like, except the word πιέξομαι. This and one or two other expressions of fatigue, pain, etc. Dionysus forbids.

4. φύλαξαι] Imperative middle, as the accent shows, and indeed the sense, 'beware of, guard against.' In the next clause the subject to ἐστι is τοῦτο (τὸ πιέξομαι): 'this word is absolutely gall and bitterness to me.' The opposite to this is the Horatian 'Hoc juvat et melli est.'

11. τί δῆτ' ἔδει] 'Why was I to carry all this baggage, if I mayn't ease myself by some of our common stage jokes?'

13. Φρύνιχος] All these three were contemporary comic writers. Phrynichus gained the second prize against the Frogs, Ameipsias was successful against the Clouds. Of Lycis we know nothing certain.

15. σκεύη κ.τ.λ.] This line can hardly be right as it stands. Porson proposed οἱ σκευοφοροῦσ', 'if I may not do anything which P. L. and A. do, who carry burdens in their comedy.' Bergk (followed by Paley) punctuates after ποιεῖν, making Λύκισ κάμειψίλας subject to the verb φέρουσι. Holden reads σκευηφόρους in apposition to and explanatory of μηδέν.

17. σοφισμάτων] Tricks and devices to raise a laugh.

18. πρεσβύτερος] The Scholiast quotes from Homer, Od. τ. 360, αἶψα γὰρ ἐν κακότητι βροτοὶ καταγηράσκουσιν, probably the earliest expression of this idea. Cf. Cic. de Or. II. 59, Senium est cum audio.

20. ἐρεῖ] As his neck is galled by the weight of the burden, which he carries slung over a porter's stick, he says that his neck is unhappy in not being able to relieve itself by speaking. There seems nothing beyond fair comic license in attributing the speech to the neck. Meineke, following Cobet, reads ἐρῶ. The change of person is then harsh and abrupt.

21. εἴτ' οὐχ ὕβρις] Dionysus is roused by Xanthias' complaints to prove that after all he is better off than he deserves. The 'insolence and conceit' are on Xanthias' part.

22. ὄτ'] ὄτε, not ὅτι, for the Attic writers never elide the final ι of ὅτι. Cf. Nub. 7, where the same caution is needed.

υἱὸς Σταυνίου] An unexpected substitute for Διός. 'Son of Jar' instead of 'Son of Jove.'

23. ὀχῶ] Cf. Xen. Hipparch. 4. 1, δεῖ τὸν ἵππαρχον προνοεῖν ὅπως ἀναπαύῃ τοὺς ἱππέας τοῦ βαδίζειν, μέτριον μὲν ὀχοῦντα, where ὀχεῖν is 'to cause to ride, to let ride.' On the principle of 'qui facit per alium facit per se,' the use is intelligible enough. The passive is used of the rider, as in l. 25.

24. ταλαιπωροῦτο] Irregular sequence after the present tenses, but it refers to Dionysus' past intention. 'I walk, my intention at the outset being that he might not, etc.' Indeed the present tenses βαδίζω, πονῶ, ὀχῶ embrace the whole past time of the journey: 'I have been all this time trudging afoot and toiling and letting him ride, that he might not be overworked.'

25. πῶς—ὀχεῖ] 'how can you carry if you are carried?' No very cogent argument.

26. ταυτί] X. points to the burden on his shoulder in proof that he is a carrier. D. rejoins, 'how, in what sense, can you be said to carry this?' X. mistaking the τίνα τρ. says 'how do I carry this? Why, very painfully.'

27. οὔνος] = ὁ ὄνος. Meineke reads ὄνος with Rav. ms. Fritzsche finds an additional joke in ὄνος, applying it to Xanthias. This seems needless: the discussion is merely whether, when a donkey carries a man, and a man a bundle, the donkey or the man more truly carries the bundle. But 'a donkey' would do about as well as 'the donkey.'

28. ἔχω γῶ] Meineke would prefer ἐγὼ γῶ. Hamaker rejects 26—29: on which M. remarks "if they were not there, no one would miss them, but this is not sufficient reason for condemning lines in themselves unobjectionable." A sensible remark; but does M. himself always act up to it?

30. οὐκ οἶδ'] X. gives up arguing the matter. Much in the same way, in Nub. 403, Strepsiades, puzzled and muddled by Socrates' philosophy, says οὐκ οἶδ'· ἀτὰρ εὖ σὺ λέγειν φαίνει. The whole argument is in ridicule of those who dealt in such quibbles.

33. ἐγὼ οὐκ] Cf. Vesp. 416 τοῦδ' ἐγὼ οὐ μεθήσομαι, Lib. 901 ἀλλ' ἀνατρέψω γὰρ αὐτ'.

ἐναυμάχουν] Had X. been present at the sea-fight of Arginusae, he would have received his liberty, and might then have snapped his fingers at his master. This battle was fought B.C. 406, in the year before the Frogs was played. Xenophon mentions the fact of slaves serving in the fleet there. Of their enfranchisement we read again below, l. 693.

34. κωκύειν ἐκ.] So in Latin jubeo plorare, 'I bid you go and be hanged.' The doubled an is not uncommon. Cf. Nub. 783, 840.

35. ἐγγὺς β. εἰμι] 'I am now, in my travel, near the gate.' εἰμι is not to be taken with βαδίζων. So in Eccl. 1093 ἐγγὺς ἦδη τῆς θύρας ἐλκόμενός εἰμι'.

38—164. Hercules himself answers the door. Dionysus tells him the reason of his visit: his wish to bring back Euripides. After some conversation about the Tragedians, he asks him of the ways to Hades, for which Hercules gives him directions.

38. κενταυρικῶς] A suitable comparison in the mouth of Hercules who fought with Centaurs.

39. ἐνήλαθ'] Cf. Soph. Oed. Tyr. 1260, where it is said of Oedipus in his frenzy δεινὸν δ' αὔσας... πύλαις διπλαῖς ἐνήλατ', ἐκ δὲ πυθμένων ἐκλινε κοῖλα κληῖθρα. The word is from ἐνάλλομαι. With ὅστις supply ἦν, 'whoever it was.'

εἰπέ μοι] Hercules then stops in amazement at Dionysus' strange appearance. The next two lines are aside between Dionysus and Xanthias, D. affecting to believe that Hercules stopped in fear of him.

41. νῆ Δία, μὴ] 'Yes, by Zeus, he was afraid, afraid, that is, you were crazy.' This is certainly the right rendering: and so the Scholiast: ὑπέλαβε σε μαίνεσθαι ὁ Ἡρακλῆς. Kock well compares Plut. 684 ταλάντατ' ἀνδρῶν, οὐκ ἐδεδοίκεις τὸν θεόν; K. νῆ τοὺς θεοὺς ἔγωγε μὴ φθάσειέ με ἐπὶ τὴν χύτρον ἐλθόν.

45. ἀποσοβῆσαι] A curious use of the word. In Eg. 60, Vesp. 460, it has its proper sense 'to scare away,' as birds from corn-fields. Hercules' ἀσβεστος γέλως persistently returns despite his efforts, as birds or flies might do: hence the application of ἀποσοβῆσαι.

46. κροκωτῶ] A woman's dress. Cf. Lysistr. 44 γυναῖκες κροκωτὰ φέρουσαι.

47. ὁ νοῦς] 'The meaning' of this compound of hero and woman. The κόθορνος is in Lysistr. 657 and Eccl. 346 a woman's shoe; but was also special to Dionysus. In Thesm. 140 Mitchell notes astonishment at a similar combination, τίς δαὲ κατόπτρου καὶ ξίφους κοινωνία;

48. ποῖ γῆς κ.τ.λ.] Hercules asks whither D. was bound in such strange guise. D. explains that while on ship-board he was suddenly seized with a longing to recover Euripides.

ἐπεβάτευον]=ἐπιβάτης ἦν, 'I was serving as marine.' Κλεισθένης, 'for Cleisthenes,' under Cleisthenes as trierarch. In Eg. 1374 Cleis-thenes is an effeminate youth. If the same man be meant here, Dionysus' boast of his naval exploits with him is all the more absurd. The dative is rendered by some 'on board the Cleisthenes,' as put παρὰ προσδοκίαν for the name of the ship.

49. κάνανυμάχης] i.e. at Arginusae.

51. σφῶ] 'You two?' You and Cleisthenes: a pair of cowards. καῖτ'...έξ.] 'I awoke and behold it was a dream:' in contempt of Dionysus' romancing. Perhaps the words are better in Xanthias' mouth, as Fritzsche and Kock give them. D. does not remark the sneer, but goes on with his explanation.

53. Ἀνδρομέδαν] A play of Euripides, acted B.C. 412. But Paley thinks the ship was named Andromeda, and that Dionysus 'read the name Andromeda on the ship's side.' This would suggest Euripides' plays, and stir up a desire for the poet. The question is, how far was reading of books usual at that time? And Dionysus, the patron god of the drama, might be supposed to read plays, if any one did. Altogether the usual interpretation seems the better one.

54. πῶς οἶει σφόδρα] Cf. Nub. 881 βατράχους ἐποίηι πῶς δοκεῖς. 'You can't think how strongly' is the sense: all interrogative force being lost in this colloquial use.

55. Μόλων] An actor of Euripides' plays, and of great stature: it is a surprise to put Molon after μικρός. Some however say that there was another Molon, a small man, and a robber.

62. ἔτνους] Hercules' greediness leads D. to explain his desire by comparing it to a craving for pea-soup (ἔτνος), a favourite food of athletes.

64. ἐκδιδάσκω] Indic. 'am I making my meaning clear?' This half-line is said to be from Euripides.

66. δαρδάπτει] Used also in Nub. 711: it is an Homeric word, proper of wild beasts, but used metaphorically in Od. ξ. 92.

67. καὶ ταῦτα] Hercules throws in this question in wonder: D. continues, 'Yes, and no one shall dissuade me.'

69. ἐπ' ἐκείνον] 'after him, to fetch him,' as below ll. 111, 577. ἐκείνος expresses a person remote, esp. one in the other world. Cf. ἐκεῖ in l. 82.

70. κατωτέρω] D. is ready to go to Hades below, and even to any region below that below. There seems no special idea of Tartarus in his mind, though that is below Hades. He is merely expressing strongly that he will go anywhere to recover Euripides.

72. οἱ μὲν κ.τ.λ.] A line from the Oeneus of Euripides.

73. Ἰοφῶν] Son of Sophocles, a tragic poet of some merit, but suspected of being helped by his father, or of bringing out his late father's tragedies as his own.

74. εἰ καὶ τοῦτ' ἄρα] 'if after all even this is a good thing:' perhaps after all it is a deceptive good, Iophon being not worth much really. ἄρα throws doubt on what goes before.

76—79. If the son won't content you, and you must have one of the original three, why not Sophocles? Because Iophon may possibly replace Sophocles.

76. πρότερον] 'better' rather than 'older.'

79. κωδωνίσσω] A metaphor from a bell or other metal, coins especially, tested by the sound. Cf. Demosth. 19. 167 ἐκεῖνος ἡμᾶς διεκωδώνιζεν ἅπαντας. Cf. below, l. 723. Also Lysistr. 485 ἀκωδώνιστον ἔαν πράγμα, 'to leave a matter untried, unproved.'

80—2. Besides Sophocles will be too contented and orderly to break rules and run away.

83. Ἀγάθων] A wealthy Athenian, of great beauty, at whose house Plato has laid the scene of his Symposium. As a poet he appears to be commended here: in Thesm. 100—130 we have probably some fragments of his lyrics. His style was marked by flowery ornament and antithesis. He was a luxurious liver, and passed some time at the court of Archelaus, king of Macedonia. The date of his death is uncertain: some think he was dead before the Frogs was played, some that he lived a few years later.

85. ἐς μακάρων εὐωχίαν] We should expect νήσους or εὐδαιμονίαν, for which εὐωχίαν is substituted, to suit Agathon's character. But the line is not decisive as to the date of his death. For if he left Athens for Archelaus' court, and lived there in luxury with no intent to return, he might be suitably spoken of as 'gone away to the happy banqueting boards.' Might there not also lurk in μακάρων a slight suggestion of Μακεδόνων? As a parody on the happy islands of the blessed dead, μ. εὐωχία would suit the heaven of Scandinavian mythology even better than that of Greece.

86. Ξενοκλῆς] This poet, with his brothers and Carcinus their father, is repeatedly ridiculed by Aristophanes. Cf. Pac. 781—95, Nub. 1261, Vesp. 1500—14.

87. Πυθαγόρεος] Of him nothing is known. Meineke leaves here a space for an answer of Dionysus. But silence with a contemptuous gesture is enough. And Xanthias breaks in impatiently.

91. σταδίῳ] Cf. Nub. 430 τῶν Ἑλλήνων εἶναι με λέγειν ἑκατὸν σταδίοισιν ἄριστον.

92. ἐπιφυλλίδες] 'mere leaf-growth, rank luxuriant leaves.' The word is explained οἱ καλούμενοι ἐπίτραγοι, 'the wasteful shoots of a vine,' which the dresser prunes, in order that the productive force may go into fruit-bearing. Thus Kock explains the word, following Fritzsche nearly. 'These wretched poets, with mere chatter and no force or sense, are as vines rank and luxuriant in leafage but not productive (γόνιμοι) in fruit.' Fritzsche renders 'üppiges Weinlaub ohne Trauben.' Kock 'geile Ranken und Blätter.' The derivation of ἐπιφυλλίς supports this meaning. L. and S. however, and most commentators, have taken ἐπιφυλλίδες to mean 'small grapes left for gleaners,' in which sense the Septuagint has it in Judg. viii. 2: 'small grapes that do not ripen.' Sound without sense is more aptly figured by 'leaf without fruit,' than by 'mere gleanings, imperfect grapes.'

93. χ. μουσεῖα] A neat adaptation from Euripides, who had spoken of a leafy bower as χελιδόνων μουσεῖον. The swallow is constantly the type of barbarous and meaningless chatter: as is the nightingale of song.

94. χορὸν λ.] ‘To obtain a chorus’ is the regular phrase for ‘to be allowed to perform a play.’ So we find also αἰτεῖν χορὸν, Eg. 513. If once these sorry poets exhibit, their power is all spent.

99. παρακ.] ‘boldly-hazarded.’

100. Διὸς δ.] Euripides in the Melanippe wrote δμνυμι δ’ ἱρὸν αἰθέρ’ οἴκησιν Διὸς, quoted in Thesm. 272. The change to δωμάτιον makes E. dare more than may become a poet. χρόνον πόδα is in Eur. Bacch. 888, and in the Alexandrius.

101. ἢ φρένα κ.τ.λ.] A paraphrase of the well-known line in Eur. Hipp. 612 ἢ γλῶσσο’ δμώμοχ’, ἢ δὲ φρήν ἀνώμοτος. It is again referred to below, l. 1471, and Thesm. 275.

καθ’ ἱερῶν] ‘over the victims.’ Cf. Thuc. v. 47 δμνύντων κατὰ ἱερῶν τελείων, and Eg. 660 κατὰ χιλίων εὐχὴν ποιήσασθαι χιμάρων.

102. ἐπιорκήσασαν] There is no reason to take this word out of its usual sense, ‘forsworn,’ as some do, translating ‘linguam quae juravit.’ For if the mind did not swear and the tongue did, the tongue would have sworn an oath meant to be broken, and this is ἐπιорκεῖν.

103. μᾶλλὰ] μὴ ἄλλὰ, a frequent combination in Aristophanes: ‘do not say so, but.’ It is corrective here of the word ἀρέσκει: ‘Don’t say “please me,” why I’m more than mad with delight at them.’ Comp. below ll. 611, 745, 751, where the force is just the same: in each passage some word too weak and inadequate to the occasion is corrected.

104. καὶ σοὶ] You too, though you profess to like them, must really think these phrases vulgar tricks to catch the public.

105. οἶκει] Every one has a right to dwell in and manage his own house: cf. Eur. I. A. τὸν ἐμὸν οἶκόν οἶκον οὐκ ἑάσομαι; Androm. 581 ἢ τὸν ἀμὸν οἶκον οἰκήσεις: and Euripides had used the phrase μὴ τὸν ἐμὸν οἶκει νοῦν, as the Scholiast tells us. ‘Don’t take on yourself to arrange what I am to think,’ Dionysus means: Hercules’ province is not criticism of poetry but of eating: there he is ‘at home.’

108. ὦνπερ] Neuter, ‘the objects for which I came:’ and in strict regularity it should have been followed by ταῦτα φράσον μοι, but this is changed to τούτους by the nearer noun ξένους. ‘What I came for...that you might tell me of your hosts; of these tell me.’

111. ἐχρῶ] ἐχράου. Most texts have ἐχρω: but older editions ἐχρῶ: which seems correct according to rules of accentuation.

113. ἀναπαύλας] Plato (Legg. 625 B) speaks of ‘shady resting-places by the way among lofty trees.’ ἐκτροπας, ‘turnings, places where the road branches.’ L. and S. say ‘a place to which one turns,’ a resting-place, inn. The Latin ‘deverticulum’ appears to have both meanings, but the one first given best suits this passage.

114. διαίτας] 'lodgings, rooms:' in private houses perhaps: distinguished apparently from inns open to all (πανδοκεία), which were at that time often kept by women.

116. καὶ σύ γε] 'Yes, I shall go; and speak you no more on this head, but tell me the best way.' Join τῶν ὁδῶν with ὅπῃ 'by which of the ways.' Comp. ποῖ γῆς, ποῖ γῆς. Fritzsche, reading ὅπως, alters the rest to νῶν ὁδῶν.

121. ἀπὸ κάλω κ. θ.] 'by rope and bench.' This might, as Fritzsche and Kock say, first suggest a way by sea, by towing and rowing: then κρεμάσαντι σαυτὸν 'if you hang yourself' changes the whole sense, the tow-rope becoming the halter, the oarsman's bench the bench or stool on which the man climbs to hang himself, kicking it away (as the Scholiast says) when the noose is fixed. This way D. rejects 'as stifling:' he had stipulated for a way 'not too hot.'

123. ξύντομος τετριμμένη] 'a short cut well-beaten' in a double sense, the path being well trodden, the hemlock well pounded, and also cut up small.

125. ψυχράν γε] Too cold is this way. The chilling effects of hemlock are described by Plato in relating the death of Socrates: ἔπειτα σφόδρα πιέσας αὐτοῦ τὸν πόδα ἤρετο εἰ αἰσθάνοιτο, ὃ δ' οὐκ ἔφη· καὶ μετὰ τοῦτο αὖθις τὰς κνήμας· καὶ ἐπανιών οὕτως ἡμῖν ἐπεδείκνυτο ὅτι ψύχοιτό τε καὶ πῆγνυτο. Phaed. 117 E.

128. δυντός] Suppl. ἐμοῦ, 'since I am a poor walker.' D. is fat and pury: cf. l. 200.

129. Κεραμεικόν] The outer Ceramicus is meant, through which the course lay. D. is to watch for the start, and then start himself down from the tower.

130. τὸν πύργον] Called Timon's tower: it was near the starting-point of the race.

131. ἀφιεμένην] The order is θεῶ ἐντεῦθεν ἀφ. τὴν λ. 'look thence at the starting of the torch-race.' When the spectators impatiently call upon the starter to start (εἶναι) the competitors, then D. is to start himself on his downward way.

133. εἶναι] Imperative in sense. This aorist is far commoner in compounds (ἀφείναι, καθεῖναι etc.) than in the simple verb.

134. ἐγκ. θρίῳ] In Aristophanes θρίον is a ball of meat wrapped in a fig-leaf: we have τὰρίχους θρίον Ach. 1101, δημοῦ θρίον Eg. 954. Here D. comically speaks of his brains as 'two brain rissoles or puddings.' 'Zwei Klösse Gehirn' Kock. Indeed it appears from Eustathius and Schol. on Eg. 954 that θρία ἐγκεφάλου were an actual dish.

139. τυννουτῶ] 'only so big,' showing its size. Hercules wants to frighten D.

140. δύο ὀβολῶ] Charon's fee is generally put at one obol. Ar. perhaps doubled it that it might be the same as the dicast's fee, or the ecclesiast's fee, or the θεωρικόν: which last however appears to have varied.

142. Θησεύς] As an Attic hero, Theseus introduced the Attic use, when he visited Hades to carry off Persephone.

145. βόρβορον] Cf. Plat. Phaed. 69 C ὃς ἂν ἀμύητος καὶ ἀτέλεστος εἰς Αἴδου ἀφίκηται, ἐν βορβόρῳ κέσεται.

151. ἡ Μορσίμου τις] ἡ εἰ Meineke proposes: Cobet ῥῆσιν τιν' for τις ῥῆσιν: they think the repetition of τις awkward. After mentioning heinous moral crimes, which Aeschylus, Virgil, and others have spoken of as meeting retribution in the nether world, he ridiculously adds as a crime the copying out a speech from the bad poet Morsimus: for whom see Eg. 401, Pac. 801.

153. Κινησίου] A dithyrambic poet ridiculed in the Birds l. 1383—1409: he had written the accompanying music or song to the weapon-dance.

154. ἐντεῖθεν] From the torments of the wicked H. passes to the joys of the initiated. These are described by Pindar, in a fragment of his Threni.

155. ἐνθάδε] 'here' on the upper earth; because in the world below the light was generally dim. Cf. Virg. Aen. vi. Largior hic campos aether et lumine vestit purpureo.

159. ὄνος ἄγων μυστήρια] παροιμία ἐπὶ τῶν ἐτέροις κακοπαθούτων. Photius. As ἄγειν Διονύσια, θεσμοφόρια means 'to celebrate the Dionysia, Thesmophoria,' so ἄγειν μυστήρια 'to celebrate the mysteries.' The ass celebrated them by carrying the baggage of the multitude who went out to Eleusis from Athens: thus he had the trouble, they the holiday. And so, while Dionysus and Hercules are amusing themselves, Xanthias is labouring under his burden. There is no reason for supposing that ἄγειν μ. can mean φέρειν τὰ τῶν μυστῶν ἱερά, 'to carry the mystic vessels.' Xanthias takes up the word μεμνημένοι: 'Initiated mystics! it's I who in truth take the donkey's usual part in the mysteries: all the work: none of the play.' Therewith he throws down his burden: which however he soon has to resume.

160. ταῦτα] the burden which X. carries.

165. ὑγλαίνε] Used at parting as in Ecc. 477, ἀλλ' εἴμι· σὺ δ' ὑγλαίνε.

165—270. After parting from Hercules, Dionysus and Xanthias go on to find the lake; having vainly tried to make a bargain with a corpse to relieve X. as porter. They find the lake and Charon, who takes D. on board, refusing X.; they cross the lake escorted by the frog chorus.

168. ἐπὶ τοῦτ'] sc. ἐπὶ τὸ ἐκφέρεισθαι 'to be buried.'

169. ἔμ' ἄγειν] 'take me.' So Bergk and Paley, for vulg. τότε μ' ἄγειν.

172. σκευάρι] 'some light luggage;' rather depreciating its weight.

174. ὑπάγεθ' ὑμεῖς] 'Move forward on your way, you bearers.' The dead man scorns to bargain, and is in a hurry to get on; and in spite of Dionysus' ἀνάμεινον will not come to terms. Others (less well) take ὑπ. ὑμ. to be addressed to D. and X., 'move out of the way.'

177. ἀναβίβην] an amusing inversion of ἀπολοίμην well suited to a dead man.

178. ὡς σεμνὸς ὁ κ.] 'What airs the wretch gives himself!' Cf. Plut. 275 ὡς σεμνὸς οὐπίτριπτος.

180. ὥπ] κέλυσμα καταπαῦον τὴν κωπηλασίαν, Schol. παραβαλοῦ 'lay the boat alongside the land.' So below, l. 269. In Eg. 762 it is of laying one boat alongside another. Charon seems here to be addressing one who helps in the rowing. Why then, asks Kock, does he make Dionysus row? Chiefly that D. may raise a laugh by his clumsiness. Kock suggests that Charon may be landing a passenger on the far shore of the lake, whom he makes row, as afterwards he makes D. row: that he is not visible till he returns to the near shore. The supposed extent of the lake (λίμνη μεγάλη πάνυ) is against this: the whole scene is on the hither shore of it. And granting Charon to have a rower under him, Dionysus' extra weight might necessitate extra rowing.

181. τοῦτο;] The old reading τοῦτο λίμνη νῆ Δία αὕτη 'στιν was corrected by Dobree, whom most editors have followed. Perhaps another correction would be admissible: τοῦτο λίμνη νῆ Δ. αὐτή 'στιν 'this is the very lake he mentioned.' With Dobree's correction the passage runs: X. 'What is this?' D. 'This? Why, this is the lake.'

184. χαῖρ' ὦ X.] Said to be from a play of Achaëus. The Scholiast suggests that the triple greeting should be divided between Dionysus, Xanthias, and the dead man who has refused to be porter. It is very unlikely that the dead man comes on again: and Dionysus' thrice repeated 'Hail!' (esp. as it suits the metre) needs no abstruse reason.

186. ὄνου πόκας] 'Donkey's Woolton,' an imaginary town, because to shear an ass (ὄνον κείρειν) was a proverb for an impossibility.

187. Κερβερίους] Parodied from the Κιμμέριοι, with reference to Cerberus. The Cimmerians dwelt in outlandish darkness, none could say where: so they are localized in Hades. And so of 'the crows.' Taenarus was the south promontory of Laconia, where was fabled to be an entrance to Hades: 'Taenarias fauces, alta ostia Ditis' Virg. Meineke objects that Taenarus is not in Hades: he reads Τάρταρον. He also reads ὄκνον πλοκάς in the line before. There appears to have been a picture by Polygnotus (Paus. 10. 29. 2), called ὄκνος, of a man twisting a rope which a she-ass gnaws to pieces again: an emblem of labour in vain. But how should the words be rendered here? what is the sense of 'the twistings of delay,' or 'Ocnus' rope,' as applied to the shades below?

188. σχήσειν] Nautical use, as in Thuc. II. 25 σχόντες ἐς Φειάν ἐδήουν τὴν γῆν. The compounds κατασχέιν, προσσχέιν in this sense 'appellere' are also of frequent use.

189. σοῦ γ' οὐνεκα] 'just for your sake;' you deserve no better landing-place.

191. τὴν περὶ τῶν κρεῶν] Of the whole passage the sense plainly is this: 'I ferry over no slave, unless he has fought in the battle of Arginusae and so won his freedom.' It is also plain that τὴν περὶ τῶν κρεῶν is simply to define the ναυμαχία in which the slave must have taken part. The explanation generally accepted is this. The Greeks have a proverb τὸν περὶ ψυχῆς δραμεῖν 'to run for very life;' and also a more vulgar form ὁ λαγῶς τὸν περὶ τῶν κρεῶν τρέχει. Hence a contest for very life may be more rudely termed περὶ τῶν κρεῶν 'for body and bones.' Such was the fight at Arginusae, on which the very existence of the Athenian State depended. But though of momentous issue, Arginusae was not more a struggle for life and body than many other battles: this does not seem a good definition of it: especially to an Athenian, as the Athenians won a signal victory. The better explanation seems to be that τὴν περὶ τῶν κρεῶν refers to the distinctive fact about Arginusae, the failure to save the wrecks and their crews, for which the generals were impeached and condemned. Charon calls the sea-fight 'the one about the carcasses;' where such a stir was made about picking up the crews, whom Charon contemptuously speaks of as κρεῶν. Perhaps a sneer is intended at the Athenians for thinking so much of this, and so little of the main issue of the battle. Brunck thus explains the passage, and part of the Scholiast's note seems to favour this view, though it is not clearly worded.

192. οὐ γὰρ ἀλλ'] 'for indeed' is about the force of this combination. Cf. Eg. 1205, Nub. 232, and below ll. 498, 1180. It may be explained 'not something else, or anything else, but,' which is plainly equivalent to an emphatic assertion of the special fact.

194. Αὑαίνου] 'the stone of withering:' because the dead are dry and withered. The Scholiast says there was a stone so named at Athens. If so, probably it was named after some person, but is adopted here with reference to the meaning.

196. μανθάνω] X. quite understands that, as before, he is to have all the trouble, and wonders what evil token met him as he started, to bring on him such a train of misfortune.

199. ἕζω' πὶ κώπην] D. sits on the oar instead of 'to the oar, ready for rowing.' Charon gives him exact directions. Most editors adopt οὔπερ from MSS. Rav. and Ven. for οἵπερ. Either reading is unobjectionable.

202. ἔχων] adds a notion of continuance, 'don't go on playing the fool, but row.' Cf. Nub. 131, 509, τί ταῦτ' ἔχων στραγγεύομαι; τί κυπτάξεις ἔχων; ἀντιβᾶς] 'pressing your foot against the foot-board or stretcher.'

204. ἀπ. ἀθ. ἀσ.] 'Unskilled, untried at sea or Salamis:' the last word may be either 'no Salaminian'=no native of Salamis, they being good sailors; or 'no sailor such as fought at Salamis.'

207. βατράχων κ.] Probably in apposition, 'swan-frogs' or 'frog-swans:' i.e. frogs musical as swans. Meineke adopts Bothe's compound βατραχοκύκνων. This seems needless. Indeed βατράχων κύκνων might be 'frogs and swans,' as ἀνδρῶν γυναικῶν above in l. 157 'men and women.' Charon gives the time (κατακελεύει), and the frogs take up the chant.

209. βρεκεκεξ κ.τ.λ.] The frogs, though a secondary Chorus—for the true Chorus are the Mystae—have given their name to the play. During their song, which is to give time to the rowers, and probably becomes quicker and quicker, driving poor Dionysus to desperation, the boat crosses to the opposite shore. The frogs are not visible, acc. to the Scholiast: they may have been so, being either actors dressed up, or dummy figures, while their croaking was made by persons concealed, as Paley suggests.

212. ξύναυλον] Cf. Eur. El. 879 ἔτω ξύναυλος βοά. A flute accompanied the chant of the frogs. The gist of the first strain is 'Sing we here in the nether marsh that song which erst we sang in praise of Dionysus at his festival in the marshes.' λαχίσταμεν is aorist in the simplest sense, the frogs below being the ghosts of frogs above. Kock suggests χωροῖ for χωρεῖ in l. 219, but that seems unnecessary.

215. Νυσήιον] Nysa was the fabled home of the infant Dionysus: it is variously placed in Greece, Arabia, Aethiopia, India.

217. Λίμναισιν] Dionysus' oldest and holiest temple was in the district called Λίμναι, south of Athens: it was called the Lenaeon. Demosthenes (1371) tells us that it was opened once a year, on the 12th of Anthesterion. Cf. Thuc. II. 15. There were three days of the festival, Πιθοιγία, Χόες, Χύτροι. Cf. Smith Dict. Ant. under Dionysia.

218. κρ. ὄχλος] 'the revel rout with splitting heads' from yesterday's drinking at the Χόες.

219. ἐμόν] The marshes are the frogs' special demesne, particularly in spring when they begin to croak.

226. αὐτῷ κοάξ] 'coax and all:' a construction commoner with plurals. See note on Vesp. 170.

227. ἐστ'] 'you are nothing else but coax:' cf. Av. 19 τῷ δ' οὐκ ἄρ' ἦσταιν οὐδέν ἄλλο πλὴν δάκνειν, and Lys. 139 οὐδέν γὰρ ἐσμεν πλὴν Ποσειδῶν καὶ σκάφη. Meineke edits here ἄλλ': which seems more correct, especially where it is the nominative case and predicate in a sentence.

229. ἐμέ γὰρ κ.τ.λ.] Of course I sing; for the Muses, Pan, and Apollo, love my song, and I shall not stop it for your meddlesome objections. The frogs do not recognize the god in Dionysus: even Aeacus does not do so: it needs a brother god Pluto. Cf. l. 670.

230. κροβάδας] Three explanations are given. (1) 'that treads the mountain peaks:' cf. Nub. 597 ὑψικέρατα πέτραι; compare also such names as Matterhorn, Schreckhorn. (2) 'horn-footed'=goat-footed, supported by Homer's hymn to Pan l. 2, αἰγιόδην δικέρωτα, φιλόκροτον. (3) 'the horned walker or dancer:' the emphasis being on the first part of the compound, as in Soph. O. C. 718 ἑκατομπόδων Ἰηρήδων is probably 'the hundred dancing Nereids.' And Homer's δικέρωτα might be quoted to support this, horns being the characteristic of Pan. All three interpretations are mentioned by the Scholiast.

καλαμόθογγα π.] 'who draws merry music from his reed.' 'Pan primus calamos cera conjungere plures instituit.' Virg.

233. δόνακος] The reed was used of old in place of horn. And the horn, or tortoise-shell, was a kind of sounding-board to the lyre. 'In fidibus testudine resonatur aut cornu.' Cic. N. D. 2. 57. 144. Homer (Hymn to Hermes 47) describes the making of the first lyre: πῆξε δ' ἄρ' ἐν μέτροισι ταμῶν δόνακας καλάμοιο πειρήνας διὰ νῶτα διὰ ῥινοῖο χελώνης. ἀμφὶ δὲ δέρμα τάνυσσε βοός πραπίδεςσιν ἐῆσι, καὶ πῆχεις ἐνέθηκ', ἐπὶ δὲ ζύγον ἥραρεν ἀμφοῖν· ἐπτα δὲ συμφώνους ὄτων ἐτανύσσατο χορδὰς. Plainly both shell and δόναξ form the back or sounding-board of this lyre, for the arms, or sides, and the cross-piece, or bridge, are distinctly mentioned afterwards. The union of δόνακας καλάμοιο 'reed-stalks' shows that these two words need not be distinguished, as some have fancied. The fragment of Sophocles: ὑφηρέθη σου κάλαμος ὥσπερ εἰ λύρας 'the reed sounding-board, as it were, of your lyre is removed' = you are as weak as a lyre without a sounding-board' is aptly quoted by Fritzsche. Hence δ. ὑπολύριος is certainly 'the reed that backs the lyre,' that forms the sounding-board. And Hesychius has Κάλαμος: τὸ ὑποτιθέμενον τῇ λύρᾳ ἡχείων.

241—9. We will sing now, if ever we did in weather fine or wet.

245. πολυκολύμβοισι μ.] 'strains of song broken by many a dive;' a sort of accompaniment of 'flop' going on at intervals, as the frogs plunge down.

247. χορεῖαν] 'choric song accompanying our dance,

249. πομφ.] 'with bursting bubbles' seething sounds:' a word untransferable to our tongue.

250—2. Dionysus mimics their croak, as below, l. 262, τὸ λέγειν βρεκεκεκέξ παρ' ὑμῶν ἔμαθον. Schol.

253. τᾶρα]=τοι ἄρα. Cf. Ach. 323 δεινὰ τᾶρα πείσομαι.

257. D. pretends indifference, dismissing them with a curse.

260. χανδάνῃ] Cf. Hom. Il. λ. 462 ἦϋσεν ὅσον κεφαλῇ χάδε φωτός, 'he shouted with all the voice-power of mortal head.'

265. δέῃ] Pronounced as one syllable: so in Plut. 216 κᾶν δέῃ μ' ἀποθανεῖν. Some write it δῆ.

268. ξμελλον ἄρα] 'I was destined after all...' = I thought I should do it at last. In Ach. 347, Nub. 1301, Vesp. 460 the same combination is used, but with ἄρα. The infin. is future inf. in every place but Ach. 347.

271—322. Dionysus hails Xanthias, who has made his way round to the landing-place. They advance through the dim light, D. being terrified by strange sounds and sights. When clear of these they hear the strains of an approaching Chorus, which proves to be the Mystae.

271. ἦ Ξανθίας] 'Is it Xanthias? is Xanthias there?' Some read Ξανθία: then ἦ is an exclamation, 'Hi! Xanthias.'

272. λαῶ] X. shouts to be heard, because it is so dark that they cannot see well.

273. τάντανθί] 'where you are or have been.'

275. ἔλεγεν] sc. Ἡρακλῆς. See above, ll. 145—51.

276. νῆ τὸν Π.] As X. has seen them, D., not to be outdone, has seen them too: and then turns to the spectators: as in Nub. 1096, Vesp. 73.

281. εἰδὼς κ.τ.λ.] Knowing my prowess (says D.) Hercules wanted to frighten me by exaggerations, lest I should encounter and overcome these monsters, he wanting to keep all the honour of such deeds to himself. The next line is parodied from Euripides Philoct. οὐδέν γὰρ οὕτω γαῦρον ὥς ἀνὴρ ἔφν.

284. ἀγώνισμ' ἄξ.] Some deed of high emprise to match our travel.

285. νῆ τὸν Δία· καὶ μὴν] 'By Zeus, yes. And hark! I hear a noise.' X. affects to assent to his master's wish for adventure, and invents a monster. It is strange that all the older editors except Fritzsche should have removed the stop after Δία. The instances given by Kock of νῆ τὸν Δία placed (as he thinks) too early in the sentence are little to the point: in all of them (Nub. 652, Vesp. 217, Lys. 609) the words can be translated naturally in their actual order; and the asseveration in two of them refers to what goes before. καὶ μὴν constantly introduces some new person, seen or heard. So in l. 288, where X. first sees the creature.

293. Ἑμπούσα] A spectre supposed to be sent by Hecate to scare travellers in the gloom, a monster of Protean variability.

294. σκέλος χ.] D. suggests 'and it has a brazen leg'—perhaps from some popular notion about the Empusa. X. accepts this, and gives it another of absurd material.

297. ἱερεῦ] He looks to the priest of Dionysus, who had a conspicuous seat in the theatre, and was, we may suppose, a wine-bibber, and of ruddy complexion. He is again referred to in l. 308.

298. Ἡράκλεις] He appeals to Hercules the deliverer (ἀλεξίκακος): and D. was dressed like Hercules. But D. does not want to be recognized as H., thinking that this may bring him into trouble; as indeed it does afterwards.

καλεῖς] Future tense.

301. ἴθ' ἥπερ ἔ.] To the Empusa, whom he supposes to pass on. Then turning to D. δεῦρο, δεῦρ'. So Mitchell explains: and certainly ἴθι, 'go on thy way,' does not suit with δεῦρο, 'come hither,' addressed to Dionysus. Unless there is a distinct interval: 'Go your way for a coward as you are,' contemptuously to D. who is flying: then, after a while, thinking the joke has gone far enough, 'Master, come back, we're all safe.' Without stage directions, points like this must remain doubtful.

303. Ἡγέλοχος] Hegelochus was acting Orestes in Euripides' play of that name. In speaking l. 279, which is here quoted, he so pronounced γαλήν' ὁρῶ as not to mark the elision, but make it γαλήν ὁρῶ, 'I see a cat,' in place of 'I see a calm.' This mistake became quite famous, and was ridiculed in several comic passages noticed in the Scholiast. In the line, as given here, editions vary: the older have γαλήν', Fritzsche, Meineke, and Kock γαλήν. Fritzsche argues that Xanthias says, 'we may now say as H. did, for after a storm I see a cat.' H. did not say 'after a storm I see a calm.' But the supporters of γαλήν' may reason thus: Xanthias says, 'We may now speak as H. did; for after the storm I (Xanthias) see a calm.' Xanthias might say 'we may speak the line which Hegelochus spoke,' or even 'as Hegelochus spoke it;' and yet he, Xanthias, might then apply it as Euripides wrote it. In fact the gist of the whole is, 'We may apply to our case Euripides' line which Hegelochus spoke so absurdly.'

308. ὁδὶ] 'This priest of yours' blushed with sympathetic fear or shame for you.

311. αἰθέρα κ.τ.λ.] 'Is it Aether or Chronos?' Euripides' deities; see above, l. 100. Some give the line to Xanthias, spoken sarcastically.

314. εἰσέπνευσε] 'Yes I heard the breath of flutes, and also a breath of fragrance from torches reached me.' The flame would be perfumed by incense. Cf. below, l. 338, ὡς ἡδύ μοι προσέπνευσε χοιρέων κρεῶν.

318. ἐκεῖν] That which Hercules had told them, ll. 154—7.

320. ὄνπερ Διαγόρας] ᾧδεῖ is the natural word to supply. But as Diagoras of Melos was a despiser of the gods, some have supposed that there were two persons of the name, one a dithyrambic poet. It is also possible that the Melian Diagoras in his early life wrote odes to Iacchus. For this Diagoras cf. Av. 1071. ᾧδεῖν τὸν Ἰακχόν, 'to sing the Iacchus hymn,' as ᾧδεῖν τὸν Ἀρμόδιον, 'to sing the Harmodius lay.'

324—413. While D. and X. are standing aside, the Chorus enter: they call on Iacchus to lead the dance with flaming firebrand, and welcome his appearance (strophe 324—336, antistrophe 340—353). Then, in the anapaests (354—371), they make proclamation that all tasteless, quarrelsome, traitorous persons get them gone. They then encourage themselves to sport and mirth, calling upon the saving Persephone, on Demeter, and again more fully on Iacchus. Without doubt this whole interlude is an imitation of the procession and ceremonies of the Eleusinian mysteries: especially of the sixth day, when the statue of Iacchus, with myrtle garland and bearing a torch, was carried from Athens to Eleusis with shout and song. At the bridge over the Cephissus jests and ridicule of the passers-by were customary: called γεφυρισμός: imitated ll. 416—30. For particulars of the Eleusinia see Smith, Dict. Ant.

The Eleusinian procession had been discontinued since the occupation of Decelea by the enemy: the mystic treasures had been carried by sea. Only in the year 407, under a strong military escort led by Alcibiades, was it renewed for once. Hence this exhibition of some of its ceremonies in the under-world would be attractive to the Athenians.

324. πολυτίμητ'] πολυτίμοις Herm., Fri., Mein., Kock. The ms. πολυτιμήτοις needed correction. The frequent use of the vocative πολυτίμητε, cf. ll. 337, 397, in addressing a god makes for Dindorf's reading. Iacchus, son of Demeter, must not be identified with Dionysus, son of Semele: they are quite distinct.

329. βρύοντα στ. μύρτων] 'berry-laden myrtle-wreath.' μ. genit. from μύρτον the fruit.

334. τιμάν] 'service,' i.e. dance in honour of a deity: cf. below, 348. But the apposition of this word to χορείαν and its connexion with ἐγκατακρούων is harsh. Hamaker proposed πομπάν, Kock edits τ' ἐμάν here, and φλέγων in l. 350. For the sense τ' ἐμάν is not very good. There are a few other verbal differences in the texts at the close of this strophe, but not important to the sense. With Dindorf's readings it runs, 'beating with bold foot the free and sportive measure, abounding in graces, even the chaste sacred dance for the holy mystae.' The dative may be because Iacchus is called on to lead the dance, to give the time, as it were, for them. Or (Schol.) ἐν from ἐγκατακρούων, 'among the holy mystae.' Or with ἱεράν, 'held sacred by the mystae' (Paley).

338. χοιρείων κρεῶν] The customary victims at the mystic rites. Cf. Ach. 764 χοίρους μυστικὰς. From these X. gets 'a whiff.' The impersonal constr. with the genit. is as Vesp. 1058 τῶν ἱματίων ὀρήσει.

340. ἔγειρε] 'Arouse thee:' said by the Chorus to itself. Iacchus obeys their summons and is come. Meineke's text, explained after Fritzsche, has been taken. l. 341 is merely exclamation, and φῶσφορος ἀστήρ nominative to ἦκει. But by φῶσφορος ἀστήρ is meant Iacchus himself. Kock reads Ἰακχος for the two vocatives: the sense is then the same. As there are three syllables too much in l. 340, if τινάσσων be kept there, Fritzsche inserts another Ἰακχε at the end of l. 324.

345—8. The old forget their age and dance. As do Cadmus and Tiresias in Eur. Bacch. 185.

347. ἐνιαυτοὺς] 'cycles;' ἐνιαυτὸς being used for a number of years. We find mention of an ἐν. of eight years: also of nineteen.

348. ὑπὸ τιμᾶς] 'under the influence of the sacred service:' cf. above, l. 332.

354. εὐφημεῖν χρῆ] The leader of the Chorus speaks in the character of the Hierophant, the proclamation being an imitation of the real one at the mysteries. These tetrameter anapaests appear to be something like a parabasis: and it should be remarked that the later and true parabasis (675—737) has no anapaests.

356. Μουσῶν] The uninitiated in poesy are warned off: 'procul este, profani.' καθαρεύει, 'is true or pure in taste.' Cf. Vesp. 1015 νῦν αὐτε λεῶ πρόσσχετε τὸν νοῦν εἴπερ καθαρὸν τι φιλεῖτε. Compare also Vesp. 631. καθαρὸς poetically is 'pure, genuine, the real thing.' The actual word in its religious sense may have been in the hierophant's proclamation.

357. Κρατίνου κ.τ.λ.] 'whoever is not initiated into the mysteries of the tongue of the bull-eating Cratinus.' Dionysus is termed ταυροφάγος and ὠμηστής; therefore, they say, Cratinus as his votary is so called. The epithet is intelligible enough as applied to the god, when we remember the Bacchanalian frenzy of his worshippers (Eur. Bacch. 737—47); but its transference to a poet, of whose drinking powers we hear much, but nothing of his ταυροφαγία in the savage sense, is not very natural. Fritzsche interprets it ‘dithyrambic, dithyrambic prize-winner,’ because a bull was the prize for the dithyramb. This explanation the Scholiast gives first: then ἡ, ὅτι φίλοινοσ ἦν, διὰ τοῦτο ἐπίθετον αὐτῷ τοῦ Διονύσου ἐπιτιθέασιν: i.e. because he loved wine he is called ‘bull-devouring’: a questionable piece of reasoning. Two other hints for explaining τ. are given by the Scholiast, which have been undeservedly neglected, in the words τολμηροῦ, λαιμαργοῦ, ‘bold, gluttonous.’ Now ‘bold’ is preeminently the word for Cratinus: cf. ‘audaci afflate Cratino,’ Pers. Sat. i. 123, and his character by Aristophanes in Eg. 526—8. Or, though not a raw-flesh eater, we may believe the great drinker to have been a great eater also. In either of these senses ταυροφάγος could be used without violence: a man recklessly bold might be called ‘a bull-eater,’ much as we term one who affects such a character ‘a fire-eater.’ There may be also some allusion to Dionysus and to the dithyrambic prize. The antiquarian explanations of the word may be to the point, but a plain meaning for the Greek word applicable to Cratinus, known character is what we want, and is best supplied by interpreting it ‘bold, dauntless.’

358. τοῦτο π.] i.e. βωμολοχευομένοις, or ποιούσι βωμολοχεύματα. The use of τοῦτο ποιεῖν, δράν instead of repeating an active verb is common: it is rather different here, but the sense is plain.

359. στάσιν] The bitterness of party spirit at Athens was at this time great. The audience might fit these remarks to whom they pleased.

362. τάπορρητ'] ‘Contraband of war,’ as in Eg. 282 νῆ Δι' ἐξάγων γε τάπορρηθ'. The island of Aegina lay convenient for the exportation of such forbidden stores.

363. εἰκοστολόγος] ‘About this time the Athenians imposed on the subject states in place of the tribute a tax of one-twentieth on goods carried by sea, thinking thereby to increase their revenue.’ Thuc. vii. 28. This was in B.C. 413. The farmers of such taxes were εἰκοστολόγοι. Plainly Thorycion had abused his position and opportunities.

364. ἀσκώματα] ‘rowlock-paddings,’ cf. Ach. 97.

366. Ἑκαταίων] ‘Shrines or images of Hecate,’ the patroness of street-corners. Cinesias, a song-maker for cyclic-dancers (κυκλιοδιδάσκαλος, Av. 1403), is said to have thus insulted the shrines of Hecate. Cf. Ecll. 330.

367. ῥήτωρ] Archinus and Agyrrhius did this, acc. to the Scholiasts here, and on Ecll. 102.

369. τούτοις αὐδῶ] The MSS. have τούτοις ἀπανδῶ; editors correct for τούτοις variously τοῖσιδ', οἷσιν, τούτον. Brunck corrects αὐδῶ for ἀπανδῶ. And there is no objection to this reading: the three commands thus rise in force most neatly: αὐδῶ, ἀπανδῶ, μὰλ' ἀπανδῶ. The mistake of altering the first αὐδῶ into ἀπανδῶ would be easy. The compound ἀπανδῶ cannot be rendered 'forbid,' as the infinitive has no μὴ to complete the prohibitive sense.

370. ἐξ. χοροῖς] 'to make way for, give place to:' ἐξίστασθαι takes dat. of the person for whose advantage or honour one departs from a place. So Virgil (Georg. II.): Tmolius assurgit quibus, 'to whom T. rising gives place.'

371. καὶ παννυχίδας] Meineke's changes here rest on no authority: is it certain that ἐγείρειν παννυχίδας is 'ineptum'?

374. ἐγκρούων] βαίνων εἰρύθμως Schol., cf. above, I. 330.

376. ἡρίστηται] 'we have feasted enough.' To this it is objected that the Mystae fasted at this time of the mysteries: also that an ἄριστον could not be mentioned in connexion with nocturnal rites. The first objectors read ἡρίστευται, 'the purging rites are fully done.' Others ἡρίστηται, 'we have had enough of victory (and war).' The devotees cannot have fasted throughout the Eleusinia: ἡρίστηται might perhaps be understood of any sacred banquet. Nor is the conduct of the mystae below necessarily an exact copy of those above. Finally, as Paley points out, the mystae certainly have been feasting, or whence the whiff of roast pork and the chance of tripe, at l. 338?

377. ἀρεῖς] The α long from ἀείρω, ἀερῶ, as Porson shows on Eur. Med. 848.

378. Σώτειραν] Persephone had this title, as we learn from coins: and she is doubtless meant here.

380. ἐς τὰς ὥρας] 'to the coming seasons,' i.e. to every coming season, for ever. Cf. Nub. 562 ἐς τὰς ὥρας τὰς ἐτέρας, and Thesm. 950 ἐκ τῶν ὥρων ἐς τὰς ὥρας.

382. ἄγε νυν] The anapaests again spoken by the leader: the two stanzas by the whole chorus, or each by a semichorus.

387. καὶ μ' ἀσφαλῶς παῖσαι] Supply δός: as also to the other infinitives.

393. ταινιοῦσθαι] The victor in the jests at the bridge on the return from Eleusis was crowned with a head-band or fillet. But the Chorus mean also to pray for victory in the rivalry of comedies. Translate νικήσαντα with ταινιοῦσθαι, but παλσαντα καὶ σκ., 'after sporting and jesting.'

395—6. The leader calls for a hymn to Iacchus.

395. ὠραῖον] 'blooming, ever young.' Called 'floreus Iacchus' by Catullus: 'puer aeternus' and 'formosissimus' by Ovid.

398. μέλος] τέλος Mein, μέρος Kock. Of these the first seems the better: τέλος ἐορτῆς, the sacred rite of the festival. But the common text is perhaps defensible.

400. θεὸν] Demeter at Eleusis: the 'long way' is the way thither.

404. κατεσχίσω] Iacchus set the fashion of rent garment and sandals, which his worshippers followed: thus mirth and laughter were promoted and expense saved. Ragged garments were in fashion at the Eleusinia. Fritzsche, however, thinks that the σχιστὸς χιτῶν and σχισταί, a particular kind of woman's robe and slipper, are meant. The word ἀζημίους, 'without loss, expense,' seems to confirm the first explanation.

414. ἐγὼ] Dionysus and Xanthias profess their willingness to join the dance: aside to each other, not aloud to the Chorus. Plainly it is not till l. 431 that they come forward. Kock, objecting to D. and X. taking part in dialogue with the Chorus here, supposes the two lines to belong to two members of the Chorus. But explaining them as an 'aside' removes the objection.

416—21. An imitation of the γεφυρισμός. See on l. 324.

417. Ἀρχέδημον] The accuser of Erasinides, one of the generals at Arginusae. He is attacked as being of foreign extraction. See below, l. 588.

418. ἐπτέτης κ.τ.λ.] 'in seven years did not get fellow-clansmen:' did not get enrolled in a φρατρία, as every true Athenian child was bound to be soon after birth. There is also a play on φραστήρας ὀδόντας, the teeth which children have at seven years: there was (Schol.) a proverb ἐπτέτης ὦν ὀδόντας οὐκ ἔφυσεν.

420. ἄνω νεκροῖσι] Cf. above, l. 177.

421. τὰ πρῶτα] 'the very head:' the neuter as in Latin, 'prima virorum,' Lucret.

431—459. Dionysus coming forward asks the way to Pluto's house: he and Xanthias proceed thither: meanwhile the Chorus finish their strain and go to their reserved and flowery paradise.

439. Διὸς Κόρινθος] The Corinthians plumed themselves on their descent from Corinth son of Zeus; whose claims they brought forward even to the weariness and disgust of their hearers. Hence Διὸς Κ. became proverbial for anything repeated usque ad nauseam. Xanthias therefore saying 'What is this but Corinthus son of Zeus in the bedding?' means 'what is this but the old order to take up the bedding, the order which I am so tired of hearing?' Besides this Fritzsche supposes the στρώματα may have been of Corinthian make, Corinth being famed for them, and marked in some way with Κόρινθος. And many suppose a further reference to κόρεις, as in Nub. 709: but this seems very doubtful. In Eccl. 828 the application of Διὸς Κ. is rather different. Chremes is speaking of a scheme for enriching the state which promised well, but failed: ὅτε δὴ δ' ἀνασκοπούμενοις ἐφαίνετο ὁ Διὸς Κόρινθος καὶ τὸ πρᾶγμ' οὐκ ἦρκεσεν. 'Much profession little performance, much cry little wool' seems the force of the proverb there. The expression is used in Pind. Nem. VII. 155.

440. χωρεῖτε κ.τ.λ.] Again the chorus-leader speaks as the priest or torch-bearer (θαδοῦχος) of the procession.

441. κύκλον] = περίβολον 'enclosure.'

450. τρ. καλλ. ... ξυνάγουσιν] 'sporting after our fashion in the fairest dance which the blessed Fates join.' In καλλιχορώτατον is implied χορόν, hence ξυνάγειν.

458. ξένους] To strangers the Athenians were friendly, the Spartans just the opposite. Cf. Pericles' funeral oration in Thuc. II. ιδιώτας = πολίτας.

460—502. D. and X. arrive at Pluto's gate and knock. Aeacus comes to open, and on seeing, as he thinks, Hercules, abuses him for his theft of Cerberus, and threatens terrible punishment. He goes out to fetch ministers of vengeance. D. is faint with terror: and as X. professes not to be alarmed, he proposes an exchange of dress and character, which they make accordingly.

461. οὔπιχώριοι] οἱ ἐπιχώριοι.

462. γεύσει] Rather a curious application of the verb: but it is used = 'to try' in almost any sense. For οὐ μὴ with the two future indicatives 'don't do this, but do that,' see above, l. 202: Bergk's γεῦσαι (imperat.) is no improvement.

463. καθ' Ἡρ.....ἔχων] 'With the spirit as well as the dress of Hercules.' D. shows some hesitation, and is told not to stand loitering there, but knock in Herculean wise. σχῆμα and λήμα have a rhyming neatness.

464. παῖ παῖ] Summons to the porter Aeacus. So in Av. 57 παῖ παῖ, to the porter Hoopoe.

465—78. A furious torrent of abuse: the first two lines repeated from Pac. 182—3, where Hermes as porter greets Trygaeus. It is in ridicule of exaggerated tragic speech or acting.

468. ἀπῆξας] i. e. ἀπῆξις, from ἀπαύσσω or ἀπάσσω, 'you hurried away.' The old texts have ἀπῆξας from ἀπάγω, a rare aorist.

469. ἔχει μέσος] Cf. Ach. 571, Eq. 388.

470—75. This is said by the Scholiast to be a parody on expressions in the Theseus of Euripides.

472. Κωκυτοῦ κύνες] The Erinnyes.

475. Τ. μύραινα] 'Tartesian lamprey: a supposed voracious sea eel. Tartessus in the unknown west (perhaps Cadiz) is supposed to produce strange monsters. Orestes compares his mother (Aesch. Choroph. 994) to a μύραινα or ἔχιδνα. There can be no doubt that all the expressions of Aeacus were meant to convey unmixed terror to Dionysus. If (as Fritzsche and Kock think) 'Tartesian lamprey' is also meant to suggest a delicate morsel, it can be only to the Athenian audience.

477. Τιθρᾶσαι] A new locality for the Gorgons, who commonly are placed in Libya. Tithras was an Attic deme, whose women were foul-tongued. Gorgons of Tithras is a comic substitution. But for Dionysus this also has of course a terrific sound.

478. δρομαῖον] A favourite word with Euripides. Cf. Pac. 160 δρομαῖαν πτέρυν' ἐκτείνων. He simply means 'to fetch whom I will go post-haste.'

480. ἀναστήσει] D. has fallen fainting on the ground. X. bids him rise. D. asks for a sponge: and when it is brought, and X. asks him where the pain is, points to his stomach.

487. πῶς δειλός] His presence of mind in asking for a sponge proved him no coward.

494. ληματιᾶς] A verb of the same formation as σιβυλλῖαν Eg. 61, μαθητιᾶν Nub. 183, and others. All these verbs have the notion of sickness: they express a diseased craving for something, or the possession of a quality perversely or excessively. Thus σιβυλλῖα 'is sibyl-sick, has a craze for prophecies.' μαθητιῶ 'I have the scholar fever on me.' Here ληματιᾶς 'you have a plucky fever or fit.' Compare ὀφθαλμιᾶν and the comic λοφᾶν in Pac. 1211. Even in prose (Dem. Xen.) we find στρατηγιᾶν. In this line some read ληματίας as an adjective.

498. οὐ γὰρ ἀλλὰ] Cf. note on l. 192.

501. οὐκ Μ. μαστιγίας] 'the rascal from Melite:' by some said to be Callias, who lived in the deme of Melite, and had once in battle worn a lion-skin in imitation of Hercules. By others it is understood to mean simply Hercules, who was worshipped at Melite. Dionysus certainly seems to mean no compliment: 'you look an impudent rogue enough for anything;' whether the rogue be Hercules or Callias.

503—533. No sooner is the exchange made than a maidservant comes out and invites the supposed Hercules to a feast. X. is about to enter, but D. now makes him change parts again.

504. ἡ θεός] Persephone.

505. κατ. χύτρας ἔτρους] 'pots of soup made of bruised peas:' cf. above, l. 63. Provision is made as if for a regiment.

508. κάλλιστ'] A polite refusal: so in l. 512 πάνυ καλῶς.

οὐ μὴ περιόψομαι] A rare constr. is this οὐ μὴ with first person of future indic. It occurs also in Soph. El. 1092. It is a strong negation. See note on Pac. 1039 for the general distinction between οὐ μὴ with future ind. or aor. subj.

510. ὄρνιθια κρέα] 'poultry, chicken.' ὄρνις is specially used of the domestic fowl.

512. ἔχων] As in l. 202.

518. ἀφαιρῖν] 'to take away' from fire or spit. Cf. Ach. 1119 σὺ δ' ἀφελὼν δεῦρο τὴν χορδὴν φέρε.

520. αὐτός] 'myself.' A servant would use the term of his master: a pupil of his teacher, as in Nub. 219. Xanthias in his new dignity uses it proudly.

522. σπ. ποιεῖ] 'you don't, I fancy, take it in earnest, do you?'

523. ἑσκεύασα] The same compound in Ach. 384 ἐάσατε ἐνσκευάσασθαι μ' 'let me dress myself up.'

526. οὐ δὴ ποῦ μ'] 'you don't surely mean do you?' Such appears to me the force of this: and in Av. 269 οὐ δὴπου ταῶς 'it isn't surely a peacock, is it?' It is a negation which the tone shows to be a mistrustful one, and equivalent to a question. In form it seems to claim a negative answer, but with some fear or idea of an affirmative. This affirmative here follows, for Dionysus replies 'I don't intend it presently, but I do it at once.' In Av. 269 the bird turns out not to be a peacock, though Euelpides may have had an idea it would be one. Fritzsche distinguishes, as almost opposites, οὐ τί πον and οὐ δὴ πον, the former as expressing a false opinion, the latter a true one. As regards the first he makes out his case (Nub. 1260, Pac. 1211): as regards the second he appears to fail; for in his first instance (Av. 269), there is no answer to show that the bird was a peacock, rather the reverse: while in this passage the substance of Dionysus' answer is indeed affirmative, but surely the whole pathos of Xanthias' appeal vanishes if we suppose it "in re satis probabili gravem interrogationem" (Fri.), and render it 'are you not indeed etc.' The other passages, Ach. 122 οὐ δὴ πον Στράτων, and Eccl. 327 οὐ δὴ πον Βλέπυρος, appear quite similar: 'not surely Straton? not surely Blepyrus?' though in this last case it is Blepyrus.

529. ποίοις] Cf. Ach. 62, 109, Eq. 32, etc. for this contemptuous form of question.

530. τὸ δὲ κ.τ.λ.] Arrange οὐκ ἀνόητον δὲ (ἦν) καὶ κενὸν τὸ προσδοκῆσαι κ.τ.λ.

531, 2. X. resigns himself, with a hint that his turn may come.

534—41. The Chorus commend Dionysus' cleverness in getting the best for himself, and changing like Theramenes.

535. περιπεπλευκός] A sort of Ulysses, ἀνδραπολύτροπον (Homer), with allusion possibly to Dionysus' own travels.

537. τοίχον] οὐ γάρ ποτ' εἶων Σθένηλον εἰς τὸν εὐτυχῇ χωροῦντα τοίχον τῆς δίκης σ' ἀποστερεῖν, Eur. Alcmena. Cf. also Eur. Orest. 885. The metaphor is from sailors shifting to that side of the ship which is uppermost and out of the waves.

541. Θηραμένους] Proverbially a turncoat or weathercock, and hence nicknamed κόθορνος, a shoe that would fit either foot. His cleverness in this way is again commended l. 970.

549—589. Two landladies come in: they recognize the thievish Hercules who stole and ate their provisions, frightening them out of their wits. They now prepare vengeance, sending for help to bring the rascal to trial. Then D. wheedles X. into taking Hercules' character again.

549. Πλαθάνη] The other landlady: they had each a maid-servant, cf. below, l. 569. Apparently the two were partners keeping the same inn.

552. τινί] 'Somebody's in a scrape: 'somebody will pay for it: 'the somebody is Dionysus.

554. ἀν' ἡμιωβολιαῖα] 'each worth half an obol.' This is the sense: but the reading is very doubtful. Some editors speak of 'the distributive sense of ἀνὰ,' and appear to think this enough. Of course the use of ἀνὰ with substantives, cardinal numbers, etc. is well known: ἀνὰ πᾶσαν ἡμέραν, ἀνὰ ἑκατὸν, ἀνὰ πεντήκοντα 'in hundreds, in fifties.'

And so ἀν' ἡμιωβόλιον would be right enough, 'at the rate of a half-obol.' But ἡμιωβολιαῖος is an adjective meaning 'worth half an obol:' how can the preposition be explained with it? In English we might say 'He ate twenty threepenny loaves' ('threepenny' being an adjective): or 'He ate twenty loaves at the rate of threepence.' But we could not say 'twenty loaves at the rate of threepenny.' The Scholiast reads ἀνημιωβολιαῖα as one word: and Holden following Meier accepts this. The adjective would be a curious one: it is as if we should say 'twenty at-a-penny or penny-apiece buns;' but that ἀνὰ should govern the adj. ἡμιωβολιαῖα appears impossible. Probably the syllable ἀν is corrupt. πάνθ' ἡμ. might be suggested.

Obol portions and half-obol portions are mentioned in some comic fragments.

557. κοθόρνους] women's shoes: see above on l. 47.

558. τί δαί ;] In sudden remembrance of a fresh charge of theft.

559. χλωρόν] The fresh cheese was kept in baskets: cf. Hom. Od. i. 247, αὐτίκα δ' ἤμισυ μὲν θρέψας λευκοῖο γάλακτος πλεκτοῖς ἐν ταλάροισιν ἀμυρσάμενος κατέθηκεν.

564. δοκῶν] 'pretending:' a common use of this verb, expressing not merely 'appearance, semblance' but 'intentional putting on of such appearance.'

566. κατήλιψ'] 'upper room, loft:' a word only found here, and once in Lucian, where the words are 'having climbed up to the κατήλιφα.' It is said by old grammarians to be the same as μεσόδμη: but what the μεσόδμη of a house was, is conjectural.

569. προστάτην] 'patron,' not δήμου προστάτης, but 'protector,' the person who for μέτοικοι at Athens looked after their interests, esp. in legal matters. When alive, Cleon, in Isr. 409, is sent for to uphold the cause of the litigious old men. Therefore in Hades he and Hyperbolus are still similarly employed. Cleon had died in 422, Hyperbolus in 411.

570. σὺ δ'] To her maidservant, as is l. 569 to the other's maidservant.

576. φ] certainly refers to λάρυγγα. For κατασπᾶν similarly used of gulping down cf. Lg. 718, αὐτὸς δ' ἐκείνου τριπλάσιον κατέσπakas.

578. After this verse the landladies go out.

581. μηδαμῶς] Do not say so: do not refuse to become Hercules.

583. δοῦλος κ.τ.λ.] referring to Dionysus' own words: cf. above, l. 531.

585. κᾶν] The ἄν is repeated in οὐκ ἄν ἀντείπομι.

587. πρόρριζος κ.τ.λ.] A solemn form of imprecation made ridiculous by the addition of Archdemus to the devoted company. For whom cf. above, l. 417.

589. ἐπὶ τοῦτοις] The terms being such, X. would be sure of Archdemus' destruction by way of compensation if D. should break faith.

590—604. The Chorus exhort X. to courage if he wants to remain as Hercules. X. says he will be up to the mark.

592. ἀνανεάζειν] intransitive: 'to become young again,' not 'to make young again.' The syllables wanting are supplied by πρὸς τὸ σοβαρὸν in Meineke's text: which words are written as a gloss in some MSS. Fritzsche inserts πρὸς τὸ γαῦρον. Either is fairly good for the sense.

595. βαλεῖς] 'shall let fall, utter.' ἐκβάλλειν in this sense is commoner, hence some read κάκβαλεῖς, cf. Vesp. 1289.

599. ἦν χρηστὸν] If anything good is going, as was the invitation to a feast at Persephone's, D. will want to be Hercules again in order to get it.

601. οἷδ' ὅτι] In spite of the ὅτι above it is repeated, being very common with οἷδ', εἴ οἷδ', in this position.

603. ὀρίγανον] Cf. βλέπειν νᾶπν, κάρδαμα, Eg. 631, Vesp. 455.

604. καὶ δὴ] 'even now.' Cf. Ecc. 786 καὶ δὴ μὲν οὖν 'nay rather I am already doing' in answer to a question 'Are you going to do?'

605—673. Aeacus returns with slaves, whom he bids arrest the dog-stealer. Xanthias shows fight, protests his innocence, and offers his slave for torture, that the truth may come out. Then Dionysus asserts his divinity, and warns Aeacus to desist. To find out which is the god, it is settled to whip both. But this test fails: they manage to turn their cries of pain into quotations. At last in despair Aeacus takes them indoors to Pluto who, as a god, will know the truth.

606. ἀνέτεον] Two slaves at first seize Xanthias: then his resistance makes more force necessary, and three more are summoned. Dionysus says ἦ.εἰ τῷ κακὸν in mimicry of Xanthias at l. 552.

610. εἴτ' οὐχὶ δεινὰ κ.τ.λ.] The dialogue here is differently arranged by different editors. And τύπτειν.....τάλλότρια is very differently rendered. With the text adopted the connexion I take to be this: Dionysus means to urge on Aeacus against Hercules, 'Isn't it a shame that this fellow should use blows when, besides, he is a thief?' i.e. that he should add to the crime of theft the crime of violence. 'Say rather it is monstrous,' replies Aeacus. 'Nay it is intolerable and a shame,' says Dionysus. But others make τοῦτον object of τύπτειν, not subject: 'Isn't it a shame to beat this poor fellow?' This must be ironical, for Dionysus is glad to see Xanthias beaten: so must also μάλλ' ὑπερφῶν be, if given to Aeacus, but some give this to Xanthias. And the πρὸς τάλλότρια, 'and that too other people's property,' is rather perplexing with this interpretation. πρὸς is certainly adverbial, as in l. 415 κἀγωγε πρὸς. Some read πρὸς τ' (πρὸς τε).

615. γενναῖον πάνν] 'I will act quite the gentleman with you.' Xanthias cleverly brings Dionysus into the scrape.

618. κλίμακι] ἥτις οὔσα ὄργανον βασανιστικὸν διαστρέφει τὰ σώματα τῶν βασανιζομένων. Suid.

621. πλινθους] Some think this means 'hot bricks,' a kind of ordeal by fire: others a torture simply by weight of bricks laid on the victim.

πράσῳ] This would be mere play: X. excepts such torture. Masters were accustomed to except the severest torture in offering their slaves: X. does just the reverse. He also declines compensation for possible injury. With μὴ δῆτ' ἐμοιγ' supply καταθῆς τὰργύριον.

626. αὐτοῦ] adverb 'here.'

628. ἀγορεύω] Reminding us of Dionysus to Pentheus in Eur. Bacch. 504, αὐδῶ με μὴ δεῖν σωφρονῶν οὐ σωφροσιν.

630. αἰτιῶ] imperat. mid. contracted from αἰτιῶν: 'blame yourself for the consequences.'

632. φήμ' ἐγώ] assent to the question: 'yes, I hear it.'

635. θεός] Hercules: for X. was dressed up as Hercules, and had made no claim to be Dionysus.

643. πληγὴν παρὰ π.] The first πληγὴν is governed by some verb or participle supplied from βασανίζω: 'striking, inflicting.' παρὰ, 'corresponding to, for.'

644. ἰδοῦ] 'There, I'm ready.' Xanthias strips.

645. ἤδη κ.τ.λ.] Aeacus strikes: X. does not move. Aeacus says, 'I have already struck you.' X. 'No, I don't think you have.' He then goes to D. who equally well dissembles all feeling. 'When will you strike?' Ae. 'I have even now struck.' D. 'How was it I didn't even sneeze?'

649. ἀνύσεις] Kock reads ἀνύσεις τι; ἀτταταῖ, that Xanthias' exclamation may be repeated exactly by Aeacus in τί τὰτταταῖ. Meineke reads ιατταταῖ, λατταταῖ, as Xanthias' exclamation, Aeacus then asking μῶν ὦδ.

651. Διομείους] Diomea was an Attic deme, where was a temple of Hercules. X., who is playing Hercules, was sadly thinking when his own festival would be kept, which the war had interrupted.

653. ἰὸν ἰοῦ] This may be simply an exclamation on the sudden sight of anything. Cf. Aesch. Ag. 25, where the watchman greets the beacon-fire with it. So here it is a watchman's cry at seeing a company of horsemen.

655. ἐπεῖ] 'For of course you don't care at all.' Aeacus affects belief in Dionysus' reason. 'I suppose it is onions that make your eyes water, since of course you don't care for the blows.' 'Not a bit,' replies D.

657. ἄκανθαν] Here he lifts his foot as if he had a thorn in it.

659. Ἀπολλων] This he completes as an iambic line to disguise the cry of pain. So in l. 664—5. The Scholiast says it is a line from Ananias, who appears to have been a contemporary of Hipponax.

664. Πόσειδον] It does not seem Dionysus' turn to receive a blow: hence Kock supposes something lost after l. 663. Rather let this exclamation Πόσειδον, and its continuation ὅς Αἰγαιον, be given to Xanthias. Then ἡλγησέν τις from Dionysus will correspond to ἡλγησεν of Xanthias in l. 660: and his quotation of Sophocles to the other line from Hipponax. In l. 663, μὰ τὸν Δι' ἀλλ' ἤδη π.τ.γ. will be Aeacus' amendment on the suggestion to lash the flanks. 'No, better than that, I will touch up your stomachs: do you present yours.'

665. πρῶνας] Partly from Sophocles' Laocoön. As μέδεις governs the genitive, πρῶνός is proposed. Others understand ἔχεις to be supplied to πρῶνας. Kock objects to the lyric passage among iambics, and supposes ἀλὸς ἐν βένθεσιν may have originally completed the iambic after ἡλγησέν τις, but that some marginal note-writer inserted the rest of the passage from Sophocles.

668. πῶ] 'yet:' even after such a severe trial I cannot yet find out the truth.

674—737. While they are gone to settle the question, the Chorus speak the Parabasis. This consists of a strophe, 675—685, an epirrhema, 686—705, an antistrophe, 706—716, an antepirrhema, 718—737. The strophe and antistrophe ridicule Cleophon and Cleigenes. The epirrhema gives advice, counselling a fairer assignment of honours and disgrace, and some leniency for faults in men who had done good service. The antepirrhema blames the state for preferring the base to the honest and good, both in coins and men.

675. ἐπιβηθι] The muse is invited to come and see the Athenian public, whose voice thousands are seated to hear.

677. φιλ. Κλεοφῶντος] 'more zealous for honour than Cleophon:' who was φιλότιμος, but no good citizen in Aristophanes' view. His Thracian origin is alluded to in the last line of this play, and Aeschines (F. L. 76) says of him Κλεοφῶν ὁ λυροποιός, ὃν πολλοὶ δεδεμένον ἐν πέδαις ἐμνημόνεον, παρεγγραφείς αἰσχροῦς πολίτης καὶ διεφθαρκῶς νομῇ χρημάτων τὸν δῆμον, ἀποκόψειν ἡπείλει μαχαίρα τὸν τράχηλον εἰ τις εἰρήνης μνησθήσεται. He withstood every proposal of peace. The comic dramatist Plato is said to have written a play against him and named after him; and the description of a violent and ignorant demagogue in Euripides' Orestes (l. 892) perhaps has reference to him.

679. ἀμφιλάοις] L. and S. render 'chattering incessantly:' but such compounds as ἀμφίγλωσσος = δίγλωσσος, ἀμφίδοξος, and the like suggest that it means 'chattering with double tongue,' speaking a mixed jargon of Attic Greek and Thracian.

681. Θ. χελιδῶν] Cf. above, l. 93, and Av. 1681 βαβράζει γ' ὥσπερ αἱ χελιδόνες. Also in Aesch. Ag. 1050 χελιδόνος δίκην ἀγνώτα φωνὴν βάρβαρον κεκτημένη is said of Cassandra.

682. ἐξομένη] There may be some corruption in this verse. To speak of the 'Thracian swallow clamorous upon Cleophon's lips' as 'sitting on a barbarous leaf' seems meaningless. Birds do not sit on leaves: nor is ἐπὶ with accusative suitable: the swallow is perched on Cleophon's lips (ἐπὶ χεῖλεσιν). Yet Meineke's ὑποβάρβαρον ἐξομένη κέλαδον is not satisfactory; the qualifying ὑπὸ spoils the epithet. Bergk proposes ὀπὶ βάρβαρον ἡδομένη πίτυλον: but a 'joyous' voice is out of place, and πίτυλον an unlikely word, not admissible on mere conjecture. Kock ἐπὶ β. αἰρομένη κέλαδον, 'raising (ἐπαίρομενη) a barbarous cry.' I cannot think ἐξομένη is wrong: comp. Pac. 801, ὅταν ἡρινὰ μὲν φωνῇ χελιδὼν ἐξομένη κελადῇ. The last word rather confirms κέλαδον, Meineke's conjecture; and with it ὅπι might be substituted for ἐπὶ. The position of ἐξομένη seems defensible (pace Kock) in lyric language. We then have 'on whose lips perched the Thracian swallow clamours forth terribly with her voice her barbarous chatter.' If the common text be retained, render ἐπὶ β. ἐ. πέταλον, 'sitting close-nestled to the barbarous leaf,' the 'barbarous leaf' being Cleophon's lip. But with ἐφ' οὗ χεῖλεσιν this is strange language. Can it be purposely made so by the poet, to ridicule Cleophon's bad Thraco-Greek? The swallow 'twittering a nightingalian strain' in the next line is rather a mixture.

683. ἀπολείται] Cleophon was plainly in danger from some trial. The rule was that in case of equal votes the accused escaped; as is seen first in Orestes' trial, Aesch. Eum. 753, where Athene pronounces acquittal: ἀνὴρ ὃδ' ἐκπέφευγεν αἵματος δίκην, ἵσον γὰρ ἐστὶ τὰρίθμημα τῶν πάλων.

688. ἐξισῶσαι] The chief 'equalizing' and 'removing of apprehensions' here meant by the poet seems to refer to the Four Hundred and their adherents. A. advises that they should no longer be looked on with mistrust, but the mistakes into which they were led by Phrynichus condoned.

689. Φρυνίχου] A supporter of the Four Hundred, assassinated in 411 B.C.

690. ἐγγενέσθαι κ.τ.λ.] To those who made this slip a chance should be given of clearing themselves and redeeming their character. Paley objects that λύσασθαι would be more proper, and renders it 'it ought to be allowed us, in respect of those who then made a slip, to put away the charge and to forgive their past mistakes.' But this appears rather a forced arrangement of the words: ὀλισθοῦσιν naturally seems governed by ἐγγενέσθαι. And ἐκθεῖσιν αἰτίαν, 'having set forth, made known, the cause,' seems as likely as the other rendering.

692. ἀτιμον] To such citizens as have lost civic rights they should be restored. Such a measure of restitution was passed after Aegospotami. Cf. Xen. Hellen. 2. 2. 11.

693. μίαν] Sc. μάχην, at Arginusae. For the slaves who fought there received their freedom and Attic citizenship. 'It is a shame,' says A., 'that, while the slaves who fought but in one sea-fight are made equal to Plataeans, those citizens who have fought side by side with you so often should be eternally disgraced for one fault.' The Plataeans, on the loss of their city in the Peloponnesian war, were adopted as Athenians. The sentence is broken by the parenthesis κοῦδ'..... ἐδράσατε, and then resumed with a different construction. The regular form would have been αἰσχρὸν ἐστὶ τοὺς μὲν ναυμαχῆσαντας μίαν ἐλευθεροῦσθαι τοὺς δὲ πολλὰ ναυμαχῆσαντας μηδεμίᾱς ξυγγνώμης τυχεῖν. This form of sentence is frequent; and it must be noticed that it does not mean 'it is a shame for the slaves to be freed' absolutely; but only, if citizens are to be so harshly treated. In translating such a sentence it is well to render the μὲν by 'while, whereas,' the δὲ by 'yet,' or to omit it: then the weight of the sentence falls on the second clause.

695, 6. κοῦδὲ κ.τ.λ.] You are right enough in rewarding faithful slaves; only don't be implacable to fellow-citizens.

697. πρὸς] Adverbial: besides this reward to slaves, you ought to grant indulgence to these citizens.

698. οἱ...χοὶ πατέρες] 'Who, as well as their fathers, fought.'

699. ξυμφορὰν] A word to lessen the impression of these men's offence, 'misfortune, not fault.'

700—5. Let bygones be bygones: if we are so exclusive, proud, and quarrelsome, we shall repent it, dangerously placed as we are.

703. κάποσεμννούμεθα τ. π.] 'And give ourselves airs about our city.' This punctuation seems best. Fritzsche, Meineke and Kock punctuate after κάποσεμννούμεθα, and Kock thinks τῇ πόλιν καὶ ταῦτ' ἔχοντες is the same as καὶ ταῦτα τὴν πόλιν ἔχοντες. His instance from Plut. 546 πιθάκνης πλευράν ἔρρωγυῖαν καὶ ταύτην is a poor parallel. The passage in Plato's Rep. 341, νῦν γοῦν ἐπεχειρήσας, οὐδὲν ὦν καὶ ταῦτα, means 'At all events just now you tried to do so, though you failed in this too'—not 'and that too though you failed.' Nor is there any objection to an accusative with ἀποσεμνύνεσθαι, though it be without one in l. 833.

704. καὶ ταῦτ' ἔχοντες] Repeat πόλιν, 'And that, too, though we hold our city rocked in the arms of the waves,' cradled in a billowy sea of turmoil. Cf. l. 361, τῆς πόλεως χειμαζομένης. The Scholiast says that the expression is from a line of Aeschylus: ψυχὰς ἔχοντες κυμάτων ἐν ἀγκάλαις.

706. εἰ δ' ἐγὼ κ.τ.λ.] Said by the Scholiast to be from the tragic poet Ion.

708. πίθκος] Cf. below, l. 1085, δημοπιθήκων, and Eg. 887 πιθηκισμοῖς of Cleon's tricks. Who this Cleigenes was is unknown.

710. βαλανεὺς] Bathmen were a despised class at Athens. Cleon when disgraced is condemned πόρναισι καὶ βαλανεῦσι διακεκραγέναι, Eg. 1403. The bathmen appear to have sold the lye or potass, or whatever served for soap, and often to have cheated in that, making it of bad λίτρον and adulterating it with ashes.

712. Κιμωλάς] Cimolus is one of the Cyclades: it supplied a kind of earth possessing cleansing properties and therefore used as soap. κρατοῦσι K. γῆς, 'hold sway over Cimolian earth,' has a mock-tragic sound.

714. ἰδὼν τὰδ' οὐκ εἰρ. ἔσθ'] Knowing that his time is short, and that every one hates him, he is not peaceable, but goes about armed with a stick against street robbers. 'Peaceable' may also mean 'favourable to peace between Athens and Sparta.' A time of war and danger would give excuse for going about armed. Stealers of clothes appear to have been numerous at Athens. Cf. Av. 1491, Ach. 1166.

718. πολλάκις κ.τ.λ.] The city behaves in an equally foolish manner to the good old citizens and to the good old coin.

719. καλούς τε ἀγαθούς] Kock, and Meineke in his latest critical notes, read κακοὺς for καλούς to obtain the double antithesis of the bad and good citizens to the new and old coinage. Dindorf observes “plena oppositione non est opus.” And the inversion of order in κακοὶ...ἀγαθοὶ...ἀρχαῖον...καινόν is rather unlikely. The καλοκάγαθοι are compared to the ἀρχαῖον νόμισμα, the subordinate comparison of this with τὸ καινόν χρυσίον is an afterthought.

721. τούτοισιν οὖσιν] τούτοισι τοῖσιν, Mein., Kock, to avoid the union of the partic. οὖσιν with κεκιβδηλευμένοις. Cf. Eur. Hec. 358, οὐκ εἰωθὸς ὄν. The addition of participle to participle probably came from regarding a participle like εἰωθὸς simply as an adjective. Whether κεκιβδηλευμένος was so regarded is questionable.

723. ὁ. κοπέσι] The opposite to this is παρακεκομμένος. In Ach. 517 we have a similar application of terms of coining to the character of men: the worthless being called ἀνδράρια μοχθηρὰ, παρακεκομμένα, ἄτιμα, καὶ παράσημα. Cf. my note on that passage.

κεκωδωνισμένοις] ‘having the true ring.’ Cf. above, l. 79. Meineke and Kock transpose this and the following line, Meineke objecting to ὀρθῶς κοπέσι καὶ κεκ. ἐν βαρβάροις, as not applicable to Athenian coin. But the line ἐν τε...πανταχοῦ need only be connected with κεκωδωνισμένοις, ‘coins tested by ringing and accepted as good among Greeks and barbarians everywhere.’ To this sense there is no objection: there was plenty of traffic between Greeks and barbarians, and therefore doubtless κωδωνισμός of the coins.

726. χθές τε καὶ πρῶν] A year or two before the ‘Frogs’ was exhibited. The Athenians were short of good metal for money after the Sicilian failure, and therefore put in circulation a base coinage, which probably soon fell below its nominal worth.

727. τῶν πολιτῶν θ’] Here begins the second part of the comparison, corresponding to οὔτε γὰρ κ.τ.λ.

730. πυρρίαις] ‘redheads:’ a name of slaves, cf. Ξανθίας, ‘Sandy.’ χαλκοῖς about=‘Brummagem metal.’

731. κάκ πονηρῶν] ‘rascals and rascals’ sons.’ Meineke’s οὖσι πάντα for εἰς ἅπαντα appears needless and sounds awkward. The definite article τοῖς, carried on to ξένοις, πυρρίαις, πονηροῖς, can be equally so to ἐκ πονηρῶν, then τοῖς ἐκ πονηρῶν needs no supplement.

733. φαρμακοῖσιν] ‘men whom the city in old times would not lightly (εἰκῇ) have used even as victims.’ As these ‘scape-goats’ were worthless men, φαρμακὸς in Eg. 1405 is used simply as a reproach.

735. χρῆσθε...χρηστοῖσιν] The play on words lends force and neatness to the advice.

κατορθώσας] Conditional participle: ‘if you succeed it will be creditable, and if you fail, better be hung from a good tree,’ as the proverb says. ‘Aeneae magni dextra cadis’ in Virgil expresses the same sentiment.

738—813. Aeacus and Xanthias return, Pluto having discovered the true Dionysus. While they are exchanging confidences a noise is heard within. Aeacus explains to Xanthias that there is to be a great contest of dramatic skill between Aeschylus and Euripides; the latter having challenged Aeschylus' right to the tragic throne. Dionysus is to be arbiter.

738. γεννάδας] 'a real gentleman.' Xanthias replies that of course he is, meaning that he lives an idle, luxurious life. A further proof of it is given, that he did not punish his slave for taking his character. Upon which Xanthias begins to boast and express contempt for his master. This opens Aeacus' heart, and the two servants become fast friends.

741. τὸ δὲ μὴ π.] Exclamatory, 'To think that he did not flog you!' So in Nub. 268, and elsewhere.

743. τοῦτο] This contemptuous remark, 'he'd have paid for it, had he flogged me.'

745. χαίρεις, ἰκετεύω] 'What! do you delight in this, pray?' 'Nay, delight isn't a word strong enough,' says Aeacus, 'I am in the seventh heaven when I can let out a sly curse at my master.' To be an ἐπόπτης or witness of the holy mysteries was the height of bliss.

749. πολλὰ πράττων] 'meddling' as in l. 228.

ὡς...οὐδὲν οἶδ' ἐγώ] 'I so rejoice at doing that as I know not that I rejoice at doing anything else.' οὕτω χαίρω πολλὰ πράττων ὡς οἶδα χαίρων οὐδέν. Briefly 'I know no joy like that.'

750. ὁμόγυνε Ζεῦ] In astonishment and joy at finding a brother rascal Xanthias appeals to the patron of their family.

παρακούων] 'Eaves-dropping, hearing wrongly when you are not meant to hear.' Paley suggests also 'mis-hearing, misunderstanding an order.' But that would not suit well with λαλῶσι, it would have been rather λέγωσι.

756. ὁμομαστιγίας] 'fellow-rascal,' and therefore patron of us rascals: but the word certainly seems to imply an irreverent assumption on Xanthias' part that Zeus was such an one as themselves. The Scholiast rightly supposes Xanthias to break off the intended question after ὁμομαστιγίας, and then suddenly hearing a noise within, to ask the meaning.

759. ᾶ] An exclamation of astonishment, or to denote that Xanthias does not yet quite comprehend: 'Eh! what!'

761. ἐνθάδ] Here in Hades. As in Athens public service, so here excellence in art is rewarded by free commons in the Prytaneum.

766. ἀφίκοιτο] As if νόμος ἔκειτο had gone before, so ἔδει in next line. Cf. above on l. 24.

771. ὅτε δὲ] Better than δῆ. Aeacus goes on, not heeding Xanthias' question, 'But when etc.'

ἐπεδείκνυτο] The verb is often used in Plato 'to make a show,' also the noun ἐπίδειξις.

775. λυγισμῶν] A term from wrestling: the verb λυγίξειν occurs Vesp. 1487, πλευρὰν λυγίσαντος ὑπὸ ῥύμης.

777. ἐπαρθεῖς] As in Nub. 42 γῆμαι ἐπῆρε 'put me up to marry.'

778. ἐβάλλετο] ἐλιθοβολεῖτο. Schol.

781. ὁ τῶν π.;] 'The rascal mob! did they?' Ae. 'Yes by Zeus, they did (so shout) sky-high.' The last phrase Aristophanes illustrates himself in Nub. 357, οὐρανομήκη ῥήξατε φωνήν. In construction it is like θαυμάσιον ὄσον.

783. ἐνθάδε] 'here in the theatre:' the world below being for a moment forgot. Just so above in l. 276 καὶ νυνὶ γ' ὀρώ.

788. ἐκεῖνος] 'Not he indeed: but on coming down he greeted Aeschylus as a brother—and he (Aeschylus) had vacated (or offered room on) the seat to Sophocles.' I do not see how the second ἐκεῖνος can be Sophocles, as Kock takes it. ἐκεῖνος is always emphatic, and there can be no emphasis if the subject to ὑπεχώρησε be the same as to ἔκυσσε κἀνέβαλε. The line κἀκεῖνος...θρόνου is parenthetical: then Aecus goes on to say that Sophocles was prepared to do battle with Euripides in the event of Aeschylus being defeated. Meanwhile he would sit as ἐφεδρος, the odd combatant awaiting the winner of a pair.

791. Κλειδημίδης] Probably an actor of Sophocles: but why mentioned here, is not plain. Meineke punctuates ὡς ἔφη, Κλειδημίδης ἐφεδρος κ. "magno sensus discrimine." This punctuation Holden interprets 'But now Sophocles, as he said, was going to sit like another Clidemides as a third combatant.' But why like a Clidemides? Paley supposes Meineke to mean 'Clidemides was going, as he said, to contest the throne with Euripides, if Euripides should overcome Aeschylus.' On the whole it is best to suppose Sophocles the subject to ἔμελλεν: but the explanation of ὡς ἔφη Κλ. must be left open, since we know nothing of the man.

796. κἀνταῦθα] 'Here' in Pluto's palace, into which they go at l. 812.

798. μειαγωγήσουσι] 'will they weigh tragedy like butcher's meat?' It is said that when a victim was provided at the Apaturia the bystanders clamorously said μέιον μέιον 'too little, too little,' if it was not up to the prescribed weight. Hence to test whether it was short weight came to be called μειαγωγήειν.

799. κανόνας] 'rules and cubit measures and oblong frames.' The last word suggests brickmaking; so Xanthias throws in 'What! are they going to make bricks?' For vulg. πλινθεύουσιν γε continued to Aecus, most editors have accepted Kock's correction.

801. καὶ δ.] Aecus continues not heeding the interruption 'And diagonals.' These would test the correctness of bricks, hewn stones, etc. 'Wedges' would serve to split open any part of the structure. No doubt all the words here used were familiar to masons or carpenters.

804. γούν] Much better than δ' οὖν. As elsewhere, so here γούν gives a proof of the previous conclusion. See note on Ach. 87, 'at any rate, at all events.'

807. συνέβαιν'] 'he did not hit it off with the Athenians, and yet he thought that all the rest of the world were fools as critics of poetry.' τᾶλλα in l. 809 = τοὺς ἄλλους: Paley aptly quotes Lys. 860 ἡ ῥός ἐστι τᾶλλα πρὸς Κινησίαν.

813. κλαύμαθ'] Blows await the servants if absent from duty when their masters are earnestly set on anything.

814—829. The Chorus describe the impending contest in Aeschylean style. They combine metaphors from lion, wild-boar, and horse-racing; and then in well-chosen words express Euripides' subtle versatility and refinements. The galloping dactylic measure is suitable to the subject: it is arranged in four stanzas of four lines each.

814. ἦ που] The first four lines describe Aeschylus in his wrath. He is 'loud thundering' like Zeus (Hom. Il. v. 624): he rolls his glaring eye-balls like a lion when he sees his adversary, wild-boar-like, whetting his tusks (Il. v. 475).

815. ὀξύλαλον κ.τ.λ.] 'When he catches a side-glance at his rival-craftsman as he whets his sharp-spoken tusk.' The strict construction appears to be ἀντ. θήγοντος gen. absolute, and παρίδῃ without an object expressed. Others take παρίδῃ ὀδόντα ἀντιτέχνου θ. Others again παρίδῃ ἀντιτέχνου θήγοντος ὀδόντα, supposing παρίδῃ might (as a verb of sense) take a genitive. The meaning is the same any way. ὀξύλαλον as epithet of ὀδόντα need not offend. The tusk would properly be ὀξύς: but for a war of bitter words it may be ὀξύλαλος.

818. ἔσται δ' ἵππ.] This stanza describes the contest. ἵππολόφων is near the Homeric ἵπποκόμους τρυφαλείας, and κορινθαίολος is Homeric. Why Fritzsche prefers ὑψιλόφων I cannot see. The words of l. 818 describe Aeschylus especially, those of l. 819 Euripides

819. σκινδ. παραξόνια] It is hard to say exactly what this means. σκινδάλαμοι are 'splinters' and we have in Λυβ. 130 λόγων τ' ἀκριβῶν σκινδαλάμους μαθήσομαι. 'Subtleties' might be called σκινδάλαμοι. Most commentators take παραξόνια from ἄζων, and L. and S. render it 'rapid whirlings.' Fritzsche thinks it means 'linch-pins.' Neither of these two explanations makes much sense. Kock takes the word to be from παρὰ and ξέω, and to mean 'chips, shavings,' like παραπίσματα in l. 881. Perhaps this is better as a description of Euripides' language and weapons. Paley suggests 'hair-breadth encounters' as where axle grazes axle in the race. But the genitive 'of splinters' is not easily explicable on this view: we should expect 'splinters from collisions' not 'collisions of splinters.'

σμιλεύματα] τὰ ἐκβαλλόμενα ἀπὸ σμίλης, Schol. The whole passage is in effect about this: 'And there will be of horse-plumed words helm-flashing combats, and splintered chips withal, and fine shreds of carven work, while the poor wight (Euripides) wards off the high-prancing phrases of his inventive foe.'

822. φρίξας κ.τ.λ.] Homeric phrases: Od. τ. 446 φρίξας εὖ λοφίην πῦρ δ' ὀφθαλμοῖσι δεδορκώς; and Il. ρ. 136, πᾶν δέ τ' ἐπισκύνιον κάτω ἔλκεται ὅσσε καλύπτων. Aeschylus is the royal lion: but the next metaphors are from the dockyard: 'he will hurl bolt-riveted phrases, rending them off plank-wise, with Titanic heaving lungs.' Mitchell quotes compounds of γόμφος from Aeschylus.

826. ξυθεν κ.τ.λ.] Euripides is now described. 'Then on the other side with craft of mouth, testing each word and smooth, the other's tongue will uncoil, and shaking the loose reins of malice will dissect words and subtly waste to nought the outcome of his foeman's labouring lungs.' Euripides is στοματοργός, he works with mouth not with mind (φρενοτέκτων): he gives loose reins to his malice (φθονερός κ. χ.); he does away with, consumes (κατὰ in καταλεπτολογήσει) Aeschylus' laboured work.

830—874. Dionysus, Aeschylus, and Euripides come on. Euripides maintains his own superior excellence; Aeschylus is disdainful; Dionysus tries to moderate, and persuades them to a calm trial of the case. He then prays to be led to a right decision.

833. ἀποσεμνυνέται] 'He'll try the grand air, as he always used to do with his marvels in his tragedies.' Such were his Achilles and Niobe, who spoke not, but 'looked the more:' see below, l. 912. For ἐτερατεύετο cf. Eg. 627 ἀναρρηγνύς ἔπη τερατευόμενος ἥρειδε κατὰ τῶν ἱππέων.

835. ὦ δαιμόνι' ἀνδρῶν] To Euripides, whom D. warns not to boast too soon.

836. ἐγῴδα κ.τ.λ.] Euripides feels sure that he knows his man to be a bombastic talker of nonsense, whom he can easily expose. In describing him he rather takes a leaf out of his opponent's book with his compounds. ἀχάλινος is Euripides' own: Bacch. 385, and ἀθυρόγλωσσος in Orest. 903 is like ἀθύρωτον στόμα.

839. ἀπεριλάλητον] 'not skilled in neat periphrase,' Or 'that cannot be out-talked.' But this last hardly suits Aeschylus, who can hardly be called chattering or talkative, though fond of long words: binding bombastic words together in bundles (κομποφακελορρήμων) like sticks in a faggot.

840. ἀληθες] Expressing surprise and indignation: cf. Eg. 19, Nub. 841.

τῆς ἀρ. θεοῦ] 'of the garden goddess:' in allusion to Euripides' mother being a herb-seller, cf. Ach. 478, Eg. 19. The line is a parody from Euripides, ἀρουραίας being put for θαλασσίας. Fritzsche thinks the line was from the Telephus and addressed to Achilles son of Thetis.

841. σὺ δὴ 'μέ] It seems best thus to emphasize both pronouns. Vulg. σὺ δὴ με. Kock quotes Ach. 593, ταυτὶ λέγεις σὺ τὸν στρατηγὸν πτωχὸς ὢν; Lamachus is there dealing with Dicaeopolis in the rags of Telephus; Aeschylus here with Telephus' poet.

στωμυλιοσυλλεκτάδη] 'Chit-chat collector, and beggar-maker, and rag-patcher.' The whole scene in Ach. 412—435 illustrates the two last names. The second explanation of ρακιοσυρραπτάδης given by the Scholiast, ὁ τὰ τῶν ἄλλων ποιητῶν συλλέγων καὶ οἰκεία ἑαυτοῦ λογιζόμενος, though not the chief meaning, may yet be implied.

844. μὴ πρὸς ὀργὴν κ.τ.λ.] Comparing l. 856 and l. 997, ὅπως μὴ πρὸς ὀργὴν ἀντιλέξεις, in both of which passages Aeschylus is addressed, we cannot doubt that this line means simply 'do not be angry;' and not, as Fritzsche says, 'do not by your wrath inflame Euripides' heart to anger.' The line is perhaps a quotation.

846. χωλοποιὸν] Cf. Ach. 411. οἷος ὦν θρασύνεται 'what he really is, for all his impudence.'

848. τυφῶς] To the storm-spirit a black lamb was the proper offering: 'nigram hiemi pecudem, zephyris felicibus albam,' Virg.

849. Κρητικὰς] With reference to Phaedra (a Cretan) in the Hippolytus, or, as the Scholiast says, to a monody of Icarus in the Cretes, or to Aerope in the Cressae. For γάμοι ἀν. cf. Nub. 1372. Canache and Macareus in the Aeolus are meant, and perhaps others.

851. 2. πολυτίμητ'...πονήρ'] These two epithets may be looked on as prophetic of the ultimate issue. The first is especially applied to gods, and almost = 'divine' contrasted with 'you rascal.'

854. κεφαλαίῳ] 'big as your head,' an unusual sense of the word, but no doubt the true sense, as Paley says. 'Bump against Euripides' head will come a cannon-ball of a word as big as the head, and will spill all the head-lining (ἐγκέφαλον);' only for this the poet substitutes Telephus—the play for the brains that hatched it.

856—9. σὺ δὲ κ.τ.λ.] Calm argument, not abuse, becomes poets. That ἀρτοπώλιδες were scolds we see in Vesp. 1388—1410. We should perhaps select fish-wives as most abusive. For the quick flaring-up of πρίνος cf. Ach. 666.

860. ἔτοιμος] Euripides professes himself ready for the fight. δάκνειν, a term from cock-fighting: cf. Eq. 496, μέμνησό νυν δάκνειν, διαβάλλειν, τοὺς λόφους κατεσθίειν.

862. τὰπη...τραγωδίας] ἔπη the dialogue, μέλη the lyric parts. νεῦρα seems not to be a third distinct part, but rather a metaphor in apposition to the whole, 'even the very nerves and sinews of my tragedy,' which he offers as it were for dissection.

863. Πηλέα] This and the other plays mentioned are now lost. The Aeolus and Telephus have just been attacked: of the Meleager a specimen is ridiculed in l. 1238. Of Telephus and Peleus Horace speaks (A. P. 96) with some praise: 'Telephus and Peleus, when poor and exiled, dismiss swelling language and long words, if they wish to move the pity of the audience.'

868. ὅτι ἡ π.] Aeschylus' poetry still lives up above; Euripides' has died with him: therefore Euripides will have his at hand, Aeschylus will not.

871. ἴθι νυν λιβανωτὸν] A preliminary offering of incense and prayer: as before the comic trial of the dogs in Vesp. 860.

875—906. The Chorus call the Muses to witness the contest between the two poets. The rivals are told to pray, which they do, each in his own fashion. Great things are to be expected from both: subtleties from one, tremendous vehemence from the other.

877. γνωμοτύπων] Cf. Nub. 951 γνωμοτύποις μερίμναις: also Thesm. 55, Eg. 1379.

ὄξυμερίμναις] τοῖς μετὰ σκέψεως εὕρισκομένοις, Schol. Tricks of rhetoric are compared to tricks of wrestling: cf. above, l. 775, λυγισμῶν.

880. δεινотάτων] Join with πορίσασθαι 'most clever at inventing.'

881. ῥήματα] 'fine phrases:' the Scholiast says these refer to Aeschylus, the παραπίσματα to Euripides' λεπτελογόοντα. Many editors think ῥήματα corrupt. Kock proposes πρέμνα τε, Meineke κρημνά τε, Thiersch ρεύματα, Stallbaum ῥήγματα. One might add κνήματα 'scrapings, filings:' yet perhaps 'nihil mutandum,' as Holden says.

886. Δήμητερ] Aeschylus, a native of Eleusis, prays to its patron goddess. He had probably himself been initiated; and Fritzsche guesses these lines to have been the opening lines of his play the Ἐλευσίνιοι.

887. εἶναι] Supply δὲ here and in l. 894.

888. καλῶς] As above in l. 508. Euripides declines to offer incense.

890. κόμμα] 'coinage.' So in Nub. 247—9 Socrates speaks of gods not being νόμισμα with him and his disciples, and Strepsiades asks if they have an iron currency to swear by.

891. ἰδιώταις θ.] 'your amateur gods.' A term more contemptuous than ἱδιοί: it contrasts Euripides' special private committee of gods with the gods who in their high office are supreme rulers of all: whom Aeschylus terms σέλμα σεμνὸν ἡμενοί in Ag. 183.

892. αἰθὴρ κ.τ.λ.] 'Ether my pasture, and thou pivot of my tongue, and apprehension, and keen-scenting nostrils.' Socrates in Nub. 329—31 calls the clouds gods, and says they feed (βόσκουσι) numbers of sophists.

895—906. The Chorus express their eagerness to hear the trial: there will be elegance and subtlety on one side, giant force on the other.

897. ἐπιτε κ.τ.λ.] The text is Dindorf's. ἐμμέλειαν is in MSS. and Scholia. Holden, with Kock and Meineke, has τίνα λόγων, τιν' ἐμμελείας ἔ. δ. ὁ. 'We are eager to hear what hostile path of words, what hostile path of melody ye will enter on.' Kock supposes λόγων to refer to the tragic dialogue, ἐμμελείας to the choruses. Line 897 ought to correspond to l. 996.

901. τὸν μὲν] Euripides: τὸν δὲ Aeschylus. Euripides is the poet for ἀστεῖα and κομψά: cf. the compound κομψευριπικῶς, Eg. 18.

903. ἀνασπῶντ' αὐτ.] The constr. is 'that the other will with uprooted words, tearing them up, fall on and scatter etc.' Aeschylus is as one of the giants fighting the gods. Paley aptly quotes from Horace 'evulsisque truncis Enceladus jaculator audax.'

904. ἀλινδήθρας ἐπῶν] στροφὰς λεπτολογίας πλοκάς τοῦ Εὐριπίδου, Schol. Aeschylus will batter and rout with his heavy artillery the words of Euripides which will in vain roll and twist about to escape. This appears the most probable meaning. But L. and S. render ἀλινδήθρας ἐπῶν 'long-rolling words,' that is, of Aeschylus; and then συσκεδᾶν must be 'will discharge in volleys.' The proper meaning of ἀλινδήθρα is said to be 'a place for horses to roll in:' hence it might come to mean (as Kock and Paley think) 'the place of the combat or scrummage.' But how could any one be said συσκεδᾶν 'to scatter' a place?

907—970. Euripides blames the general character of the plays of Aeschylus: his characters sit mute: then come a few big unintelligible words, marvels to astound the vulgar. Whereas he himself has improved the drama: has done away with turgid bombast: has increased the dialogue, introduced argument, spoken of common and intelligible things. Aeschylus trains big lubberly fools, Euripides clever statesmen.

907. καὶ μὴν...εἰμι] On this tetrameter iambic metre Frere remarks, in his translation of the Knights, "it is so essentially base and vulgar that no English song afforded a specimen fit to be quoted." A friend however suggested to him the first line of "a song, vulgar yet inoffensive: 'A captain bold of Halifax, who lived in country quarters.'" Frere notes further that "this metre is always appropriated in the comedies of Aristophanes to those scenes of argumentative altercation in which the ascendancy is given to the more ignoble character; in this respect it stands in decided contrast with the anapaestic measure." Instances in point are the dialogue between the sausage-seller and Cleon, Eg. 335—460: the argument of Ἀδίκος λόγος Nub. 1036—1082, whereas Δίκαιος λόγος speaks in anapaests, l. 961—1008: the criticisms of Euripides here, answered by Aeschylus in anapaests at l. 1006—1076.

910. μῶρους λ.] Aeschylus found the public fools, and deceived them and kept them so. Phrynichus, the disciple of Thespis, was one of the founders of tragedy. He flourished from B.C. 511 to 476. The structure of his plays was simple: there was but one actor. Aristophanes praises him Av. 750, Vesp. 220, Thesm. 164.

911. ἂν καθίσειν] 'He would introduce some character seated, muffling it up.' The aorist is transitive: for the ἂν giving a sense of 'habit' comp. l. 913, 924. No doubt Aeschylus and his predecessors did bring on dumb characters for show; indeed to see was originally as much a part of tragedy as to hear. The Chorus were meanwhile singing their odes. Such a visible picture of emotion deserves no blame. Niobe doubtless was silent in grief: Achilles is represented as mute for a long while in The ransom of Hector, or The Phrygians.

913. γρύζοντας] So οὐδὲ γρῦ 'not a syllable' in Demosth. 353. 10.

914. ἥρειδεν ὀρμαθοῦς] Cf. Eg. 627 ἀναρρηγνὺς ἔπη τερατευόμενος ἥρειδε κατὰ τῶν ἱππέων, where ἥρειδε as well as ἀναρρηγνὺς seems to govern ἔπη. The verb is also used intransitively, Nub. 558 πάντες ἐρείδουσιν εἰς Ὑπέρβολον.

917. ἡλίθιος γάρ] In sense γάρ is better than ἄρ' which Fritzsche and Bergk read to make a tribrach in place of an anapaest. Perhaps, as Paley suggests, ἡλίθιος was pronounced as a trisyllable. For the same metrical reason Meineke and others change ἱππαλεκτρύνα in l. 932 to ἱππαλέκτορα, as also in Nub. 1427.

919. καθόιτο] A doubtful form : several editors correct to καθήτο, following the analogy of ἐμπλήμην Ach. 236. And in Lys. 149 καθήμεθα is found. But such forms as εἰδώς and οἶδα, εἰκὸς and οἰκός, show how readily the sounds εἰ and οἰ were interchanged. And οἰ may have occasionally supplanted ηἰ in this optative, much as in τιθείμην for τιθείμην.

920. τὸ δρᾶμα δ' ἂν δ.] 'The action of the play would be going on,' but the spectators would be only attending to the mute figure and so miss its imperfections.

922. σκορδιῶ] Aeschylus makes gestures of weariness and disgust.

924. βεία] 'ox-like, huge : ' the words are like nondescript animals with grim brow and mane, and hobgoblin face.

926. ἄγνωτα] From ἄγνωτος. There are three forms, ἄγνως, ἄγνωτος, ἄγνωστος. The first form is not used in the neuter gender, acc. to the Scholiast.

927. οὐδὲ ἔν] Some editors write this as one word οὐδέέν. To use it as a trisyllable, without elision, became commoner in the later comic poets : in the Plutus of Aristophanes are four instances : l. 37 ὑγιὲς μηδὲ ἔν. l. 138 οὐκ ἄλλ' οὐδὲ ἔν. l. 1115 οὐκ ἄλλ' οὐδὲ ἔν. l. 1182 νῦν δ' οὐδὲ εἰς. Porson (in his preface to Hecuba) suggests that in this passage of the Frogs, an earlier play than the Plutus, Aristophanes probably wrote οὐδ' ἂν ἔν.

928. Σκαμάνδρους] There seems nothing to carp at in the mere mention of the Scamander (Ag. 511, 1157, Choeph. 564, Eum. 398) : but Euripides objects to Aeschylus' constant choice of Homeric subjects as well as to his big words about them. In Prom. Vinc. 395 he speaks of Ocean's four-footed griffin.

930. ᾧ ξυμβαλεῖν κ.τ.λ.] 'to guess whose meaning was not easy.' Compare Phidippides' similar estimate of Aeschylus in Nub. 1366, 7.

νῆ τοὺς θεοὺς κ.τ.λ.] 'Yes, indeed : for instance I have passed many a sleepless night trying to make out Aeschylus' horse-cock.' Dionysus appears to be parodying from Eur. Ilirr. 375 ἥδη ποτ' ἄλλως νυκτὸς ἐν μακρῷ χρόνῳ θνητῶν ἐφρόντισ' ἥ διέφθαρται βίος. This compound animal, of which Aristophanes makes fun in Pac. 1177, Av. 800, is said to be in the Myrmidons of Aeschylus. That poet seems indeed to have had a fancy for strange monsters ; taken (l. 938) from Persian or Assyrian embroideries. That the figure-head on a ship should be a little out of the common way seems allowable enough. Several editors read ἱππαλέκτορα, ἱππαλέκτορας in l. 932, 937. Cf. note on l. 917.

934. Ἐρξιν] οὗτος γὰρ ὡς ἄμφορος καὶ ἀηδὴς διαβάλλεται, Schol

935. εἴτ' ἐχρήν] Cocks are absolutely out of place in tragedy, argues Euripides. You have put worse things in your plays, retorts Aeschylus. But not mysterious monsters like yours, rejoins Euripides.

938. παραπετάσμασιν] The monstrous figures on Eastern tapestry are well known. Some might be fanciful, some intended for really existing creatures. Pliny says (N. H. 8. 33, 50) that the τραγέλαφος was found near the river Phasis.

939. παρέλαβον κ.τ.λ.] Euripides speaks as a physician of a patient, whom he has reduced by dieting. Most of the terms used are medical. From Aeschylus' bad treatment the patient had become swollen, heavy, and palsy: Euripides set to work to remedy all this.

941. ἰσχναυα] Kock quotes Hippocrates for this word used medically. The prescriptions for making Tragedy thinner were ἐπύλλια 'dainty phrases' in place of κομπάσματα 'bombast'; 'constitutional walks' (περίπατοι) with some reference to the other meaning 'philosophical discussion:' and 'beet-root,' which appears to have been applied to reduce tumours. In Aesch. Prom. Vinc. 377—80, there is rather a similar use of medical terms: ΩΚ. ὀργῆς νοσοῦσης εἰσὶν ἰατροὶ λόγοι. ΠΡ. εἰάν τις ἐν καιρῷ γε μαλθάσῃ κέαρ, καὶ μὴ σφριγῶντα θυμὸν ἰσχυαίνῃ βίῃ.

943. χυλόν] By way of purgative a thin juice strained from philosophical books was given.

944. εἴτ' ἀνέτρεφον] After the thinning process, to get rid of all superfluous bulk, the patient had to be fed up, on 'monodies,' of which Euripides was fond, see l. 849, 1330, with Cephisophon infused. Cephisophon, it is insinuated, helped Euripides in his plays: cf. below, l. 1408, 1452—3. Some say he was a slave of Euripides, others an actor. In Ach. 395 he appears to be living with Euripides, as also in l. 1408 of this play. Plainly he is here an ingredient to make the brew more nutritious.

945. ἐλήρουν ὃ τι τύχοιμ'] 'I did not talk the first nonsense that came uppermost, nor plunge into my subject and make a jumble.' Cf. Eq. 545 ἐσπηδήσας ἐφλυάρει.

946. οὐζίων] 'The actor who came out.' Euripides in his prologues makes the actor clearly state what has happened before, who the characters are, or, as he calls it, tell 'the family history' of the play. Almost any play of Euripides will illustrate this, e. g. Ion, Hecuba, Iphigenia in Tauris. This gives occasion for a hit at Euripides' family. On εἴτ' ἄν it should be noticed that the elision of the ε of the third person before ἄν is rare; yet perhaps not so rare, nor so objectionable on any known reason, as to justify us in changing the text here or elsewhere. Certainly the ἄν is best retained for the sense, cf. παρήκ' ἄν, ἔλεγεν ἄν below.

949. ἔλεγει κ.τ.λ.] 'Every one used to speak in my plays.' 'For which you ought to have been punished.' 'No: it was true republican spirit that led me to act so.' 'The less said about that the better. You have no very good argument (περίπατος) to help you out there.'

Euripides had too often shown sympathy with oligarchs to set up now for a democrat. There may also be allusion, as Hermann and Kock think, to his residence with king Archelaus in Macedonia.

954. τουτουσι] 'these spectators,' the Athenian public. Euripides' claims to have taught his countrymen argument, perception, art, etc. rather recal Prometheus' speech detailing his gifts to mortals (Aesch. Prom. Vinct. 442—61). Mortals were helpless babes before, confusing everything (ἔφυρον εἰκῇ πάντα): so were the Athenians (ἀβελτερώτατοι κεκηνότες l. 989) till Euripides came abroad as their schoolmaster.

956. ἔσβολας] Supply again ἐδίδαξα: 'And I taught them the introductions.' Cf. l. 1104 for εἰσβολὰς σοφισμάτων. With γωνιασμούς ἐπῶν 'squaring of phrases' compare above, l. 799—801.

958. φημί κάγώ] That he did teach all this, Aeschylus grants; that it was good teaching, he denies.

959. οἰκεῖα π.] I spoke of things 'familiar in their mouths as household words:' so that I could be brought to book if wrong; whereas Aeschylus astounded and mystified his audience with unintelligible marvels.

961. ἐκομπολάκουν] Cf. Ach. 589 κομπολακύθου 'the brag-bird' on Lamachus' helm.

963. Κύνους] Cycnus and Memnon were heroes slain by Achilles, and doubtless introduced in some Aeschylean dramas. In Aesch. Sept. c. Theb. 385 Tydeus has bells to his shield: ὑπ' ἀσπίδος δὲ τῷ χαλκή-λατοι κλάζουσι κώδωνες φόβου.

965. Φορμίσσιος] Apparently a hairy man, Ecc. 91. Subsequently he took part in the recel of the people on the fall of the Thirty tyrants. Of Megaenetus we know nothing, nor why he was Μάγνης or Μανῆς. The Scholiast says he was αὐθάδης καὶ ἀναίσθητος. The word Μανῆς is supposed by Fritzsche here to mean 'an unlucky dice-player,' and Μανῆς to have been a name for a bad throw of the dice. It is a common name for a slave.

966. σαλπιγγολογχυπηνάδαι] 'Trompeten-lanzen-knebelbärte' Voss. The long untranslatable compounds are in ridicule of Aeschylus.

σαρκ.] The robber Sinis was the πιτυοκάμπτης, who killed his victims by fastening them to bent pines and then loosing the trees. Cf. Ovid Met. 7. 441. Aeschylus' terrible blusterers are like Sinis, who may have been described or painted with a dog-like grin (σαρκασμός). Perhaps 'pine-bender' had passed into a proverbial expression for 'a bully, a fire-eater.' Thus Kock renders it 'Hohnlächel-eisensfresser.'

967. Κλειτοφῶν] Probably the same who is mentioned in Plato Rep. 428 B. The Scholiast says he was 'idle' ἀργός. Theramenes' cleverness has been already spoken of l. 540.

969, 70. ὁς...Κεῖος] The whole meaning is 'If any one is in a scrape, and Theramenes is his neighbour or comrade, Theramenes manages to tumble out of it and light on his feet, getting good and not evil out of it.' But the exact explanation of the last phrase is doubtful. Heindorf (on Plat. Prot. 341 E) says that the Chians were proverbially bad, the Ceans good. Dindorf says: 'he is like the Lat in the fable, mouse or bird, as suits his interest: ' Chian or Cean, as suits his purpose. Others suppose that there is reference to dice, of which Xîos was the worst throw, Kῶos the best: but that Kēios is substituted for the proper contrast Kῶos in order to make a hit at Theramenes' Cean descent. This appears not so good as the other explanation. Theramenes will always get out of a scrape cleverly, and by some change and trick (no greater than the difference between the two Greek words Xîos and Kēios) he escapes hurt and discredit, and wins profit and honour, turns out 'no Chian but a Cean.'

971—991. I have taught my fellow-citizens to be clever and acute in everything, says Euripides. Indeed you have, says Dionysus; they are all sharp and suspicious now, whereas they were before simpletons.

971. μέντοι γὰρ φρονεῖν] μέντοι ἐγὼ φ. Some read μέντοι σωφρονεῖν.

973. ἐνθεῖς τῇ τέχνῃ] By introducing into tragic art argument and examination Euripides has taught his countrymen to be argumentative and suspicious in common household matters.

979. τοῦτ' ἔλαβε] The tribrach at the end of short iambic verses occurs in Nub. 1386, 8, 9. But here, at the end of the speech, this solitary instance sounds ill. Bentley proposed τὸδ' ἔλαβεν, an ending precisely corresponding to l. 988 παρέτραγεν, dactyl followed by iambus.

980. νῆ τοὺς θεοὺς κ.τ.λ.] Dionysus gives absurd instances of Athenian acuteness in detecting the loss of a sprat, a plate, garlic, olive. For εἰσίων 'when he goes indoors' cf. Thesm. 395, where the same kind of thing is mentioned.

990. Μαρμάκυθοι] 'babies' or 'boobies:' derived by some from μάμμα and κεύθω. Μελητιδαί or Μελητιδαί 'sweet simpletons.' ἡδὺς is used for 'silly' and perhaps βλιτομάμματος which L. and S. compare with Μαρμάκυθος combines the elements of the two (μέλι, μάμμα).

992—1005. The Chorus caution Aeschylus to curb his wrath and answer carefully his adversary's charges.

992. τάδε κ.τ.λ.] The first line of the Myrmidones of Aeschylus. The Chorus there appeal to Achilles to help the suffering Greeks: the second line is δοριλυμάντους Δαναῶν νόχθους.

993. ὅπως] Kock and Meineke mark a lacuna here. Nothing is positively wanting to the sense: in the antistrophic line 897 the reading is rather doubtful. The sense is 'only take care (ὅρα supplied) lest etc.'

995. ἐλαῶν] A line of olives marked the course within which the runners must keep. Aeschylus is warned not to run wildly out of the course in his answer.

999. συστέλλας] A different metaphor, from a ship. 'Reef your sails while the wind is violent, when it abates you can put on more speed and be down on your adversary.' For συστέλλας cf. Eg. 432 ἐγὼ δὲ συστέλλας γε τοὺς ἀλλάντας εἴτ' ἀφήσω κατὰ κῦμ' ἐμαυτὸν οὖριον: also Eg. 440—41. ἄκροισι χρ. τ. ἰστίους 'using but the edges of your sails.' Cf. Eur. Med. 524—7, quoted on Eg. 432.

1001. ἄξεις] As the nautical meaning of this is questionable, various corrections have been proposed : ἄξεις 'you will speed on, put on sail' Fritzsche : οἷξεις 'vela pandes' Bergk, which is very unlikely to have been written. μάλλον ἄσσον ἄξεις 'you will bring your ship nearer to your enemy' Meineke. To which might be added ἐξει comparing Eg. 760.

1002. φυλάξεις] 'watch' for a chance of attack, when you have got the wind calm and settled. The whole passage means 'Don't let your passion get the better of your judgement.'

1004. πυργώσας] Cf. Pac. 749 ἐποίησε τέχνην μεγάλην ἡμῖν κἀπύργωσ' οἰκοδομήσας ἔπεσιν μεγάλοις.

1005. λήρον] By surprise for τέχνην; spoken in goodnatured joke. Others take it as if Aeschylus found tragedy λήρος, but made it something better.

κρουνὸν ἀφίει] 'let forth your flood, open the sluice-gates' of your eloquence. Aristophanes combines in one word κρουνὸς and λήρος in Eg. 89 κρουνοχυτρολήραιος.

1006—1097. Aeschylus makes his defence. The art of poetry ought to elevate men and inspire high thoughts; this I have done, he argues; but Euripides just the opposite. He mentions the plays in which he has done this, being now and then interrupted by criticisms from Dionysus. But Euripides has encouraged wrongful passion, and brought prominently forward things which should be hidden. His own grandiloquence he defends, because high thoughts require high words: whereas Euripides' common mean characters have taught meanness and cowardice. This Dionysus confirms by an instance or two.

1006. ξυντυχία] 'the chance, the circumstances in which I am placed,' i.e. the fact that I Aeschylus have to speak at all against this fellow.

1007. φάσκη] He abruptly turns from addressing Dionysus or the Chorus to address Euripides. I should not prefer φάσκης, which Paley suggests. Aeschylus says 'I don't think I ought to have to argue with such a fellow, but lest he say I am nonplussed—Answer me, sir.'

1012. τεθνάναι] In his hurry to pronounce the deserved punishment Dionysus forgets that death is an impossible penalty in Hades.

1014. γενναίους καὶ τετραπ.] 'Noble six-foot heroes:' cf. Vesp. 553 ἄνδρες μεγάλοι καὶ τετραπήχεις. And for the 'shirkers' of public duty cf. Ach. 601, νεανίας δ' οὔους σὺ διαδεδρακτάς.

1016. πνέοντας δόρυ] breathing war: each article of armour offensive and defensive being named, and the list closing with the epithet of the shield of Ajax in Homer, 'souls of seven-bull-stoutness.'

1018. τὸ κακόν] This plague of Aeschylus' warlike words. Cf. Nub. 906, τουτὶ καὶ δὴ χωρεῖ τὸ κακόν.

1019. καὶ τί] Kock gives this line to Euripides, whose question Aeschylus does not answer: therefore Dionysus in l. 1019 bids him speak and not give himself grand airs.

1021. Ἀρεὺς μεστόν] A fit term for the play, as Mitchell shows by reference to ll. 42—52. 'Any one,' says Aeschylus, 'seeing it would long for battles.' 'But it improved the bravery of the Thebans, our enemies: that was a bad thing,' objects Dionysus.

1025. αὐτ'] αὐτὰ, that is τὰ πολεμικά.

1026. μετὰ τοῦτ'] The Persae was exhibited before the Septem c. Thebas, as the Scholiast tells us: but he sensibly remarks πλὴν οὐδὲ τῷ ποιητῇ ἐγκλητέον· οὐ γὰρ ἔστιν ἀκριβοῦς τὸ τοιοῦτον. Indeed Aeschylus is not thinking of the chronological order of the plays, but in claiming to have taught a warlike spirit he takes first his most warlike play: 'then next to this, after this, by the Persae I taught a desire for victory.' Kock, however, thinks that we must conclude from this passage that the Persae was played after the Septem c. Thebas, but that the latter may have been played again at a later date.

1028. ἡνίκ' ἀπηγγέλθη] Neither this (Dindorf's) nor any correction from the corrupt ἡνίκ' ἤκουσα, is fully satisfactory. In the Persae there is no 'news of Darius' death,' if περὶ Δαρείου τεθνεώτος be so understood. If Δαρείου τεθνεώτος mean 'the ghost of dead Darius,' there is no passage where the Chorus clap their hands and say ἱανοῖ. Paley suggests that at l. 662 of the Persae we might read Δαρεῖ' ἱανοῖ for Δαρείαν οἱ. The Chorus are there calling on the spirit of Darius. Bothe proposes παρὰ Δαρείου, 'from Darius,' supposing the reference to be to l. 790, etc. Dionysus' recollection may, as Paley says, refer to an earlier edition of the play.

1030. ἀσκεῖν] λάσκειν, Meineke from Hamaker, unnecessarily: 'poets ought to study and practise these subjects' is intelligible enough.

1032. Ὀρφεὺς] Cf. Plat. Rep. 364 E, βίβλων δὲ ὁμαδὸν παρέχονται Μουσαῖον καὶ Ὀρφέως, καθ' ὃς θυηπολοῦσι, πείθοντες ὡς ἄρα λύσεις τε καὶ καθαρμοὶ ἀδικημάτων διὰ θυσιῶν εἰσιν, ὃς δὴ τελετὰς καλοῦσιν. Horace (A. P. 381) says, 'Silvestres homines sacer interpresque deorum caedibus et victu foedo deterruit Orpheus.' Many other passages could be quoted showing that Orpheus and Musaeus were held instructors in religious mysteries.

1033. Ἡσίοδος] In his Works and Days.

1036. τάξεις κ.τ.λ.] There is surely plenty on these heads in our Homer, without supposing 'Homer' (as Paley suggests) to have a wider sense. Horace (A. P. 73) calls Homer's subjects 'Res gestae regumque ducumque et tristia bella.' And Horace certainly meant our Homer.

Παντακλέα] In a Panathenaic procession (ἡνίκ' ἔπεμπεν) this unfortunate wight put on his helmet before fastening the crest, which mistake earned him this ridicule and the epithet σκαῖος from Eupolis. A poet Pantacles is mentioned by Antiphon: it is thought that this was the same man.

1038. περιδησάμενος...ἐπιδήσειν] Surely both unobjectionable words. Herod. IV. 176 and Ar. Eccl. 118, 122 support the first. The second Herodotus (I. 171) uses in the middle voice, but the active is explicable enough. Having tied the helmet on himself, the man goes on to tie a crest on that. Kock's περιπηξάμενος is (to me) astounding; Bergk's ἐπιθήσειν needless. Kock says, 'den Helm kann man nicht umbinden.' 'Warum, gelehrte Kock, warum?'

1039. Λάμαχος] The hero of the earlier part of the Peloponnesian war: conspicuous in the scene of the Acharnians 1071—1142. He fell in Sicily, Thuc. vi. 103.

1040. ὅθεν] referring to Homer. ἀπομαξαμένη, 'having taken an impression' as from a seal. Cf. Thesm. 514, αὐτέκμαγμα σόν, 'your very image or copy.'

1042. ἀντεκτείνειν] To strive to equal them in measure, to come up to their standard.

1044. οὐδ' οἶδ' οὐδεὶς κ.τ.λ.] Paley observes that this is untrue, for the Agamemnon proves the contrary. Kock points out, however, that the love of Aegisthus and Clytaemnestra is not the chief motive in that play, and it is so dealt with that none could be corrupted by it. Certainly our whole impression of Clytaemnestra, the woman 'of a manly mind' (ἀνδρόβουλος), is not that she is γύνη ἐρώσα. But of course the assertions on either side in this contest are beyond the exact truth of fair criticism.

1045. οὐδὲ γὰρ ἦν] Kock would read μηδὲ γὰρ εἴη in the second half of the line: Bothe and Meineke οὐ γὰρ ἐπ' ἦν in the first half. Paley prefers μετ' ἦν and μετεῖη: 'you never had a grain of love in your composition.' The γὰρ in the first clause seems to me (as to Fritzsche) undoubtedly genuine. Also the γε in the second is quite natural. And though we might expect εἴη to correspond exactly to ἦν, yet ἐπεῖναι is common enough in this use, and the next line ἐπὶ τοι σοὶ rather confirms it.

1046. πολλή πολλοῦ] The use of πολὺς as part of the predicate with a verb is common: compare πολὺς ῥεῖ ποταμὸς and such phrases. Hence πολλή 'πικαθῆτο, 'sat heavy.' The genitive πολλοῦ is combined with it in Eg. 822 πολλοῦ δὲ πολὺν με χρόνον ἐλελήθης: and in Nub. 915 θρασὺς εἰ πολλοῦ. It appears to mean 'much, exceedingly.' Paley suggests 'κ πολλοῦ, 'long since,' here and ἐκ πολλοῦ in Nub. 915. But no such change could be made in Eg. 822, where πολλοῦ begins the line and sentence and is combined with πολὺν χρόνον. The three passages together seem to bear out the simple adverbial use of πολλοῦ. The fact meant by the whole sentence is that Euripides was unfortunate in his marriage.

1047. κατ' οὖν ἔβαλεν] A tmesis common in Herodotus: cf. Nub. 792 ἀπὸ γὰρ ὀλοῦμαι.

τοῦτό γέ τοι δῆ] apparently means 'this indeed is just the fact.'

1051. κώνεια πιεῖν] It is hard to believe that any honest women really did poison themselves from very shame for their sex: but some suicide may have been attributed to this cause. Fritzsche thinks that there may have been some such deaths caused by the distress of the times, and that Aristophanes maliciously throws the blame on Euripides.

1052. οὐκ ὄντα] Join these closely, 'was it an untrue story? No, true enough.' That is to say Euripides did not invent the facts, but used the story as it was really told. The passage shows the respect of the Greeks for their legends.

1054. τοῖς μὲν γὰρ π.] As boys are taught by a schoolmaster, so are grown men by us poets: therefore we have a responsibility on us, and must teach good things.

1057. Παρνασσῶν] Some read Παρνήθων, because Parnes, like Lycabettus, is in Attica. But Parnassus is more a representative big mountain: and Euripides is here speaking of Aeschylus' love for talking of big things and using big words, ῥήμαθ' ἱππόκρημνα of l. 929.

1058. ὃν χρῆ] ὃν is relative to 'you:' we should say 'whereas you ought.' To speak ἀνθρωπείως is to speak as man may speak and as man may understand.

1059. τίκειν] The subject to the infinitive is τὸν ποιητὴν or ἡμᾶς, 'one must bring forth big phrases to match big thoughts.'

1062. ἀμοῦ] ἀ is governed by both καταδείξαντος and διελυμήνω, 'all which when I had set forth excellently, you spoilt.' See below, l. 1078, for καταδεῖξαι in the same sense.

1065. οὔκουν κ.τ.λ.] Your putting kings into rags to move pity has suggested to our rich men the plan of shirking their duties: cf. above, l. 1014.

1066. περιειλλόμενος] Various read περιλλόμενος, περιειλόμενος, περιλάμενος. The pres. part. seems quite as good as the aorist. The word is plainly from the same stem as the Latin volvo; and οὔλων in the next line is from the same.

1068. ἀνέκυψεν] Cf. Pac. 147 ἀνακύψεται...ἔωθεν ἡ Σαλαμῖνία: see also the passage from Plat. Phaedo 109 E there quoted. ἰχθύς, 'the fish-market:' so used in Vesp. 789: cf. Eg. 1375, Lys. 557. The Athenians were especially extravagant in spending money on fish.

1070. παράλους] Probably 'the crew of the Paralus or state galley.' Fritzsche thinks that they had disobeyed orders at Arginusae. The Scholiast says κοινῶς δὲ παράλους τοὺς ἐκ τῶν τριήρων ναύτας. There is also a local meaning, 'people of the sea coast:' and the sailors might come chiefly from this class. The charge is of course an absurd one. Euripides has taught every one to argue and contradict: even our sailors.

1073. ῥυππαπαῖ] Cf. Vesp. 909, Eg. 602.

1077. πλεῖν δευρὶ κ. ἐ.] 'to go about at random, to and fro, aimlessly.' Paley says, 'the sailing seems opposed to the rowing, as giving the sailors less trouble.' But πλεῖν does not usually imply going by wind rather than oar: but merely by water and not by land.

1081. οὐ ζῆν τὸ ζῆν] In the Phrixus and the Polyidus this paradox is found. Cf. below, l. 1477.

1085. δημοπιθήκων] Cf. Eg. 887, οἷος πιθηκισμοῖς με περιελαύνεις. Meineke thinks the next line spurious: it is perhaps rather like an explanation of the compound δημοπιθήκων. The ape is a proverbial flatterer and deceiver.

1089. ἐπαφανάνθη] This compound implies the aspirated αὔαινομαι and αἶος. It is a curious phrase, 'to laugh all the moisture out of one's body.'

1093. Κεραμῆς] The race was in the Ceramicus, cf. above, l. 129. The πύλαι were the Thriasian gates, called also Dipylum.

1096. πλατεῖαις] Supply χερσὶ.

1098—1118. The Chorus anticipate a vigorous contest, and urge the combatants to do their best, assuring them that they will have an appreciative audience.

1101. ὁ μὲν...ὁ δὲ] Aeschylus and Euripides: at least τεῖνῃ βιαιῶς suits Aeschylus best. The words ἐπαναστρέφειν, ἐπερίδεσθαι appear to be military terms. The second word is less well explained as ἀπερίδεσθαι, 'hostem propellere,' by Kock.

1104. εἰσβολαὶ σ.] Cf. above, l. 956. But εἰσβολαὶ here might be 'assaults,' keeping up the military metaphor.

1106. ἀναδέρεσθον] So Brunck, Bothe, Dindorf. As a middle form it is doubtful, and a passive sense does not suit the rest of the passage. Fritzsche reads κἀναδέρετον. ἀναδέρειν is 'to bare or rip open an old wound.' Meineke, Holden, and Paley acquiesce in ἀνὰ δ' ἔρεσθον, 'question, examine.' But this seems weak: whereas λέγετον ἔπιτον should be followed by a word of more force: 'speak, attack, slash open.' τὰ παλαιὰ Fritzsche connects with ἀναδέρετον, τὰ καινὰ with λέγετον ἔπιτον. Perhaps both may be taken generally 'argue, attack, wound in every way, old and new.'

1112. οὐκ ἔθ'] 'no longer:' whatever the public may have been, they are now well-taught and intellectual: they have served abroad, studied at home, and are naturally clever. So in Eg. 230, τὸ γὰρ θέατρον δεξιόν.

1119—1250. Euripides first criticizes the prologues of Aeschylus: he accuses him of obscurity and tautology. Aeschylus in turn blames the prologues of Euripides, first as to their sense and diction, then as monotonous in metre or cadence. Dionysus appears to think Aeschylus has the best of it so far. They then go on to the lyric parts of their plays.

1119. σου] He addresses Aeschylus, but in l. 1120 turns to Dionysus, hence αὐτοῦ in l. 1121.

1122. ἀσαφής] Meineke rejects this line, saying 'nihil in prologorum Aeschyleorum censura Euripides reprehendit quod ad dictionis obscuritatem in rebus enarrandis pertineat.' Surely he does so in l. 1141—3.

1124. Ὀρεστίας] The trilogy consisting of the Agamemnon, Choephori, Eumenides. It is the prologue of the second play that is quoted: and the MS. of Aeschylus, as we have it, is deficient here: so we owe the opening verses of the play to this quotation.

1126. πατρὸς ἐπ. κράτη] The line is perhaps fairly open to the charge that it may mean more than one thing, (1) 'that dost look to the duties assigned to thee from thy father, (2) who dost watch over my father's sovereignty, the rule which my father had.' Of these Aeschylus himself (or Aristophanes for him) chooses the first: Fritzsche, with Aristarchus, the second. Euripides' third explanation is of course not likely to have been the meaning intended.

1129—31. δώδεκα.. εἰκοσὶν γ'] Twelve faults in three lines: then 'twenty in each line.' Astonished Dionysus tells Aeschylus to hold his peace or he will make bad worse.

1133. πρὸς τρισὶν... φανεί] 'Besides the three iambs you will be a debtor of something more.' If Aeschylus is proved guilty of twenty mistakes per line, his lines are worse than worthless, and the fewer he recites the better. This seems to be the meaning. Meineke suspects the whole passage, 1132—6, needlessly.

1133—5. Fritzsche's arrangement of these lines has been followed as the best for the sense. 'Ae. What! I hold my tongue for him? D. Yes, if you'll take my advice. Ae. Don't you see what nonsense you're talking? D. Well, I don't care a button for that.' Or Dionysus may mean 'well, it doesn't matter to me, if you come in for a worse penalty now it's your look out.' Then Euripides, after this aside between Dionysus and Aeschylus, continues in explanation of his last word ἀμαρτίας, 'For at the very outset he has made a monstrous mistake.'

1140. οὐκ ἄλλως λέγω] 'I don't deny your statement so far, granted.'

1141—3. πότερ' οὖν... ἔφη] Euripides interprets the first line of Aeschylus 'thou that regardest (ἐποπτεύων) the deed of violence (κράτη) wrought upon my father (πατρῷα):' which he paraphrases by ἐποπτεύειν ὡς ὁ πατήρ ἀπώλετο βιαίως, adding ἐκ γυναικείας κ.τ.λ. to make it plainer. And perhaps δόλοισι λ. is added (as Paley says) because Hermes was the god of deceit.

1144. ἐκείνον] 'He did not address that Hermes, Hermes in that character, δόλοισι, but the helper Hermes of the nether world.' Some editions, however, read ἐκεῖνος, comparing l. 788 and 1457: 'Not he, he (Orestes) did not mean that.'

1145. καδήλου] He made his meaning clear enough by saying that he held this office (of ἐριούνιος, σωτήρ) from his father. Here Aeschylus (or our poet for him) gives his comment on himself.

1147. μείζον] What this was we cannot exactly know. Paley suggests as completion, 'Zeus must have usurped the prerogatives of the powers below,' or 'Zeus himself might rather have been invoked as Preserver.'

1149. οὕτω κ.τ.λ.] Dionysus takes χθόνιος as 'earthy' or 'earth-grubbing,' and so makes out that Hermes will be τυμβώρυχος, 'a digger up of graves' by his father's side. τυμβώρυχος seems to be used only for one who profanely opens graves, not for 'a sexton.'

1150. οὐκ ἀνθοσμίαν] The flavour of his wine being bad makes his wit bad also. In place of 'bouquet' it has a mouldy smell.

1153. ἤκω καὶ κατέρχομαι] This use of κατέρχεσθαι, κατάγειν is very common in Attic Greek.

1155. σκόπει] Look carefully at the phrase, and I will point out the tautology. Euripides then repeats the line.

1158. νῆ τὸν Δί'] Dionysus is throughout a foolish critic, and easily assents to the last speaker. μάκτρα and κάρδοπος are two words for the same thing.

1160. κατεστρωμυλμένε] Is this deponent or passive? The present tense is commoner as deponent, cf. Thesm. 1073, Ran. 1071, Pac. 995. Paley however renders it 'talked at' in vain, on whom words leave no impression. The force of the perfect tense and of the κατὰ, if we take the verb as deponent, must be 'who have talked yourself out, spent all your sense in chatter.' This seems preferable.

1161. ἄριστ' ἐπῶν ἔχον] The construction is ἄριστα (adverbial) ἔχον 'very well arranged,' ἐπῶν 'in respect of expressions.' ἔχειν with adv. is frequent: and as καλῶς ἔχει=καλὸν ἐστίν, so ἄριστα ἔχον = ἄριστον ὄν.

1163. ἐλθεῖν κ.τ.λ.] Any one may be said 'to come' ἐλθεῖν, even a man who has not lost his country: and ἤκω=the perfect tense ἐλήλυθα. Meineke's change ἤκειν is needless.

1164. συμφορᾶς] 'misfortune' or simply 'fortune, chance, accident, circumstance.' Aeschylus means that ἐλήλυθεν or ἤκει would be used of any one who had 'come' without defining any accident or circumstance of his 'coming.' Whereas a banished man 'comes back.' The special use is seen in l. 462 of the Eumenides καγὼ κατελθὼν τὸν πρὸ τοῦ φεύγων χρόνον.

1168. λάθρα] Orestes' coming back was not a legal restoration, therefore the legal term should not have been used.

1173. αὖ δις] 'Here again he says another thing twice over.' Cobet's αὖ δις is very neat and a great improvement on αὖθις. As to the tautology, Euripides himself, as Fritzsche shows (Phoen. 919, Hipp. 362), couples the same words. No doubt ἀκούσαι means more in this passage than κλύειν. The first verb is 'to listen to, give ear:' the second really 'to take into the mind.' Paley quotes from Prom. Vinc. 448 κλύοντες οὐκ ἤκουον. But this distinction could not always be pressed.

1178. στοιβήν] σωρείαν λεξέων ἔξω τοῦ πρέποντος Schol. Unnecessary rubbish beside the point, 'stuffing, padding.'

1180. οὐ γάρ μούστιν ἄλλ'] Arrange οὐ γάρ ἀλλὰ ἀκ. μ. ἐ. 'I cannot choose but hear.' The elliptical οὐκ ἀλλὰ is very frequent in Aristophanes, cf. above, l. 58.

1182. ἦν κ.τ.λ.] From Euripides' Antigone. Aeschylus objects that Oedipus could not be called εὐδαίμων even at first, when it had been foretold to Laius before his marriage and his son's birth that this son should kill his father. Of course Euripides was speaking of Oedipus' external and apparent prosperity.

1184. φῦναι μὲν] This has no answering δέ: probably Aeschylus might have gone on to tell of Oedipus' early perils in infancy with an εἶτα δὲ. But Euripides breaks in with his second line: then comes again πρῶτον μὲν...εἶτα.

1190. ὀστράκῳ] A wretched substitute for a cradle: this and χεῖμῶνος ὄντος heighten the misery. But Thesm. 505 εἰσέφερε γράυς ἐν χύτρῃ τὸ παιδίον, quoted by Paley, shows that such a receptacle was not unusual. And the Scholiast on Vesp. 289 speaks of ἐκτι-θεμένων παίδων ἐν χύτραις.

1192. ἤρρησεν] 'came in, luckless wight!' cf. Eg. 4 εἰσήρρησεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν. His feet were swollen from the piercing of his ancles described in Eurip. Phoen. 25—7, and hence his name Oedipus.

1195—6. ἦν κ.τ.λ.] Happy indeed was he: he only wanted to be a colleague of Erasinides to complete such happiness. Ironically said of course. Erasinides was one of the generals condemned and executed after Arginusae.

1200. ἀπὸ ληκυθίου] This of course sounds absurd to Euripides at first: so in wonder he exclaims 'you destroy my prologues and from an oil-flask!' Then Aeschylus explains his meaning. It is the monotony of rhythm from the great prevalence in Euripides' lines of the penthemimeral caesura that is chiefly assailed. The ληκύθιον ἀπώλεσεν fits on metrically. It also fits on grammatically to the prologues here quoted, but not (as Paley remarks) to others of the extant plays.

1202. ἅπαν] Any word of this length and quantity.

1206. Αἴγυπτος] From the Archelaus, 'Aegyptus, as the current tale is told, with sons two-score and ten in well-oared barque At Argos landed and—An oil flask lost.'

1209. τούτῃ] This is better given to Dionysus, as Kock has it.

1211. Διόνυσος] From the Hypsipyle. The Scholiast completes the third line for us with παρθένους σὺν Δελφίσιν: and the next instance with πλουσίαν ἀροῖ πλάκα.

1217. οὐκ ἔστιν] From the Sthenoboea. In the first three specimens of prologue two lines and a half precede the fatal oil-flask: in the next two one line and a half: then half a line: then, on a protest against that, one and a half again: then Dionysus ends this part of the proof, and bids them go on to lyrics.

1220. ὑφέσθαι] Cf. Soph. El. πλεῖν ὑφειμένη δοκεῖ. Certainly δοκεῖ is better than the vulg. δοκεῖς, which could only mean 'you seem to reef sail:' not 'you ought, I think, to reef sail,' as is plainly needed for the sense. The ληκύθιον is spoken of as a dangerous gale, which will wreck the prologues.

1225. Σιδώνιον] From the Phrixus.

1227. ἀποπρίω] 'Buy away from him,' aor. imperat. to ἀπωνέομαι. Meineke's idea that the compound word here makes ἐγὼ 'ποπρίωμαι necessary in l. 1229 seems fanciful: and his proposed ἄγε πρίω in this line is quite needless.

1229. τῷδ';] Cf. Ach. 812 πόσον πρίωμαί σοι τὰ χοιρίδια; Pac. 1261 τούτῳ τὰ δόρατα ταῦτ' ὠνήσομαι. For the indignant exclamation cf. above, l. 1135.

1232. Πέλοψ] From the Iphigenia in Tauris.

1235. ἀπόδου] 'sell' addressed to Aeschylus: ἀπόδος most MSS. and some editors, which reading Fritzsche explains 'pay the money for it and get it, you will get it cheap.' This use of ἀποδοῦναι is not natural, it means generally 'to give back.' Nor is this a good explanation of l. 1236, which rather means 'you will get another very good flask quite cheap.' Kock supposes Aeschylus to be addressed, but retaining ἀπόδος renders it 'leave it to him, let him have it.' The middle voice 'sell it' suits better with πρίωμαι, ἀποπρίω above.

1238. Οἶνεϋς] From the Meleager. The Scholiast tells us that these are not the very first lines of the play, and that the conclusion of the sentence after θύων ἀπαρχὰς was οὐκ ἔθυσεν Ἀρτέμειδι. In this the sense, probably, but not the exact words, is given. Fritzsche proposes οὐκ ἔτισεν Ἀρτεμιν. Oeneus omitted to honour Artemis duly, who therefore sent the wild boar at whose hunting Meleager was present.

1243. ἔασον] ἔα αὐτὸν Meineke and others, in support of which may be quoted Lys. 945 ἀγαθόν· ἔα αὐτ' ὦ δαιμονία: and Soph. Oed. Col. 1182 ἀλλ' ἔα αὐτόν. εἰσὶ χατέροις γοναὶ κακαί. But ἔασον is a v. l. in this last.

1244. Ζεὺς] From the Melanippe. How long it might have been before the ληκύθιον would fit on to this we cannot tell.

1245. ἀπολεῖ σ'] Fritzsche and others read ἀπολεῖς 'you'll be the death of me, do stop!' The text means 'he (Aeschylus) will be the death of you and your prologue.' This reading has also the advantage of continuing the construction of Ζεὺς κ.τ.λ. in a sort of way. Dionysus interrupts Euripides who began 'Zeus, as the true tale runs—Will be your destroyer, for in the end he'll say λ. α.

1247. σῦκα] 'Feig-warzen' Kock: 'fig-warts' or 'fig-styes.'

1249. ἔχω ὡς ἀποδ.] As οὐχ ἔχω ὅπως οὐ and οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως οὐ are good Greek, there is no strong reason against the affirmative ἔχω ὡς, 'I have means by which, I know how.' But as it is against use, Meineke reads ἔχω γ' οἷς.

1250—1297. After a few words from the Chorus, Euripides ridicules Aeschylus' lyrics, quoting an unmeaning patch-work from several plays. Dionysus puts in a remark now and then.

1252. ἔγωγ' ἔχω] Paley proposes ἐγὼ οὐκ ἔχω. The text must mean 'I have enough to puzzle me in imagining how Euripides will find faults in Aeschylus' excellent lyrics.' And this is rather needlessly and tamely repeated in l. 1257—60: therefore Meineke throws them out. Kock and Holden print them as doubtful. Certainly Euripides' πάνυ γε μέλη θαυμαστά 'O yes, wonderful lyrics!' comes in better thus.

1256. τῶν ἐτι νυν] Meineke τῶν μέχρι νυν. Fritzsche τῶν ἐτι γ' ὄντων. The MSS. had τῶν ἐτι νῦν ὄντων.

1259. β. ἀνακτα] As king and master in the tragic art.

1260. αὐτοῦ] must mean Euripides. κοῦ δέδοιχ' is also proposed with αὐτοῦ referring to Aeschylus.

1263. ταῦτα] Dobree's γ' αὐτὰ is taken by most editors. Why is it so decidedly preferable? ταῦτα refers to μέλη: 'I will count these lyrics which you are going to reduce all to one model,' i.e. to prove monotonous, all one and the same in metre.

1264. Φθιῶτ' 'A.] From the Myrmidones, a summons to Achilles to help the Greeks in their stress. Probably κόπον in the original passage of Aeschylus was to be joined with ἀνδροδάϊκτον, 'why on hearing the man-slaying toil, ah woe! do you not come to help?' The line is absurdly repeated by Euripides, to fasten on Aeschylus the charge of repeating a useless refrain, and of unintelligibility. But ἰήκοπον as one word is taken to be a noun agreeing with ἀνδροδάϊκτον. Lobeck renders it 'placatus caesorum': 'cadentium' would perhaps be better.

1266. Ἑρμᾶν κ.τ.λ.] From the Ψυχαγωγοί. The dwellers περὶ λίμναν are explained by the Scholiast to be the Arcadians near lake Stymphalis, Hermes being specially worshipped in Arcadia. Fritzsche thinks them rather to be those round lake Avernus, who worshipped Hermes χθόνιος or ψυχαγωγός. They were probably the chorus of the play.

1269. δύν] Dionysus counts up the faulty strains by the catch-word κόπος: at the same time this line may mean 'Here's double toil and trouble for you, Aeschylus.'

1270. κύδιστ' 'A.] Probably from the Telephus.

1273. εὐφαιμείτε] From the Iphigenia probably.

μελισσονόμοι] The priestesses of Artemis were called μέλισσαι, and apparently this word means the same. Why μέλισσαι, is uncertain. Paley thinks from μέλειν 'care-takers' rather than from μέλι. 'the priestesses are near, to open the temple of Artemis.'

1276. κύριος] From Agam. 104, and l. 1285 is from Agam. 109. The probable meaning of this line is 'I have full power to tell of fated victory of men from wayside omens.'

1278. τὸ χρήμα τ. κ.] Cf. Nub. 2 τὸ χρήμα τῶν νυκτῶν ὅσον.

1279. εἰς τὸ β. βούλομαι] 'Die Ellipse ganz wie bei uns' says Kock: and in English too 'I will to the bath' is natural. But natural though the ellipse be in English and German, if it were used in Greek, one would expect more instances. None are given. Paley thinks βούλομαι may have been repeated by error for ἔρχομαι, because βου caught the transcriber's eye from the next verse.

1281. στάσιν] The στάσις or στάσιμον was distinguished from the πάροδος or ἐξοδος: a song of the Chorus neither on entrance nor exit, but during the play: ὁ ᾄδουσιν ἰστάμενοι οἱ χορευταί.

1285. ὅπως κ.τ.λ.] A patchwork partly from the Agamemnon, partly from other plays.

1287. Σφίγγα] Supposed to be from a play the Sphinx. δνσαμεριᾶν genitive pl. is Dindorf's correction for δνσαμεριάν. The Sphinx is called 'the hound the president of mischances,' perh. = 'introducer of mishaps.' It is useless to try and make sense of this: the next words are again from the Agamemnon, and l. 1291 may have meant 'having given them for the swift air-roaming hounds (=eagles) to light upon.' Cf. Aesch. Prom. Vinct. 1020, Agam. 139. The refrain τοφλαττόθρατ or φλαττόθραττο may be an imitation of the cithara.

1294. τὸ συγκλινές] Obscure, as indeed it is meant to be. Fritzsche renders the whole: quomodo Achivorum duplex imperium Graecae juventutis Sphingem, monstrum infortunio praefectum mittat (Trojam) cum hasta et manu ultrice bellicosus ales (aquila) qui ad praedam praebuit audacibus avibus in aere volantibus phalangem Ajacis. And this Sphinx needs a modern Oedipus: the Latin is as hard a riddle as the Greek.

1297. ιμονιοστρόφου] As ιμονιά is a well-rope (Eccl. 351), it is supposed that ιμονιοστρόφοι 'water-drawers' sang at their work: and the Scholiast quotes from Callimachus αἶδει καὶ πού τις ἀνὴρ ὕδατηγὸς ἰμαῖον. Why 'from Marathon' is not certain. Fritzsche thinks rushes to make ropes were obtained from Marathon: Paley suggests an allusion to Aeschylus having fought at Marathon. And Kock supposes the length of the lines to be meant, 'interminable lines long as ropes,' whereas Euripides' lyrics were of shorter lines.

1298—1363. Aeschylus retorts by giving a parody of Euripides' choral style, a nonsensical ode made up of scraps which are partly from real plays of Euripides.

1298. ἀλλ' οὖν κ.τ.λ.] My lyrics were at all events from a good source, Phrynichus, and used for a good purpose; but altered to suit the requirements of tragedy. Of Phrynichus Aristophanes speaks in Av. 745—50 νόμους ἔνθεν ὥσπερ εἰ μέλιττα Φρύνιχος ἀμβροσίῳ μελέων ἀπεβόσκετο καρπὸν.

1302. Μελήτου] A song-writer, whom the Scholiast supposes the same as Socrates' accuser.

Καρικῶν αὐλ.] Cf. Plato, Legg. VII. 800 E οἱ μισθοῦμενοι Καρικῇ τινὶ μούσῃ προπέμπουσι τοὺς τελευτήσαντας. The Carian flute music was doleful (θρηνώδες), we are told by the Scholiast.

1303. χορείων] From χορεῖον, 'a place for dancing,' if the accent is thus placed. If from χορεία it should be χορειῶν.

1305. ἐπὶ τούτῳ] 'for him, Euripides, this fellow.' The other reading is ἐπὶ τούτων, sc. ᾠμάτων, 'in such lyrics as these.'

1306. κροτοῦσα] Some figure of the Muse came in rattling the castanets. Fritzsche thinks there is allusion to Hypsipyle, whom Euripides had introduced quieting her nursing Opheltes with a rattle.

1308. οὐκ ἑσθίασεν] 'No Lesbian Muse was she:' had nothing of Lesbian melody in her. Perhaps also 'had no Lesbian charms of coquetry;' the Lesbian women being noted that way, while the figure of Euripides' muse was 'old and ugly,' as Paley suggests.

1309. ἀλκυόνες κ.τ.λ.] Partly resembles Eur. Iph. in Taur. 1089. The halcyons, spiders and dolphins are combined with some grammatical but no logical coherence (as Fritzsche says): and all or nearly all the lines may be from actual plays of Euripides.

1314. εἰεἰεἰεἰεἰεἰλίσσετε] The repetition is to imitate some repetition of the musical notes or shake. "Recentior Euripidis musica non dubitabat unam syllabam vel sexies repetere ut senis notis pro una locus daretur." Fritzsche. This Aeschylus ridicules.

1315. ιστότονα] Some read ιστόπονα, 'worked at the loom.' In the next line μελέτας is in apposition to πηνίσματα. There is no conclusion of the sentence to show what the halcyons and spiders are called on to do.

1317. ἦν ὁ φίλανλος] From Eur. El. 435, where (with εἰλισσόμενος added) it means 'where the dolphin gambolled rolling about the dark ships' prows,' ἐπαλλε being intransitive. Here the addition of μαντεῖα κ. σ. makes nonsense.

1320. οἰνάνας] These lines are supposed to be from the Hypsipyle.

1323. τὸν πόδα] The faulty foot is supposed to be the anapaest in l. 1322. But what the repetition of the question in l. 1324 refers to is not plain. Bergk thinks there should be but one line for ll. 1323, 4. One MS. omits l. 1324.

1325—28. And you who make such bad lines yet blame mine, you who write lyrics with tricks of metre as base as the arts of Cyrene (a well-known courtesan of the time). The phrase δωδεκαμήχανον ἄστρον is said to have been used by Euripides in the Hypsipyle, of the sun which passes through the twelve signs of the zodiac.

1331. ὦ Νυκτὸς κ.τ.λ.] An amusing parody of Euripides. A luckless spinner while busy at her work has her cock stolen from her poultry yard, and appeals to all powers mortal and immortal to help her in recovering it. Many of the lines are doubtless from plays of Euripides.

1332. τίνα μοι κ.τ.λ.] Something like Hecuba 67 seqq. in general sense.

1333. πρόπολον] 'minister, attendant.' Kock reads πρόμολον 'fore-runner' from MS. Rav. The Scholiast explains by πρόδρομον.

1334. ψυχὰν ἄψυχον] An oxymoron in Euripides' style.

1337—8. φόνια...ἔχοντα] Probably from some passage different from the last few lines. Fritzsche thinks that much of this monody is from the Temenidae.

1340. ἀποκλύσω] This idea of cleansing guilt and averting evil by ablution often meets us in the ancient writers. Kock refers to Aesch. Pers. 201, Ap. Rhod. 4. 660, Persius Sat. 2. 16. Paley quotes aptly from the Hippolytus 653, ἀγὼ ῥυτοῖς νασμοῖσιν ἐξομάρξομαι εἰς ὧτα κλύζων.

1342. τοῦτ' ἐκεῖν] 'This is the thing meant, what the vision portended.' The contrast between the horrors of the vision and the pettiness of the theft is amusing; as is also the association of the 'mountain nymphs' with the kitchen-maid Mania.

1350. κνεφαλὸς] 'In the morning twilight,' as in Vesp. 124. So Virgil's cheese-maker takes his cheeses early to market, 'Sub lucem exportans calathis adit oppida pastor.' Georg. 3. 402.

1352. ὁ δὲ] Namely the cock. Seidler remarks that ‘almost in every play of Euripides something flies through the air.’ The appeal to the Cretans to help is said to be from the Cretes of Euripides, in the mouth of Icarus when in the Labyrinth. Perhaps this may have been in the same play, about his flight. The repetitions of ἀνέπτατ’ ἀνέπτατ’, ἔβαλον ἔβαλον, are to ridicule Euripides’ practice, if not his actual words.

1358. κῶλα ἀμπάλλετε] ‘Nimble ply your limbs.’

1359. Ἄρτεμις] Kock and Holden omit this word, reading καλὰ and ἃ καλὰ. Artemis and Hecate, hounds torches and all, and the quarry—a cock!

1362. διπύρους λ.] ‘two blazing torches,’ one in each hand. Bergk would read ἀμφιδύρους: and for δξύτάταιν he and Meineke δξύτάτας. This last change simplifies and improves the sense; but is it therefore (in such a parody) an improvement?

1364—1410. Weighing is proposed as the only sure test. Each poet stands by the scale of the balance, and speaks a verse into it. Aeschylus’ verse in every instance proves the heavier. Then Aeschylus proposes to weigh two verses of his own against all Euripides’ poetry and household. But Dionysus thinks of another plan for deciding the question.

1367. νῶν] This verse is a more distinct explanation of the preceding one. ‘The balance is the only thing that will test our poetry, for it will put to the proof the weight of our words.’ Kock and Holden read νῶ: then τὸ βάρος is nominative, ‘for the weight of our words will put us to the proof.’

1368. καὶ τοῦτο] Sc. ποιῆσαι, for which is substituted the more exact τυροπωλῆσαι. So (as Paley quotes) ἢ τοῦτο μὲν οὐδὲν δεῖ ἐαυτοῦ ἄρχειν; Georg. 491 D.

1369. τυροπωλῆσαι τέχνην] ‘To deal cheese-monger-wise with the art poetic.’

1374. μὰ τὸν] Sometimes, from reverence, the name of the deity was suppressed. An instance occurs in Plato, Georg. 466 E, μὰ τὸν, οὐ σύγε.

1375. τῶν ἐπιτυχόντων] ‘of chance persons:’ if any ordinary person had told me this I should not have believed it.

1378. παρὰ τὸ πλ.] The two poets are to stand each by one scale. All the meanings of πλάστιγξ are probably referable to πλῆσσω, either active or passive.

1379. λαβομένω] Sc. τῶν πλαστιγῶν. They were to lay hold of or touch the scale and also speak into the balance. Thus the weight of their words might be conveyed into it doubly.

1382—3. εἴθ’ ὦφελ’...ἐπιστροφάει] The opening line of the Medea, and of Aeschylus’ Philoctetes.

1385. τὸ τοῦδε] Aeschylus’ side of the balance. ταῦτιον=τὸ αἰτιον. Meineke writes ταῖτιον.

1386. ἐριοπωλικῶς] As wool-sellers damp their wool to increase its weight. Euripides' line was about the Argo's 'swift flight,' and therefore 'feathered.' There may be a slight remembrance of Homer's ἔπεα πτεροέντα in the phrase.

1390. ἦν ἰδοῦ] As in Pac. 327, Eg. 26.

1391—2. οὐκ...ἐρᾷ] From the Antigone and Niobe respectively. The neatness of Aeschylus' capping his rival's persuasion with Death, who alone is proof against persuasion, is seen from the rest of the passage in the Niobe, οὐδ' ἂν τι θύων οὐδ' ἐπισπένδων λάβοις, οὐδ' ἐστὶ βωμὸς οὐδὲ παιωνίζεται· μόνου δὲ πειθῶ δαιμόνων ἀποστατεῖ.

1400. βέβληκ' A.] It is said that this line is from the Telephus, in which Achilles and others are introduced playing at dice. The Telephus is constantly ridiculed. Some think it means 'Aeschylus (Achilles, see above, l. 992) has made a better throw than his rival.' But from whatever play it comes, it seems suggested mockingly by Dionysus as a weighty verse, whereas it is a trifling one on a trifling subject. The ancients played with three dice: hence τρις ἐξ βαλεῖν (Aesch. Ag. 33) for the luckiest throw. Two aces and a four would not be very high.

1401. στάσις] 'weighing,' as in l. 1389, ἀντιστησάτω.

1402. σιδηροβριθές τ'] A massive verse from the Meleager; but Aeschylus was equal to the occasion with one from the Glaucus Potnieus. ἔπποι δ' ἐφ' ἔπποις ἦσαν ἐμπεφυρμένοι is the next line.

1406. Αἰγύπτιοι] Cf. Av. 1133, Αἰγύπτιος πλινθοφόρος. The Egyptians appear to have been looked on as bearers of burdens.

1407. μηκέτ' ἔ. κ. ἔ.] Supply στάσις γενέσθω, or something equivalent. Cephisophon was, as we have seen, and shall see below, supposed to have helped Euripides in his plays; and by some is thought to have been an actor.

1410. δὺ' ἐπη] As these two lines are not quoted, Bergk and Meineke suppose something lost, and mark a gap. But this is quite needless. Dionysus has said that the weighing is finished: Aeschylus has won by that. Still he does not wish either to lose, so he says he will not decide. Pluto suggests then that he will have had all his labour for nothing. He then thinks of another practical test of the respective usefulness of the two poets.

1411—1481. Dionysus bethinks him that he can ask Aeschylus and Euripides their views on political questions—and leading statesmen, on plans for the city's welfare. He does so. Their answers are curious and rather oracular. He decides for Aeschylus in spite of Euripides' indignant protestations, and they go into Pluto's palace to prepare for the home voyage.

1411. ἄνδρες φίλοι] οἱ ἄνδρες εἰσὶν φίλοι.

1413. τὸν μὲν...τῷ δέ] 'Euripides I think clever, Aeschylus I like best.' So the Scholiast, Fritzsche, Kock. And below, l. 1468, ὅνπερ ἡ ψυχὴ θέλει of Aeschylus, and l. 1451, ὦ σοφωτάτη φύσις of Euripides. And also in l. 1434, σοφῶς is of Euripides.

1415. εἰν δὲ κρίνω;] ‘Supposing I decide, what then?’ ‘You’ll take back one,’ says Pluto, ‘and not have come in vain.’ ‘Blessings on you for the suggestion,’ says Dionysus, and then turning to the rivals tells them that the test shall be their political wisdom.

1421. ἀξίει μοι δοκῶ] ‘I mean to take.’ This sense of ‘design, purpose’ comes naturally enough from ‘I seem to myself to be about to do.’ Kock gives three instances from Plato: Phaedr. 230 E, Theaetet. 183 D, Euthyd. 288 C.

1423. δυστοκεῖ] ‘Has a hard time of it’ in settling what course to adopt about Alcibiades: ‘vehementer dubitat,’ as Bothe renders it. This is certainly right, and not Kock’s and Holden’s ‘hat Unglück mit ihren Kindern,’ ‘quod ad liberos mala fortuna utitur.’ The word is explained by the verse ποθεῖ κ.τ.λ.

1424. ἔχει κ.τ.λ.] Meineke rejects this line. It certainly were better away. There is no reason for Pluto interrupting: and if the first part be given to Euripides it is out of place to make him ask ‘what the city thinks’ when he has just been told that ‘the city doesn’t know what to think.’ The τίνα for ἦντινα at the end of the verse is also objected to.

1425. ποθεῖ] σιγᾷ μὲν, ἐχθαίρει δὲ, βούλεται γε μὴν is quoted by the Scholiast from the Φρουροί of Ion.

1427. μισῶ κ.τ.λ.] Applicable to Alcibiades. The antithetical style is just in Euripides’ manner.

1431. οὐ χρῆ] Either this or the next line appears superfluous: if there were two editions of the Frogs, one line belongs to one, one to the other. Editors differ as to which we should retain. The ‘lion’ is of course Alcibiades. The idea of bringing up a lion’s whelp which proves a bane to the house occurs in Aesch. Agam. 717. If line 1432 only be retained, the infinitives τρέφειν, ὑπηρετεῖν depend on something like δοκεῖ μοι in answer to τίνα γν. ἔχεις; ‘It seems right to me, as the best course (μάλιστα μὲν) not to rear a lion.’

1434. σοφῶς—σαφῶς] The one ‘cleverly,’ the other ‘clearly.’ Euripides σοφῶς, Aeschylus σαφῶς. For Euripides’ advice (though we might judge it to be plain enough) was given in vague and general words and with rhetorical antitheses: that of Aeschylus, though a parable, is brief, homely, and forcible. I fail to appreciate Meineke’s objections to the text: he reads σοφῶς...σοφῶς, ‘both the one and the other have spoken cleverly.’

1437. εἴ τις πτερώσας κ.τ.λ.] Most editors reject or bracket these five lines, and ll. 1449—53. Exactly as they stand they cannot be right: but it is not easy to account for their insertion. The anacoluthon in the first two may be paralleled from Pac. 933 (if the text there be retained): and Paley improves the sense by a transposition. I should propose one differing slightly from his, as follows:

ΕΥ. εἴ τις πτερώσας Κλέεκριτον Κινησίῳ
αἵροιεν αὖραι πελαγίαν ὑπὲρ πλάκα, εἰ ναυμαχοῖεν, κᾶτ’ ἔχοντες ὀξείδας
βαίνοιεν ἐς τὰ βλέφαρα τῶν ἐναντίων

ΔΙ. γέλοῖον ἂν φαίνοιτο· νοῦν δ' ἔχει τίνα;

ΕΥ. ἐγὼ μὲν οἶδα καὶ θέλω φράζειν. ΔΙ. λέγε.

ΕΥ. ὅταν κ.τ.λ.

Eur. 'Supposing, when one had winged Cleocritus with Cinesias, the breezes were to bear them over the sea, if there were a sea-fight going on, and then they holding vinegar cruets were to drizzle vinegar into the enemies' eyes—.' Di. 'Indeed 'twould be laughable, but what sense and meaning has it?' Eur. 'I know, and am willing to tell you.' Di. 'Speak on.' Eur. 'When we trust what we now mistrust, etc.... we shall do well.' Euripides having proposed a ridiculous and unheard of plan, explains that the State must quite change its measures and men, meaning perhaps his Cleocritus-Cinesias plan merely as a parable, 'we must as entirely change our policy as we should did we adopt the strange method of naval warfare which I have described.' Of course Euripides is meant to be absurd and incoherent, and to find sense in nonsense. Cleocritus is supposed to have been a big man (cf. Av. 876). Cinesias was a dithyrambic poet: there is a long passage about his 'flights' in Av. 1372—1409. They seem joined by way of contrast; but there may be an allusion to some joke unknown to us.

1445. ἀμαθέστερον] The Scholiast quotes as a proverb σαφέστερόν μοι κάμαθέστερον φράσον. This request to Euripides to speak 'more clearly' confirms the explanation given of l. 1434.

1449—50. εἰ νῦν γε κ.τ.λ.] Rather needless repetition, but not indefensible.

1451. εὖ γ', ὦ Π.] Perhaps a quotation from the Palamedes of Euripides. Anyhow Euripides may be well addressed by the name of this inventive hero. The next two lines are omitted by those who reject ll. 1437—1441. But the passage does not look like an interpolation. For Cephisophon see above, ll. 944, 1408.

1455. τίσι χρῆται:] Aeschylus asks 'whom does the city use?' Not the good (he is told), nor yet does it like the bad. How then can a city so hard to please be saved?

1459. μήτε χλαῖνα μήτε σισύρα] The χλαῖνα of finer texture may represent the καλοὶ κάγαθοί, the σισύρα a rough skin the rude demagogues; the one being χρηστοί, the other πονηροί in Aeschylus' eyes.

1460. εὕρισκε κ.τ.λ.] Meineke rashly strikes out these seven lines. There seems no good reason for this: ἀναδύσει is second person of ἀναδύσμαι. Aeschylus has said, 'There is no way to save such a perverse State?' Dionysus rejoins, 'You must find a way, if you are to return to the upper earth.'

1462. ἀνίει] 'Send up' as a beneficent spirit might do. The Scholiast quotes as a proverb, ἐκεῖ βλέπουσα δεῦρ' ἀνίει τὰγαθά.

1463. τὴν γῆν κ.τ.λ.] He means that they are to ravage the Peloponnesus and make themselves as it were at home in it, and to endure having their own land invaded. Pericles had advised much the same, Thuc. I. 143. And by the last line he means that their ships are their true wealth, their money-revenues no really useful revenues at all, since they all go to dicasts and the like.

1466. εἶ, πλήν γ'] No commentator has noticed the want of coherence in this 'Well said, but.' The sense wanted after 'their money revenues are poverty' is 'True, for,' or 'Yes, since the dicast alone swallows all.' One might suggest εἴπερ γ'. The meaning of αὐτὰ must be τὰ χορήματα, τὸν πόρον.

1467. κρίνεις ἄν] 'Come give judgment, please.' Cf. above, l. 1401, λέγουσι' ἄν.

1469. ὤμοσας] No mention has been made of such an oath; but Dionysus had originally come down with intent to fetch Euripides. He however admits the oath but evades it by Euripides' own sanction, alluding to Hipp. 612, as above at l. 102.

1475. τί δ' αἰσχροὺν] Euripides had said in the Aeolus, τί δ' αἰσχρὸν ἦν μὴ τοῖσι χρωμένοις δοκῇ; It was a philosophical doctrine of some that right and wrong were dependent on 'opinion' and 'seeming.'

1477. τίς οἶδεν] A reproduction of a line in Euripides' Polyidus, and he had written much the same in the Phrixus. Then Dionysus adds a punning jingle in πνεῖν δὲ δειπνεῖν. Kock objects that πνεῖν and δειπνεῖν are no contrast and the wit poor: he therefore with one MS. would read πονεῖν. But it is not necessary that Dionysus' addition to Euripides' line should be very witty. The more nonsensical, the more of a snub for Euripides.

1482—1533. The Chorus congratulate Aeschylus, contrasting his wisdom with Euripides' folly. Pluto tells him to teach the Athenians wisdom, and to send certain rascals down to him with all speed. Aeschylus asks Pluto to see that the tragic throne is kept for him by Sophocles till his return. Then all go off in a torch-procession, the Chorus auguring all good from the poet's return to the light.

1484. πάρα] πάρεστι, 'it is possible.' πολλοῖσιν is the dative in the sense of Latin ablative, 'by many proofs.'

1491. χάριεν] It is a pretty thing (and a profitable) for a poet not to keep company with or follow Socrates—as Euripides did: such studies are mere craziness.

1496. σεμνοῖσιν λ.] Fine pretentious words and scrapings from the nonsense of philosophers. σκαριφᾶσθαι is said to be properly used of a hen scratching up anything with her claws. σκαλαθυρμάτια in Nub. 630 seems about the same.

1504. τουτί] A sword, rope, and poison are supposed to be the three things sent by Pluto. In the next line the MS. reading, τουτί, makes a paroemiac verse, which seems out of place. Kock reads τουτουσι, namely βρόχους, 'halters.' Meineke τουτοισι with less sense. Myrmex and Archenomus are unknown. The πορισται, 'finance committee,' we may suppose had mismanaged matters in Aristophanes' opinion. There was a Nicomachus, a γραμματεὺς against whom Lysias spoke an oration, who had drawn up certain laws.

1511. στίξας] Like slaves.

1513. Λευκολόφου] Adeimantus, son of Leucolophides, was an Athenian general of oligarchical views: he was at Aegospotami, and was spared by his Lacedemonian captors because he had favoured their Spartan interests. He is called son of 'Leucolophus,' either for convenience of metre, or with some allusion the force of which is lost. Paley suggests a 'charge of cowardice;' but does 'the white feather' in Greek convey any such imputation?

1515. σὺ δὲ κ.τ.λ.] The poet in return gives Pluto a commission about his seat: Sophocles is to occupy it: Euripides is excluded.

1523. μηδ' ἄκων] Of course it was not likely that Euripides would decline any honour, but even if he did, the throne would be disgraced (Aeschylus means) by his merely sitting on it. Kock quotes from Aeschines 2, 153 ἀνθρώπος γύης καὶ πονηρός, ὃς οὐδ' ἂν ἄκων ἀληθές οὐδὲν εἴποι.

ἐγκαθεδεῖται] The contracted Attic future is common in verbs ending in -ζω. In those in -ιζω the final consonant of the stem is dropped as κομιῶ οὔμαι from κομιδ-. In ἐζομαι the stem is ἐδ, compare Lat. sedes etc.

1526. τούτου] Aeschylus is to be escorted to the music of his own lyrics. The Scholiasts tell us that the final hexameters are from the Glaucus Potniceus of Aeschylus. The line they quote is not very close to the text here. Some phrases may have been from other plays. The whole has rather an Aeschylean character. 'Grant him a prosperous journey, and grant him to devise good for our state.'

1531. πάγχι γὰρ κ.τ.λ.] Thus we shall have rest: let Cleophon and his like fight, but not here; in Thrace, where he comes from. See above, l. 679. Paley quotes a similar sentiment from Aesch. Eumen. 864. He also notices that the torch-procession off the stage resembles that in the Eumenides, l. 959. And Eum. 932, 1012 resemble l. 1531.

GENERAL EDITOR : J. J. S. PEROWNE, D.D.,
DEAN OF PETERBOROUGH.

"It is difficult to commend too highly this excellent series."—Guardian.

"The modesty of the general title of this series has, we believe, led many to misunderstand its character and underrate its value. The books are well suited for study in the upper forms of our best schools, but not the less are they adapted to the wants of all Bible students who are not specialists. We doubt, indeed, whether any of the numerous popular commentaries recently issued in this country will be found more serviceable for general use."—Academy.

"Of great value. The whole series of comments for schools is highly esteemed by students capable of forming a judgment. The books are scholarly without being pretentious: information is so given as to be easily understood."—Sword and Trowel.
